WELLMAN PLANS TO START TO-DAY

Wind Reports Favorable and Airship May Get Away on Her Transatlantic Trip.

TRIAL ONLY SCHEDULED

But if Problems Attending the Launching Are Adjusted She May Wait No Longer.

CREW TO REPORT AT 4 A. M.

Equilibrator Must Be Attached and Compass Corrected While Airship Is Held—No Trouble Over Airship Bills.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Wednesday, Oct. 12, 3:30 A. M.—Part of the crew of the Wellman-Vaniman airship America, which is expected to start on its voyage across the Atlantic to-day, are at work in the hangar packing away the last supplies of provisions for the voyage.

The remainder of the crew and the score of persons who are to man the guy ropes during the launching will arrive at 4 o'clock.

The sky is clear and there is a ten-mile breeze from the west, just the conditions Mr. Wellman wants for the launching. It is expected that two hours will be consumed in getting the ship to the shore and attaching the equilibrator and the lifeboat. At 6 o'clock, therefore, the America should be ready to take to the air.

By Telegraph to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 11.—To-morrow morning we hope to make a trial trip with the airship America. We shall do so if the wind is light enough to permit the ship to be safely taken out of her house and put back again, which we have always regarded as the most difficult part of our manoeuvre. Circumstances must control what is to follow the trial. We may have to stop a day or two and make changes suggested by the trial trip.

It is not impossible that the trial may be converted into an actual start on the transatlantic voyage. We believe the ship is fit; extraordinary care has been exercised to see that all is in best possible order. We are eager to start. We have been eager for a month. There has not been a day for six weeks we would not have started had the ship been ready and the weather conditions satisfactory. Engineer Vaniman and our entire staff have worked up to the limit of their strength. We and not spectators impatient for a momentary thrill must be the judges of when we are to start.

The cowards who question motives and sincerity without knowing anything of the facts will neither hasten nor retard our departure a single moment. We are engaged in a difficult and perhaps dangerous scientific experiment. What its outcome is to be we do not know; we do know we are striving as hard and as cautiously as we can, we shall be bitterly disappointed if anything prevents our actual start within twenty-four hours, because the United States Weather Bureau telegraphs us wind conditions are now favorable and will help us on our course as far as the Grand Banks. We aim to follow the steamer lines past Nantucket Lightship, and thence east-northeast over the Banks. We have a good ship, a good crew, and need only a little good fortune. With the Marconi wireless apparatus we hope to be in frequent communication with THE NEW YORK TIMES, The London Daily Telegraph, and The Chicago Record-Herald, the public-spirited newspapers which have aided us in making this interesting experiment.

WALTER WELLMAN.

CREW ANXIOUS TO BE OFF.

All Hands Ordered to be Ready for an Early Start.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 11.—The weather bulletin from Willis Moore, Director of the United States Weather Bureau at Washington, for which Walter Wellman has been waiting for the last two weeks, arrived this afternoon. It told of a wind condition along the Atlantic Ocean's storm paths which caused Mr. Vaniman, engineer of the America, to declare that if the airship gets away in time to take advantage of prevailing winds it will reach a point 1,000 miles beyond the Newfoundland banks before the first scheduled chance for a change.

Mr. Wellman received the message at noon, and throughout the afternoon there there was feverish excitement in the America's hangar and throughout Atlantic City, where the rumor spread rapidly that the America was soon to be off on her long-projected transatlantic trip, in which Marconi wireless messages will be sent to THE NEW YORK TIMES, The Chicago Record-Herald, and The London Daily Telegraph.

Favorable Winds Over the Course.

The only place from coast to coast where unfavorable winds were blowing was right at the hangar and there a blustery breeze continued which made every one of the offshore skippers who assembled at the hangar protest against any attempt to bring the America away from her moorings. Mr. Vaniman favored an immediate start, as did Mr. Simon, the former navigator of the steamship Oceanic, who is to steer the America on her way across the sea. Mr. Wellman favored waiting till daylight in order to get advantage of a full day in which to observe the first workings of the equilibrator at sea, and look out for possible faults in the motors and propellers. The orders when the crew left the hangar at 8 o'clock

MONORAIL WRECKS AN AUTO.

Line Suspended Since Last Accident Was Undergoing Utilities Board Test.

The Pelham and City Island Monorail Company received permission yesterday from the Public Service Commission to operate its cars between Bartow and Belden's Point, across the City Island bridge, on condition that certain minor changes in the construction work on the monorail be made and the maximum speed limited to fifteen miles an hour.

While Chief Engineer Scott, who had been making experimental runs on the line for the commission for several days, was operating one of the monorail cars across the Pelham Parkway from Belden's Point to Bartow late yesterday afternoon in order to allow officials of the Public Service Commission to judge the workings of the car, it crashed into an automobile owned and operated by Norbert Rabillard, a builder, of 1,445 Deregn Street, the Bronx, and containing also a friend of Mr. Rabillard, and Charles Deitch, caretaker of the Tallapoosa Club of Pelham, from which Mr. Rabillard had just come.

The sharp steel point of the cigar-shaped monorail car pierced the tonneau of the automobile, two-thirds of which had crossed upon the track, and the entire rear part of the machine was wrecked. Deitch, who was sitting in the tonneau, was pinned against one wall of the auto by the point of the monorail car, and the wrecked automobile was shoved forward about ten feet. Rabillard and the third man, whose name could not be learned, jumped from the front seat of the machine just as the monorail car struck it, and so escaped injury.

TROLLEYS CRASH; 3 MAY DIE.

Cars Meet Head-On Round Sharp Curve —21 Persons Injured.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Oct. 11.—In a head-on collision to-night between two trolley cars at White Oak, a pleasure resort near here, twenty-one persons were injured, three of whom may die. The seriously injured are:

ELY, ALBERT L., Southington, reporter on the New Britain Herald; concussion of the brain, and chest and legs crushed.

FAITH, EDWARD, New Britain, motorman; right leg crushed and internal injuries.

WHEELER, Miss HELEN, East Hartford; both legs broken and internal injuries.

The cars came together at a sharp curve, the view of each motorman being shut off by a car barn, which stands on the inside of the curve a few feet from the tracks. The vestibules of both cars were driven through the front doors, and the motormen, Faith and E. J. Kurtz, had to be chopped out. The passengers were thrown in heaps in the forward parts of the cars.

The blame for the accident has not been apportioned, but it is understood that the car from New Britain was punctual and that the Plainville train was trying to make up lost time. The spot where the collision occurred was three years ago the scene of a similar accident, in which thirty persons were injured.

JEWELED WIFE COMPLAINS.

Has C. P. Lynch Arrested for Rough Usage—Was with Another Woman.

With jewels about her face, neck, and shoulders, but with one sleeve of her blue hobble-skirted dress torn, Mrs. Myrtle Lynch, wife of Charles P. Lynch, proprietor of the International Warehouse Company of 308 East Fifty-second Street, appeared against him last night in the Night Court, charging him with disorderly conduct in calling her names and tearing her sleeve, when she pounced upon him from a dark hallway at Thirtieth Street and Lexington Avenue earlier in the evening just as he was stepping into a taxicab with another woman.

Mrs. Lynch said that she and her husband had been estranged for some time. Sometimes he would be called away to Philadelphia and other places on hurry calls, in which she did not believe. Finally, while hanging up some of his clothes one day, she saw several letters drop from them, all signed Alma, and all couched in most friendly terms.

On the night before last, she said, she followed him to the Hotel Knickerbocker, saw him step into a taxicab with a woman she supposed to be "Alma," and drive to the Hudson Theatre. She waited till they came out later, but they drove away before she could reach the taxicab. Yesterday she had him shadowed by a private detective, and learned that he had made an appointment to meet Miss Alma Goodrich, an actress, at Thirtieth Street and Lexington Avenue. She herself took her stand in a dark hallway and rushed out when she saw him entering the cab with the woman. He treated her roughly, so she had him arrested.

Lynch told Magistrate House in the Yorkville Night Court that the woman with whom his wife had surprised him was merely an old schoolmate who had come to the city, to whom he felt it was his duty to show the sights. He said he was suing his wife for a divorce, anyway, and the case was now pending in the Supreme Court.

Magistrate House, seeing the torn sleeve of Mrs. Lynch's gown and resenting the tone of her husband's remarks to her, fined him $10.

As he paid it he remarked to the clerk: "I got off easy."

HIGH SCHOOL BOY HELD.

Half Back of De Witt Clinton Team Inflicted Injury with a Brick.

Sixteen-year-old John Grohs, the heavyweight half back of the De Witt Clinton High School football team, was held in $2,500 bail for examination Thursday morning in West Side Court by Magistrate Herbert yesterday on a charge of felonious assault on John Flynn, aged 12, of 539 West Fifty-ninth Street. Grohs lives with his parents at 4 West 115th Street.

There has been feeling between the boys of the high school and the boys of the neighborhood over the right to play in a large vacant lot opposite the school. Battles with stones have been frequent, and Monday afternoon, after school had been dismissed, the practising school team was stoned by outside boys.

Passing by at the time was young Flynn, going to a neighboring druggist's for medicine for his six-year-old brother, who was ill. He got a cinder in his shoe and was stooping down to remove it when a half brick, intended for one of the stone throwers, hit him in the right temple, fracturing his skull. He was hurried to Roosevelt Hospital, where he was operated upon, and yesterday he was said to be recovering.

Grohs was charged with throwing the brick.

EPISCOPAL CLERGY FAVOR PRAYER-CURE

DAY OF MIRACLES NOT PAST

God's Power Beyond Medical Science—"Woman Picks Up Jewel Church Drops," Says Delegate.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 11.—After an animated discussion the clergy of the Episcopal Convention decided to-day in favor of the practice of the solemn anointing of the sick as a means of cure. The laity, however, disapproved of it by the narrow margin of five votes.

The voting was divided. The clerical branch approved of healing by prayer by a vote of 41 ayes to 17 nays, with nine dioceses not voting or divided. The layman house, however, killed the report by a vote of 27 ayes, 32 nays, four dioceses not voting, as it required a majority in both orders of the house to carry the report.

The question will come up before the House of Bishops at some future date, but it is regarded as improbable that it will take any action on it.

The debate in the lower house arose on the report of a commission on the subject, of which Bishop William Craine Grey of Southern Florida is Chairman.

The Rev. Lucas Waterman of Hanover, N. H., offered a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee to prepare and report an office for the unction of the sick on the lines of the scriptural and catholic usage. It should avoid any appearance of a sacramental rite immediately preceding death, as is now in use by the Roman Catholic Church.

"If the Lord Jesus Christ," he said, "did heal the sick in a manner which I may describe as supernatural He can do so now in the twentieth century. If men allow themselves to be prevented from asking God for a miracle, then Almighty God is not likely to grant it to them. Modern medical science has its place, but when its limits have been reached the limits of the power of God have not been reached."

The discussion brought out that belief in the supernatural power of healing is widespread in the Church. "A jewel which the Church cast away and a woman picked up," was the way in which one speaker referred to Christian Science. The Rev. H. M. S. Taylor of Atlanta, Ga., was one of the most outspoken of the clergy for the measure. He said that he believed in the miracle of healing by faith, and that he thought that that function had been taken from the Church by the Christian Scientists.

The committee in its report dealt with the history of the relation of the Church to healing, and made these recommendations:

> In view of the widespread desire and earnest longing for some recognition of the possibility of a healing of the sick through the power of prayer with symbolic anointing, manifested by Bishop, presbyters and laymen of the Church, and in view of the very general seeking after divine healings by faith-cure people, Christian Scientists, followers of spiritual healing and others, it seems eminently fitting that a suitable, proper, and wisely prepared office for the unction of the sick should be put forth by the Church on true lines:
> 1. Looking to and praying for a restoration to health, not in anticipation for death.
> 2. Avoiding the comparatively recent diversion toward the idea that the Scriptural unction of the sick is a true sacrament in our Anglican use of that word.
>
> Your committee would, therefore, recommend that a commission of two Bishops, two presbyters and two laymen, be appointed to prepare and report for an office for the unction of the sick, on the lines of the Scriptural and catholic usage, avoiding any appearance of a sacramental rite immediately preceding death.

One of the most forceful of the opponents of the plan was the Rev. Carl E. Grammer, rector of St. Stephen's Church in Philadelphia.

The House of Deputies adopted the resolution by 68 to 49, with 13 votes divided. Of the clerical members 41 were for the proposal. It will now go to the House of Bishops.

Seth Low spoke this evening before a crowded house at the Music Hall on "What the Conference Demands of the Laity." The meeting was held especially for the missionary members of the Conference, and the general topic was "The World Missionary Conference."

The Rev. Thomas J. Lacey, Rector of the Church of the Redeemer, in Brooklyn, will speak to-morrow at the session of the Daughters of the King.

PAY TO SEE BARNEY STATUE.

Hindu Butler Reaping a Harvest from Washington's Curious Folk.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The winds which blew the leaves from the fashionable Barney residence in Massachusetts Avenue and revealed to public gaze the undraped statue of Miss Natalie Barney, thereby causing a social sensation and a visit from a policeman with a cloth to veil the statue, wafted wealth to Mrs. Barney's Hindu butler. Ever since the patrolman covered the statue yesterday a procession of curious citizens and tourists has been passing through the grounds, and the dark son of the East has been busy gathering in small pieces of American money. For all who cross his palm with silver he condescends to lift the drapery that hides the reclining figure, and the larger the coin the longer the look.

The butler, who was brought from India by Mrs. Barney, who has delved deep in theosophic mysteries, asserts that under no circumstances will he allow the police or any one else to remove the statue from the yard, nor will he tolerate a wall or a house around it, as has been suggested, to keep it from the desecrating eyes of the multitude. He is the guardian of the statue, acting under orders from Mrs. Barney, and besides he is very certain that Miss Alice Barney, who carved the statue, as well as Miss Natalie, who posed for it, would be very indignant indeed if any of their friends called and were denied a peep at its beauties at so much a glance.

BOY, HELD AS SHIELD, SHOT AND KILLED

Greenwall, Alias "Biz" Clark, Pugilist, Did Shooting and Ended His Own Life Later.

RUN DOWN BY GREAT CROWD

Detectives with Drawn Revolvers Pursued Slayer to the Finish—Man Who Used Boy to Save Himself Escaped.

As 12-year-old Charles Fischer was hurrying along Madison Avenue, near 103d Street, last night, carrying a package of meat home to his widowed mother, Mrs. Madeline Fischer, who lives at 1,450 Madison Avenue, he came in front of Henry Greenwall, a hanger-on at that corner, long ago known as "Biz" Clark, a sparring partner of Harry Stone, a Baltimore featherweight fighter. A man just behind the boy cried out in fright as Greenwall drew a revolver and shouted:

"Now I'll settle you!"

Still clinging to his bundle, the boy felt himself lifted by a pair of strong arms from behind until his body formed a shield for the man holding him.

"Don't shoot! Don't shoot! You'll kill the kid!" he cried.

The revolver in Greenwall's hand spurted and the boy collapsed in the arms that held him, with a bullet in the right side of his head.

The man who had saved himself dropped him to the sidewalk and ran away. A crowd gathered around the boy as he lay in a heap, and then Greenwall, still flourishing his revolver, burst through and darted down the street.

A hundred men, women, and children gave chase. Among the pursuers was Policeman Searle. When the leaders in the chase drew near him Greenwall turned and leveled his revolver. That caused a halt for a moment. Then Greenwall ran on at increased speed. Before him, groups of children at play scattered and ran at sight of his drawn revolver, screaming into the nearest houses. Behind him, the crowd, now augmented by hundreds more from stopped Madison Avenue cars and tenements, came on in pursuit, the policeman now leading them, with drawn revolver.

The chase had been warm through 101st Street. At Fifth Avenue Greenwall stopped, irresolute which way to turn. Then, flourishing his revolver at the crowd behind, and in view of a throng of children and nurse girls parading before the Central Park wall on the other side of the avenue, he started up Fifth Avenue. Detectives Hyman and McGowan of the Harlem Branch were drawn from another case to which they had been assigned by the commotion. They saw Greenwall once more face his pursuers and level his revolver at them. Up, too, went the revolver of Policeman Searle, now less than twenty yards behind the fugitive. Greenwall fled again and no shots were fired. The two detectives, drawing their revolvers, joined the chase at the head.

Greenwall leaped over a group of terrified children on the front steps of an apartment house at 1,206 Fifth Avenue and darted into the open door. The two detectives were almost at his heels, and the crowd was yelling wildly close behind.

If Greenwall hoped to find the stairs leading to the roof he was disappointed. He was met by a blind wall, with only a dark hall beyond at one side, littered with bundles and baby carriages. Just then Hyman's revolver came over his shoulder and a hand clutched him. Greenwall put his own revolver to his head and fired. The bullet entered his right temple, and he fell back dead into the arms of his pursuers, while the crowd poured into the narrow dark hall.

It was long before the reserves could disperse the thousands that blocked the avenue and intersecting streets. Hundreds followed them as they carried Greenwall on a stretcher to the station. A large part of the gathering was children and servants rolling baby carriages.

Policeman Searle hurried back to where little Charles Fischer was lying helpless. An ambulance from the Harlem Hospital had come and a surgeon was bending over the boy. The boy's mother had heard of the shooting and had forced her way through the crowd to where he lay.

The boy was put into the ambulance, the mother accompanying him to the hospital by Dr. Fulton's permission. A priest was called from the Church of St. Mark the Evangelist to administer extreme unction. The boy died on the operating table two hours later.

In Greenwall's pockets three letters were found. Two were addressed to "Biz" Clark and one to Henry Greenwall. The two were directed to him in care of Abe Nitzburg of 1,463 Madison Avenue. Nitzburg keeps a small notion store at that address. He said that he knew of Greenwall only as a hanger-on at 103d Street and Madison Avenue. He thought his home was in McKinley Square, the Bronx.

The police learned that Greenwall had had a fight with a man known as "Pickle," in a poolroom at 103d Street and Madison Avenue, and that this was probably the man at whom he fired when he shot the Fischer boy. An alarm was sent out for "Pickle," who is described as a small stocky-built man, about 5 feet 6 inches in height, wearing a black derby and suit.

They learned, too, that Greenwall had been employed as an usher in a motion picture show at 110th Street and Fifth Avenue. The proprietor there said Greenwall had served a sentence at Elmira Reformatory, where four years ago he attempted to commit suicide by jumping from his cell on the fourth floor to the court below.

CHAMBERLAIN WELL AGAIN?

It Is Said That He May Again Sit and Speak in Parliament.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 12.—According to a correspondent of The Daily Chronicle, the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain's health is so much improved that there is a possibility that he may again sit and speak in Parliament.

Mr. Chamberlain was stricken with the illness that forced his retirement from public life in the Summer of 1906, and it has been believed ever since that he would never again be able to take an active part in public affairs. In one sense his influence has remained unabated, and he has continued to be regarded as the leader of the Protectionist Party.

Last Feb. 16, Mr. Chamberlain startled the House of Commons by appearing in order to take the oath of office after the General Elections, in which he was again returned from one of the Birmingham districts by an enormous majority. He had to be helped to his seat, and he could make only his cross after the signature which his son, Austen Chamberlain, had to write for him.

Mr. Chamberlain was born on July 17, 1836.

1,000 MAY BE DEAD FROM FOREST FIRES

RAINY RIVER DANGER LESS

300 Bodies Found So Far—Search Will Take Weeks—Property Loss Between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000

Special to The New York Times.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 11.—The devastation caused by the forest fires in Northern Minnesota and Southern Manitoba, as far as can be gathered here to-night, is as follows: Towns destroyed—Beaudette, Minn.; Spooner, Minn.; Pitt, Minn.; Swift, Minn.; Zipple, Minn.; Gravel Pit Spur, Minn.; Engle, Minn.

Towns party burned—Rainy River, Ont.; Pinewood, Ont.; Stratton, Ont.; Warroad, Minn.; Sprague, Minn.; Cedar Spur, Minn.; Roosevelt, Minn.; Williams, Minn. The latter two are threatened by flames again to-night.

People homeless—5,000. The dead (estimated)—1,000. Bodies recovered—300. Property loss—$50,000,000 to $100,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

INTERNATIONAL FALLS, Minn., Oct. 11.—With more than 200, probably 500, bodies lying in the woods, with both shores of Rainy River ablaze for sixty miles from its mouth in the Lake of the Woods, and with the village of Clementson, of 200 people, leveled to-day, the most stringent means of fighting the flames and the utmost that can be done by way of relief will fall far short of meeting the situation as it exists in the Rainy River basin. To combat this condition there are but fifty State militiamen from Bemidji and a few refugees who have not been rendered physical and mental wrecks.

The search for the bodies will take weeks. The State authorities should send at least 500 militiamen to the Rainy River country at once to aid the search as well as coffins to bury the dead and provisions to care for the living.

No language can depict the horrors of the situation. There are fears that the worst is yet to come. The only reason why many more towns have not been destroyed is that the cyclone that brought ruin to Beaudette, Spooner, Graceton, Pitt, Williams, Swift, and Roosevelt has lost track of the flames and is spending its fury elsewhere.

Three hours before the first relief train from Duluth reached Rainy River this morning the supply of bread and flour in the town had been exhausted. The Bemidji militiamen came on the train after they had waited in International Falls for six hours for a Canadian Northern engine to pull them over Canadian soil.

They were a handful of boys under Capt. Rutledge, and they immediately plunged into the black areas that once held the towns of Spooner and Beaudette. They began picking up bodies and piling them into coffins. Most of the dead are likely to fill unmarked graves unless their identity can be established by their presence near their cabins, as their bodies are charred beyond recognition.

One thousand soldiers are needed at once to aid in this work. There have been other forest fires, but never one that was driven by such a tornado or that assumed such proportions as to destroy everything except the hard soil. The soil in the streets of Spooner and Beaudette, indeed, is baked as hard as a city pavement, as if the clay had gone through a kiln.

A sewing machine was wheeled into the streets in Beaudette, and a few moments after the fire came it was melted to an unrecognizable mass. The wind blew scantlings through inch boards as if they were eggshells, and knocked men, women, and children from the sidewalk.

Another like gale and 100 more forest fires would spring up in this section. From one to fifty fires can be found in every square mile of woods in this north country.

Despite the ruin wrought by the flames, courage and optimism are renewing their hold on the settlers of the Rainy River region almost before danger is past. To-night the fires seem to have spent their fury. Already plans have been laid for building Beaudette and Spooner anew.

Every encouragement will be given settlers to remain. The local lumber companies will purchase all of the partly burned timber that can be used, and they will sell lumber at cost to those who rebuild. Many of the homesteaders will profit by the fires in a way, as thousands of acres of land has been cleared and can be made ready for farming with but little clearing.

Relief from neighboring towns has been sufficient to provide food for all who applied. About 1,500 meals were served to-day.

THE TIMES has received from "C. B." $25 for the relief of the Minnesota fire sufferers. This money has been forwarded to Mayor Berg of International Falls, Minn.

SERIOUS FIRE IN COLORADO.

Blazing Fiercely on Public Domain and Sweeping Big Chief Mountain.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Another serious forest fire has broken out on the public domain, according to advices reaching the Forest Service to-night, and is sweeping Big Chief Mountain in Colorado. Fanned by a high wind, the flames are said to be advancing rapidly. Officials of the Forest Service are not certain as to the number of settlers within or adjacent to the fire zone, but have telegraphed for particulars.

DEADWOOD, S. D., Oct. 11.—A dozen forest fires of threatening proportions are burning in the Black Hills.

Three of them, just south of Redfern, became so acute yesterday that the Forest Service sent 200 men from Lead on a special train to fight the flames, while other recruits are mustering in the southern hills.

LINER MOLTKE FREE TO-DAY.

She Will Be Released from Quarantine and Sent to Her Pier.

The last of the 400 steerage passengers from the Hamburg-American liner Moltke, detained for a week in Quarantine on account of the discovery of one cholera case in her crew and one in her steerage, were transferred yesterday to Hoffman Island for observation. The cabin passengers were released last week. The vessel, which arrived on Monday, Oct. 3, will be released and allowed to proceed to her pier this morning.

The steamship Martha Washington, which arrived from Mediterranean ports, was delayed in Quarantine several hours in the morning while the health officials made a careful examination of her passengers. She was released in the forenoon and came to her pier.

COLLISION MAY KILL TWO.

Man Hit by the Ambulance and Woman Patient in It.

An automobile ambulance of the Lying-in Hospital, speeding north last night on the Bowery with a woman patient about to become a mother, struck Nathan Rossberg, a tailor, of 38 Montgomery Street, as he was crossing at Delancey Street. He was tossed twenty feet, suffering fractures of the right shoulder and left leg, lacerations of the head, and internal injuries.

Rossberg was removed in another ambulance to Gouverneur Hospital, where it was said he will probably die. The patient in the ambulance, Mrs. Annie Abel of 9 Rector Street, is also unlikely to recover from the shock.

The chauffeur was arrested by Policeman Wright, but was released later at the Eldridge Street Station.

ROOSEVELT ROUTE CHANGED.

Coming East by a Road That Will Add a Day to His State Campaign.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—Since he left New York on this trip last Thursday afternoon, Col. Roosevelt has been in frequent telegraphic communication with Lloyd C. Griscom and Ezra Prentice, Chairmen of the New York County and State Republican Committees, respectively. As a result of their suggestions, he has determined upon a change of the itinerary for this trip which will give him one more day for campaigning in New York.

As originally planned he was to return to New York from Indiana, where he will speak all day on Thursday, by the Pennsylvania Railroad. This would keep him out of New York State until the evening of Friday. But by going back by a road that runs through the State he can put in a full day of campaign work, and that is what is now planned. He will begin speechmaking at Dunkirk and do as much talking as he can and still reach New York City that evening.

ARREST IN DYNAMITE CASE.

Supposed Miner Held as Knowing of Los Angeles Times Explosion.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Oct. 11.—George Wallace, who is supposed to be a miner familiar with high explosives, was arrested at the Sacramento Post Office to-day, while receiving letters which it is declared connect him with the Los Angeles Times explosion. One of them shows that Wallace left Los Angeles suddenly the day after the dynamiting, and that he knows much about the affair.

The writer used bitter language in speaking of Harry Chandler, manager, and Harrison Gray Otis, owner of The Times.

"If I only could see you, George, I could tell you a whole lot of things, but one cannot be too careful what he writes in a letter," the letter says. The other letter also refers to the dynamiting, but in guarded terms.

RECORD FOR JERSEY JUSTICE.

Slayer Is Indicted, Arraigned, Tried, and Sentenced in Two Hours.

Special to The New York Times.

MAY'S LANDING, N. J., Oct. 11.—Jersey justice established a record to-day when Antonio La Verdi was indicted, arraigned, tried, and sentenced to thirty years in prison at hard labor within two hours. Through his counsel La Verdi said he was guilty of the crime though innocent of intent to kill.

With Stephano Ferraro La Verdi went on May 15 to a saloon. There he insulted a girl friend of Ferraro. The latter remonstrated, and after a quarrel La Verdi drew a revolver and fired three shots, two of which hit Ferraro and resulted in his death.

DROUGHT STOPS TUB BATHING

Water Company Cuts Off Supply Till Wells Can Be Sunk.

PALMER, Mass., Oct. 11.—Tub bathing is prohibited in an order issued by the Palmer Water Company to-day in an effort to conserve the rapidly diminishing supply, which the company's reservoirs hold until artesian wells can be sunk and other emergency measures taken.

The water to-day had fallen to a point where it is but a few inches above the pipes through which it is pumped to the houses and stores. Chief Summer of the Fire Department asserts that with two fire streams he could completely empty the pipes in ten minutes.

For the protection of property in case of fire the town's only fire engine has been placed under a temporary shelter on the bank of the Quaboag River, with lines running into the water and steam constantly up. From the engine a line of hose 900 feet long extends to Main Street in the heart of the business district ready for instant use.

ROOSEVELT UP IN AEROPLANE

Twice Circles the St. Louis Aviation Field with Arch Hoxsey.

"BY GEORGE; FINE," HE SAYS

IN A WILD AUTOMOBILE RIDE

Speed Laws Ignored on His Eighteen-Mile Trip from the City—Cheered by Thousands.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 11.—For four minutes this afternoon Col. Theodore Roosevelt was literally and physically "up in the air." It was at the St. Louis Aviation Field, and he was a passenger in a Wright biplane, driven by Arch Hoxsey, the aviator, who flew from Springfield, Ill., to St. Louis last week, thus making a new American record for a sustained flight across country. Hoxsey is flying here this week at the aviation meet under the auspices of the Aero Club of St. Louis.

"By George, it was fine!" exclaimed the Colonel when he had untangled himself from the cross-wires that run between the planes in front of the passenger's seat and stepped back on solid ground. "I only wish I could have stayed up an hour. It was great."

Then he shook hands with Hoxsey, jumped back into the automobile in which he had traveled out to the aviation field, and was off again on the speaking tour which the little journey up in the air had interrupted.

It all happened so quickly that even some of those in his party who are on the closest terms with him were not aware of his intention to make a flight until he was actually on the way to the machine. Ever since it became known that he would be here while the aviation meet was on efforts had been made to get a promise from him that he would make at least a short flight. They were all in vain. It had been suggested to him many times that he might be induced to change his mind, but every time he scorned the suggestion. He learned only yesterday that he would be invited to make a flight, but said he would not think of such a thing, and it was absurd to ask him. So the flight he did make was the result of impulse. And after it was over he was mighty glad he had made it.

Incidentally Gov. Hadley and several members of The Outlook staff, who are in the Colonel's party, were tremendously relieved when they saw him back on earth again unhurt and happy.

All the way back to the city, at the two stops he made four little speeches, and again when he reached his rooms in the Jefferson Hotel, the Colonel expressed his very great pleasure over the experience. He also admittd that the flight had been made on the impulse of the moment.

"You know I did not intend to do it," he said to THE TIMES correspondent, "but when I saw the thing there I couldn't resist it."

The experiment in aviation was the climax of one of the maddest performances Col. Roosevelt has ever had anything to do with, although it came right in the middle of the afternoon's work. Before it and after it there was an automobile ride through the streets of the city, in which the twoscore motor cars in the procession often ran up to forty miles an hour and more.

Sees Aeroplanes from Afar.

When the procession was still a couple of miles from the aviation field an aeroplane was seen swinging easily above the tops of the trees. It was high enough to be made out even through the haze of dust that hung above the automobiles. Col. Roosevelt saw it and exclaimed with pleasure. Then the pace was hit up a peg. Just before reaching the field two other machines were sweeping over the field. One was the Blériot monoplane that was making its first American flight and the other two were Wright biplanes, one of which was engaged in an endurance test.

This one was swinging in very wide circles that took it far over the surrounding country. Once it swung down toward the procession, and for a minute it looked as if the aviator were coming to pay a call on Col. Roosevelt, and perhaps give him a race into the field. But the aviator turned just before the head of the motor car column came along, and swept away in another direction.

The gate in the fence surrounding the aviation field had been opened in honor of Col. Roosevelt, and his car swung through into the space where usually no one is allowed. It stopped directly in front of the grand stand and within a few feet of the spot where the aviators usually land.

Hoxsey had been handling one of the Wright biplanes that those in the automobiles had seen circle about. He began to descend at once, and just as the touring car of Col. Roosevelt stopped Hoxsey's machine landed close by, hardly fifty feet away, and the aviator stepped out and came toward the Colonel's automobile. The occupants of the other automobiles piled out of their cars and swarmed over toward the head of the column.

It looked for a minute or two as if there might be a mix-up, as nobody was paying any attention to the two machines still in the air, and the men from the motor cars made quite a crowd when they all got together as they straightway did with Col. Roosevelt's car as the objective point.

A company of Missouri National Guards which is doing police duty on the aviation field had a lively time getting order stored. And just when it had succeeded something happened which nearly upset them again.

As soon as he got his feet on the ground Hoxsey walked straight over to Col. Roosevelt's car. He knew Gov. Hadley, whom he had met some time ago at Indianapolis. He spoke to the Governor and the Governor presented him to Col. Roosevelt. The Colonel said that "by George" he was glad to meet the aviator, and there was some vigorous handshaking.

Hoxsey Asks Him to Fly.

Then Hoxsey drew back a bit and said, modestly:

"I was hoping, Colonel, that I might have you for a pasenger on one of my trips."

A broad grin of delight spread over the Colonel's face and his eyes fairly shone with pleasure. Gov. Hadley looked grave, and it was plain he hoped Col. Roosevelt would not accept the invitation. For a moment the Colonel did not utter a word. He simply looked at Gov. Hadley and the Governor looked at him. Then the Governor said:

"You're not going up, are you, Colonel?"

"By George, I believe I will," replied Col. Roosevelt.

The instant the decision was made he began to act on it. He grasped his dusty overcoat by both lapels and began to pull it off, at the same time rising to get out of the car. Gov. Hadley promptly jumped out, and Col. Roosevelt, leaving his overcoat behind, was on the ground almost as quickly.

By this time the National guardsmen had run Hoxsey's machine down the field for 75 or 100 yards to the starting place. Col. Roosevelt took Hoxsey by the arm and started off toward the aeroplane at full stride, Gov. Hadley walking along on the other side of the Colonel. Most of the crowd seemed to think that the Colonel was merely going to take a look at Hoxsey's machine. That was certainly the view of the four members of the Outlook staff, who had not heard the aviator's invitation and the Colonel's acceptance.

"Why, it can't be," exclaimed W. B. Howland, the publisher of the Outlook, when told that his "contributing editor" was going to fly after all, and "It can't be," echoed his two sons, and "It can't be," re-echoed Mr. Hoyt.

But meantime Col. Roosevelt had climbed into the passenger's seat in Hoxsey's machine. The National guardsmen had their hands more than full trying to keep the crowd away.

Col. Roosevelt sat in his place with a look of grim determination, but his eyes were sparkling with delight. Hoxsey had given him a gray cap to take the place of the old black slouch hat which the Colonel wears, and the hat had been passed to Gov. Hadley for safe keeping. The Colonel grasped a guy wire with each hand, the camera clicked merrily, and two or three moving picture men ground away with desperate energy.

Hoxsey tuned up the machine a bit, starting the engines several times and giving the propellers just a turn or two to see that they were working all right. The Colonel had changed his eyeglasses for a pair of spectacles and everything was ready. Hoxsey climbed into his place and grasped the levers. Then he asked if the Colonel was ready.

"Let Her Go," He Cries.

"Let her go," cried the Colonel, and Hoxsey gave the word.

The propellers began to whirl and the camera brigade fled precipitately. The soldiers at the machine began pushing, and the aeroplane moved forward over the ground. In an instant it was going as fast as the soldiers could run. They let go with a final shove, and Col. Roosevelt was off on his first experience with an aeroplane.

It was evident that the Colonel's 200 pounds told, for the machine did not rise as quickly as it does when only Hoxsey, who is a slight chap, is in it. But about fifty yards from the starting point the aeroplane responded to the impulse of the rudders and left the ground.

For some time before this the great crowd in the grand stand and about the fence had understood that Col. Roosevelt was to make the flight with Hoxsey, and when the machine was seen moving over the ground a cheer went up. But when it actually rose above the earth that cheer became a tremendous roar that continued for several seconds until the aeroplane was well up and Hoxsey had begun his first turn at the corner of the field.

He rose steadily on the swing up the field until he attained a height of probably fifty feet. Then as he turned at the second corner he settled down a little closer to solid ground. When he turned down again at the far corner and came directly toward the crowd in the grand stand there was at first a cheer and then silence. Every man and woman in the vast crowd seemed suddenly to be overcome with the same sensation of wonderment and sudden fear that something might go wrong, and that misfortune might befall the distinguished passenger in the machine.

In front of the grand stand he swung to complete the first round of the field and started across as if for the second round. But Col. Roosevelt had two speaking engagements to fill before going back to the hotel, and was due to dine with Gov. Hadley at 6:30, to say nothing of that eighteen miles of dusty road to cover again.

Makes an Easy Landing.

He was enjoying the experience to the limit, but after the first lap of a mile and a half he concluded that he had better quit. So he told Hoxsey to come back, and at the end of the second round the aviator dipped his planes and the machine descended easily, striking the ground without a jar near the Colonel's automobile.

The crowd yelled like mad. Those in the field rushed forward, each man striving to be the first to greet Col. Roosevelt as he stepped out of the machine. The National Guardsmen strove to keep them back, but utterly without success. They had only their bare hands to work with, having neither guns nor clubs.

As soon as he had got himself clear of the wires Col. Roosevelt shook hands with Hoxsey and thanked him for the ride.

"It was great," he exclaimed. "I wish I could have stayed up an hour. If I only had time, how I should enoy it!"

Then the Colonel turned and grasped the hand of Gov. Hadley. The crowd had pushed forward by this time, and dozens of hands were stretched out to grasp that of the Colonel. All the time he was repeating his expressions of satisfaction at the new experience.

"Did it feel scary?" some one asked.

"Not a bit! Not a bit!"

"What were your sensations?"

"Oh, it was perfectly fine. I enjoyed every minute of it. By George, it was fine. Great! I am so glad I went up."

Hoxsey went back to his aeroplane, and as the Colonel's automobile swung down the field to pass out at the gate Hoxsey was up in the air doing diving stunts to the great entertainment of his distinguished passenger.

Aerial Escort for Roosevelt.

Walter Brookins and A. L. Welch, the latter on an endurance trip, followed the former President's party in aeroplanes, while Alfred Le Blanc, in a Blériot monoplane, led the automobile procession. The aerial escort continued for almost two miles from the aviation field.

Brookins entertained the party by cutting sharp curves at dizzy heights and giving a miniature exhibition of his famous spiral glide. Le Blanc darted back and forth across the Colonel's path like a bee.

All the way back to town the Colonel talked about his experience to those in the car with him. He was tremendously enthusiastic about it, and over and again expressed regret that he had not been able to stay up longer. He reached the aviation field at 3:44 o'clock and his automobile turned out of the gate at 4:04. It was just twenty minutes from start to finish.

Then the mad procession back to St. Louis was taken up. Mile after mile the racing automobiles swept through the dust. There was a brief stop at Clayton, just long enough for the Colonel to mount the steps of the school house and tell a big crowd that had been waiting an hour or more for him that he had just been up in an American machine driven by an American citizen, and that it was a great and thoroughly enjoyable experience. Then he hurried on to the Fair Grounds park, where 10,000 or more boys and girls of the St. Louis public schools had been hoping for more than an hour that he would come and talk to them. As he hustled up the stand a man in the crowd touched his arm and said:

"Colonel, that's the first time you were ever up in the air."

"By George, that's so," responded the Colonel with one of his famous grins. And a moment later he was saying to the school children that "St. Louis is the only place that has ever put me up in the air."

It was already dusk, and the Colonel stopped only long enough to give the children a bit of good advice, to the effect that when they played they ought to play hard and when they worked they ought not to play at all. He told the boys to hit the line hard and have no mercy for the one who shirked either his work or his play.

Then he started on the last lap of the [illegible] trip. [illegible] people in the streets, who cheered as the procession went out, laughed openly as it returned. The women cried, "Look at their faces," and the children fairly hooted, but, dusty and begrimed as he was, it was a very happy Theodore Roosevelt who got back to the hotel from his first ride in an aeroplane.

"There's nothing left for him to try now," said one of his friends. "He's been down in a submarine and up in an aeroplane. That's about the limit."

"Yes," replied another, "and the next thing you'll hear now is that the Kaiser has tried a flight."

Auto Speed Law Lifted.

But the aeroplane flight was not the Colonel's only rapid experience of the day. On the way to the aviation field he broke the auto speed regulations of St. Louis.

There were about forty cars in line when the procession started from the Jefferson Hotel at 3 o'clock. Every car was loaded to its full capacity and in some there were more passengers than the plans called for.

Col. Roosevelt and Gov. Hadley, in a touring car, headed the column. The speed limit had been lifted for the procession, and no question had been raised about it. Chief of Police Young was along in one of the cars near Col. Roosevelt's, to enforce the fact. In truth, the policemen had all received due notice, and not only made no move to interfere with whatever speed the procession attained, but devoted themselves to seeing that nobody else interfered with it, and successfully kept everything in the way of trucks, carriages, other automobiles, men, women, boys, girls, and dogs out of the way for the entire trip out and back, except one unlucky fox terrier which was stretched out for good and all.

Every car in the Colonel's procession was decorated with small United States flags, and the sign of the flag was sufficient notice to all the policemen to get everything else out of the way and give the racers plenty of room.

Col. Roosevelt was scheduled to be at the aviation field at 2:30 o'clock, but he delayed his start after the luncheon given to him by the Traffic Club at the Jefferson Hotel to prepare his speech for to-night.

The aviation field is set down by the knowing ones eighteen miles from the hotel. Some of the speedometers this afternoon registered twenty for it. The first few miles of the way lie through the heart of the residential section of the city.

Cheered by Street Throngs.

St. Louis had been well informed that Col. Roosevelt was to pass that way, and the streets were lined on both sides with people, who cheered and waved flags at him as his big red car shot along. It was a great show which the long procession of automobiles made, each with its dozen or so of small flags snapping straight out in the breeze. But it was not often that the crowds had more than a glimpse of even those in the leading car. For the speed kicked up a perfect cloud of dust that hung over all those in the following cars, and often nearly enveloped those with Col. Roosevelt. Not even street cars were permitted to interrupt the flight toward the aviation field.

Every school along the route had been notified and all the children were marshalled in the street in front of their buildings, each waiving a small flag and all yelling at the top of their lungs as the parade swept by.

At Wellston, where the city ends and St. Louis County takes jurisdiction, the authority of Chief Young and his policemen ended, but that made no difference in the attitude of the authorities toward the speed record of the procession. The automobiles banged along at their best rate just the same and everybody else got out of the way. Wellston had turned out in full force, and the streets were lined with the crowds. But they hardly had time to give more than a good yell before the Colonel and a dozen or more of the following cars were through the town and out on the other side.

Nearing the Aviation Field the number of other motors and vehicles of different kinds in the road increased, but such was the fame of the procession that every one of them promptly pulled out at the side on the approach of Col. Roosevelt's car. Some of them even went into the ditch in their haste to get out of the way. But with all this speed and dust there was not a single accident. Once or twice a tire went flat, but it happened always at a point where the procession had slowed down a bit for bad roads and the car was able to retire gracefully and without danger to the others.

After his return to the city from the Aviation Field Col. Roosevelt went to the hotel and had a few minutes in which to remove the grime of the automobile ride before dining with Gov. Hadley and going to the Coliseum.

HOXSEY STORY OF FLIGHT.

Feared He Would Never "Square" Himself if Roosevelt Should Fall.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 11.—"The Colonel's and my birthday are on the same date, Oct. 27, which always has given me a partial feeling toward him and strengthened my determination to take him up," said Arch Hoxsey after his flight with Col. Roosevelt this afternoon. "So when I was introduced to him, I said to him: 'Our birthdays are on the same date, Colonel, so you can trust yourself with me.' He smiled, and as soon as I saw his smile I knew I had him.

"Something was said about my trip from Springfield, and Col. Roosevelt said he envied me. I then said: 'Here is your chance to share it with me.' He replied, 'No.' 'Sure,' I answered. The Colonel then said: 'All right, let's not make too much fuss about it while I am getting into the machine.' Before I could get off the step of the automobile, where I was standing, the Colonel had his coat off, and was getting ready to follow.

"It seemed to me I was walking on air as I was crossing the two feet to get into the machine. I kept saying to myself, 'Now, Hoxsey, no funny business when you get this fellow up, because if you spill him you can never square yourself with anybody.'

"Roosevelt beat me to the machine and was crawling in among the wires when I got there. I had taken my seat and the signal corps boys had started the propellers when Dwight Perry, one of the newspaper boys, offered the Colonel a cap, he being bareheaded at the time.

"I slowed the propellers, and when the Colonel said 'All right,' I opened her up and we were off. I took the Colonel around the first lap without looking at him. We were up about 150 feet, when I felt the machine wiggle a little, and turning around I saw Roosevelt was waving his hat at the crowd in the pavilion seats. The noise from the propeller was so terrific I had to yell with all my lungs, 'Be careful, Colonel; don't pull any of those strings.' The valve cord was directly over his hand and the engine would have stopped had he pulled it a little. He turned to me and smiled broadly, showing his teeth, and said, 'Nothing doing.'

"By this time we had circled over toward the Doughnaught, and I heard him shout, 'War, army, aeroplane, bomb.' The rest of the conversation I could not catch, but the Colonel was eyeing the smoke curling from the Doughnaught with the keen eye of a man who saw the real battleship that could have been put out of business with a bomb.

"In another minute we were back to the starting point. I had carefully avoided flying over all objects so that had there been any trouble with the machinery I could have glided to the earth without danger to the Colonel.

"When we landed safely I felt as though some one had cut off the high pressure on my heart valve, and I was never so glad of anything in my life as when the signal corps boys approach showed that we had come to a full stop.

"When the crowd gathered around us the Colonel and I were separated for a minute or two, but he reached over the shoulders of several people and said, 'Hoxsie, you're all right. It certainly was the biggest day of my life.'"

ROOSEVELT EXPLAINS HIS VIEW OF TARIFF

Stands on the Platform of 1908 and Believes Logrolling Must Be Stopped.

FRESH ATTACK ON TAMMANY

Again Talks of Lobbyists at Rochester—Suggests That Railroad Rate Increases May Be Justified.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 11.—Col. Roosevelt again took up the subject of the tariff and the method which he believes should be followed in revising it, and defined his views on the subject in a speech at the Coliseum here to-night. Ever since he said at the meeting at the Brooklyn Academy of Music a week ago that if he had the writing of the tariff plank of the Saratoga platform it would have been written differently he has been pressed to put into writing just the form of tariff plank he would have liked to see adopted. He has steadily refused to do so, and only this evening declared again that he could not undertake to do such a thing, but would make his position clear in his public speeches.

At the Coliseum, which was crowded to its limit, in the course of a general political speech, devoted largely to the new Nationalism, he took up the tariff question and had this to say:

Stands on the 1908 Platform.

"As to the tariff, it seems to me that the situation is much clearer than some people would have us believe. I fully admit that there was a time when, if our opponents had acted with reasonable wisdom, they could have made us trouble. But they let the opportunity slip by, and they did not act with reasonable wisdom.

"The Republican Party is united on the doctrine officially set forth in its National platform two years ago, that the tariff shall be such as substantially to equalize the cost of production here and abroad. As the cost of production is mainly labor cost, this means primarily that the duty should be great enough to continue to give to our laboring men that higher standard of wage without which there cannot be that higher standard of living which primarily distinguishes the American wage worker from the wage workers of all other countries.

"Now, not only is this the doctrine of the Republican Party, but I believe it is the doctrine of the overwhelming majority of the American people. I do not believe that any section of the American people at present seriously advocates free trade or a tariff for revenue only. I most emphatically do believe that if any such issue is raised there will be an overwhelming decision in favor of the policy of such measure of protection as that above outlined.

"Now the question is how to achieve the purpose thus explicitly declared. It seems to me, and I think that more and more it seems to the people of this country, that the methods hitherto obtaining in making all tariffs for a great many years past are ineffective in correctly and justly applying the protective principle as outlined above. We wish to give proper protection to each given business, and, above all, to the workmen in each given business, as a matter of right and justice and not as a matter of favor or preference, and, above all, not give proper protection as a matter of favor or preference obtained by log rolling.

For a Tariff Commission.

"Therefore, we feel that there should be a Tariff Commission, composed of impartial experts amply equipped for obtaining, not merely from statements of interested parties but by such investigations as will satisfy them that the facts are accurate, information that will enable Congress in each given case to establish the measure of protection necessary to carry out the principles above set forth.

"Moreover, these investigations should form a programme, each successive report being treated on its merits, so that each schedule can be revised by itself in accordance with the facts developed by this commission of impartial experts, and without any heed being paid to any other consideration than the justice of that particular case. This will prevent log rolling, and it will also prevent the far-reaching disturbance of business which necessarily comes when all the schedules are revised in lump.

"Finally, I feel that it should be the duty of some Government body at any time to investigate conditions in any particular industry to see that the workmen do actually get the benefit the tariff is primarily created to give—that is, to see that the laborer gets his full share of the benefit of the protective tariff in accordance with what I firmly believe to be the purpose of the American people.

"By enacting into law such a policy as that above outlined we shall on the one hand do away with the danger of injury to American industries, which would follow if they were left wholly without protection from foreign competition, and on the other hand we make it sure that the laboring man will get the benefit of the tariff primarily enacted in his interest, do away with the favoritism and log rolling which under present conditions seem inevitable in the process of tariff making, and make it certain that the amount of protection granted in each case was the amount actually necessary to cover the difference in the cost of production here and abroad, and not so exclusive as to represent improper favoritism to any special group of men."

"I think that the surest way to prevent an agreement is to indulge in useless recrimination about the past. You remember the present tariff was made up by exactly the same methods that its predecessor was made, and that the predecessor's Democratic predecessor was made by exactly the methods that have obtained in tariff making for an indefinite number of years."

Wall Street and Tammany Hall.

Col. Roosevelt began his speech by commending Gov. Hadley as "an upright and fearless public servant."

"Gov. Hadley," he continued, "has represented that kind of party loyalty in which I most believe, the kind of loyalty to the party which finds expression by seeing to it that that party is the most loyal servant of the people as a whole. And so I am glad indeed to come here to-night to speak in this great State. And I have a peculiar and added pleasure in it because I think that the conditions of your fight are substantially akin to the conditions of the fight we are making in my own State.

"In New York State our opponents call themselves the Democracy. They have the very slenderest relation to any historic National party bearing that name. For in New York State what calls itself Democracy consists in reality of an unholy alliance between Wall Street and Tammany Hall. It is enough to make Andrew Jackson of Tennessee and Tom Benton of Missouri turn in their graves to realize what the organzations are that claim to be their spiritual heirs and representatives at this present day.

"And as it is in New York so it is here in Missouri, the genuine party of the people, the party that stands for popular rights, that stands for all the people, is the Republican Party; and the party of reaction and of Bourbonism, the party that represents the special interests and special privilege, is the party that arrogates to itself, forsooth, the name of the Democracy.

"I was interested in another pair of analogies between the situation in New York and the situation here in Missouri. One of the particularly Democratic papers of New York—it is Democratic with a string to it, and it represents the Wall Street Democracy, which is more sensitive to the pocket nerve than to any abstract principles—described very truthfully the Democratic Convention that registered the decrees of the head of Tammany Hall in nominating the present so-called Democratic ticket in New York.

It, after mentioning the fact that all of the candidates, including its own, by the way, came hat in hand to Mr. Murphy to know if he could not be good enough to nominate them, stated that what occurred in the convention was really of no consequence, because the only thing that counted was what went on in Mr. Murphy's room. It continued, saying the most sinister feature of the situation was the fact that you could not throw a brick in any direction without hitting a lobbyist or a corporation attorney. They all arrived before the delegates did.

All Big Crooks With Democrats.

"In New York the special interests, all of the powers that hope to keep or to acquire privileges to which they are not entitled, have gone with our antagonists, because they feel, quite properly, that in their ranks is the place for every man who believes in either crooked business or crooked politics, and especially in the alliance between crooked business and crooked politics.

"Well, I was reading the other day an account of what had gone on in the Legislature of your own State last year, and the author, speaking merely descriptively and without laying any special stress upon the matter, mentioned the fact that there was a large group of very influential lobbyists who were at the Capitol to antagonize the measures advocated by Gov. Hadley, and as a true piece of news the writer went on to say that this group of lobbyists included a far greater proportion of the genuine Democratic leadership of the State than was to be found in the entire Legislature.

"You know, the people of this State know, that I am speaking the simple and literal truth when I say that if you wish to see the reign of honesty continued in this State, if you wish to see special privileges denied to all men and equal opportunities, so far as is possible, secured to all men, you must continue in office the party which has as its head in this State Gov. Hadley."

Col. Roosevelt then turned to a discussion of "new Nationalism," every principle of which, he said, was to be found in the profession and the practice of Abraham Lincoln.

Col. Roosevelt closed his speech with a vigorous attack on the Democratic Party and an appeal to the people to support the Republican Party.

"Our opponents," said he, "stand for nothing. In one State they claim to represent a radicalism so extreme and so foolish that if there were any attempt to apply it in practice it would invoke the most absolute reaction. In other States they stand avowedly—or if not avowedly, they stand in reality, in spite of hypocritical professions to the contrary—for open reaction.

"They have no coherent policy. A party that nominates Mr. Bryan as a radical one year and Mr. Parker as an ultra-conservative next time, and then Mr. Bryan again, and then waits to see if anybody won't carry an election somewhere so they can nominate him again—that party has forfeited the right to the respect and support of independent citizens who seriously wish well to their native land.

"We have a coherent policy. We have had difficulties. We are settling them, not by a compromise of principles, but by coming together on a platform which is one of high principle and also one of proved efficiency. We ask you to support us. We ask you to support us in Missouri as in New York, because we preach the same doctrine in Missouri and in New York; because what I say to you is exactly what I should say in every State in this Union."

He Has a Busy Day.

The Coliseum speech ended the public activities of an extremely strenuous day. It began early with a breakfast at the Hotel Jefferson, given for the Colonel by the Business Men's League, a non-partisan organization of St. Louis business men. He was then taken for an automobile drive through Forest Park and about the city, getting back to the hotel in time for a little talk with some of his Missouri friends, including Gov. Hadley, and then going to a luncheon given him by the Traffic Club, an organization of shippers.

He said something that was highly pleasing to the few railroad men who were among the guests when he warned the shippers that the roads were just as much entitled to make a reasonable return on their investment as the shippers are to get a reasonable return for their money. He hoped that the shippers would find ways of working in harmony with the railroads.

Roosevelts and Earthquakes.

At a breakfast given by the Business Men's League of St. Louis this morning, the completion of the entire lakes-to-the-Gulf-deep-waterways project was prophesied by Theodore Roosevelt in a speech here to-day.

He said that his grandfather's brother built the first steamboat to go down the Mississippi, and that on the first trip he encountered an earthquake.

"There are people in my own city, especially those who reside in the shadow of Wall Street," he said, "who would feel that there was a certain appropriateness in having an earthquake when a Roosevelt went anywhere, especially west of the Alleghanies."

The Colonel said that the waterway would not hurt the railroads and that people should get out of their heads the idea that some one's profit meant some one's else loss.

"Whenever that is the case," he said, "I'd like to interfere with the profit. In no way do I help the honest business man so much as by opposing the dishonest business man."

Greater Control of Business.

Col. Roosevelt defended the "new Nationalism" in a speech before the Traffic Club of St. Louis at the luncheon this afternoon.

"One of the great difficulties in modern business," said Col. Roosevelt, "is that the enormous growth in business is often accompanied by the total loss of the personal touch. We have to accept the fact that the large corporation has come to stay; and yet the corporation is altogether too big to be allowed to manage itself without outside control and supervision. There must be established between them and the public a new relation to take the place of the personal touch which has forever passed away. There must be supervision by the Government.

"More than that, it must be one Government. You can't have 46 or 48 Governments in control. If you try that, some Governments will control them to their detriment and some Governments will be controlled by them to their detriment. It must be the Federal Government which will exercise a control that will be thoroughly efficient and entirely just.

"The people have a right to control their creations, and the corporation is the creature of the people. Having got that control, the people are bound to exercise it with justice and equity. I belong among those who feel that the Government should exercise much greater control than ever before over the great corporations."

He declared that "New Nationalism" was not opposed to the principles of the Federal Constitution.

INSTITUTE OF ADVERTISING.

Plan Suggested and Discussed at the Sphinx Club Dinner.

The first dinner of the Sphinx Club for this season and the 109th in its history was held last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. Instead of the chaff which so often enlivens the functions of this association of those interested in the advertising business, the guests—some 200 of them—united in a serious discussion of the proposed Institute for Advertising Research. It was launched by John E. Kennedy, who has but recently come to New York.

As Mr. Kennedy sketched it last night, the institute would gather all available data on advertising, data which would be at the service of future advertisers, to the end that futility and waste might be avoided by affording to these advertisers a basis of sure knowledge in the experience of countless others.

Mr. Kennedy appealed to the Sphinx Club, whose avowed constitutional objects are to "acquire and disseminate through the interchange of ideas a clearer understanding of the problems of advertising and the betterment of advertising" to lend the weight of its authority to the institute propaganda.

Other speakers discussed the subject, and some made offers of money to support the proposal. W. H. Ingersoll was particularly forceful in urging the feasibility of the institute.

In behalf of the Advertising League of New York he pledged $250 to help in the agitation, and read a telegram from Detroit, in which the National Association of Advertisers offered $1,000, provided $50,000 is obtained for the same purpose.

Other speakers were Alfred W. McCann, H. A. Moore, and Len M. Frailey.

Want Budget Cuts Enforced.

The United Real Estate Owners Association has sent out a circular letter to taxpayers and citizens generally throughout the city asking them to co-operate with it in an effort to bring about real economy in municipal expenditures in the future, and especially to hold the Board of Estimate to its promise not to increase next year's budget over that for this year. The association declares that its officers have attended all the hearings so far before the Board of Estimate on the budget, and they will take an active part in the hearings when they are held.

AEROPLANE CRIPPLED ELY GIVES UP FLIGHT

Unable to Get Necessary Parts—Pledges Himself to Reach New York Next Spring.

JUST LACKED A PIN PRICK

Vent Hole Was Stopped and That Is Why His Gasoline Would Not Flow Freely.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Eugene B. Ely, who set out from Hawthorne race track here on Sunday to fly in his 50 horse power Curtiss biplane into New York, for the $25,000 prize of THE NEW YORK TIMES and The Chicago Evening Post, the $5,000 offered by Clifford B. Harmon, abandoned his attempt at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon. He had gone just 32 miles, a series of small accidents having conspired to hold him back and keep him idle for hours in Beverly Hills on Monday and in East Chicago to-day while his mechanics tried to repair his injured biplane.

It was not until Ely received a telegram from Glenn H. Curtiss, who had left East Chicago earlier in the day for Chicago, where he hoped to find that parts of Augustus Post's four-cylinder biplane might be transferred into the big eight-cylinder used by Ely, that he announced he would abandon the trip.

If there were not tears in Ely's eyes as he acknowledged himself beaten for the moment, it was because, as he confided to his wife, he did not want to appear sensitive before the throngs, which had gathered in East Chicago to see him resume his flight this afternoon. That was what Ely expected to do, and but for some small steel braces in the under rigging his craft stood in a field just on the outskirts of the town, ready and fit for the long flight.

Ely Hates to Give Up.

"I hate to give up," exclaimed Ely again and again. "I never started anything yet that I didn't finish until I struck this thing. I tell you it hurts. But I don't see now what else I can do."

In his hand Ely held the telegram just received from Curtiss. It was brief and said simply: "No parts here for repairs. Boxes shipped, Wells-Fargo, to-night."

"The boxes are to crate up the aeroplane," explained Ely. "I suppose now it's the best thing to do. Even if I got started again I couldn't keep going with no repair parts. I guess this is the finish in little old East Chicago.

"But I'll tell you one thing, and I want you to see that THE NEW YORK TIMES hears it and believes it," he added to a TIMES reporter. "I'm going to fly from Chicago to New York and win THE TIMES prize. I'm going to make the trip before any one else can attempt it or can make a flight of equal length. All I need is proper preparation, and I don't think I had that here.

"I've got the necessary endurance and I've got the nerve. I'm fighting mad now, and I shan't sit back and let any one think that I gave up this trip for any reason other than plain hard necessity, the impossibility of continuing it further. If I could get new parts to-morrow I'd go on, though I know now that I couldn't reach New York inside of the required 168 hours.

Sure He'll Do It Yet.

"But I will do it sometime. Just tell New York that it'll see me dropping down on Governors Island one day next Spring, as sure as I'm alive here now. I'd make the trip sooner, except that I couldn't stand the cold weather. It's cold enough flying in high altitudes even in Summer, and so I've got to wait. However, my reasons will deter others from attempting the feat till Spring, and then I'll be ready to compete against any one."

A good day's work had been put in on the biplane before Ely received Curtiss's message, so early did the aviator and his men get to work on the craft. One result of the their examination of the engine was to disclose that in all probability a few particles of dust collecting around an oil-clogged pin hole in the gasoline tank had caused all Ely's trouble and had prevented him from heading toward Buffalo now. A pinprick would have saved him his troubles.

The pin hole is what is known as the air vent of the gasoline tank. Any one who has opened a can of olive oil by making a small hole in the top knows what an air vent is. Without a second hole in the top of the can the oil will not run. So as long as the gasoline tank was without the pin hole in its top the gasoline wouldn't flow along the pipe to the mixing chamber of the carbureter.

One of Ely's mechanics discovered this important little hole completely clogged with oil and dirt.

"There's the trouble, Gene," he called. "That's what held you back."

Ely looked and then turned away. He seemed utterly discouraged.

"What do you think of that?" he asked. "Just to think what that clogged pin hole has done. It must have been that which did it.

"Take Sunday. I started off with a full tank of gasoline and I hadn't gone more than ten miles when it quit flowing. I thought then that it was the needle pin in my new carbureter, and that might have had something to do with it; but it must have been the clogged pin hole which really was the trouble.

Why the Gasoline Failed.

"You'll remember I lost a lot of gasoline there, so that when I started off again on Monday and made 22 miles, there was practically a vacuum in the top of the tank. The gasoline just stopped flowing. Can you beat it for luck?"

But failure to make proper preparation for the long journey was responsible for Ely's failure as much as anything else. The aviator himself was exonerated from blame by his mechanics, for they pointed out that much of the work of getting ready for the long journey had to be done by others than Ely.

Persons here, who have followed the daily flights of last week with keen interest and were thoroughly well up on the conditions of the New York flight and the difficulties which would be encountered on such a trip, have realized for days that no proper preparations had been made for Ely's effort.

Aviator Is Quite Worn Out.

Ely was worn and tired from his two days of hard work, and aside from his disappointment at being compelled to give up, the airman received Curtiss's telegram as though it were a reprieve.

"Two days of the kind of luck I have had," he remarked, "will sap any one's strength. I feel as though I'd been pulled through a knothole. I got about four hours' sleep Sunday night and no more last night. Now I think I'll take a nap."

Mrs. Ely earlier in the day had come to East Chicago from Chicago to see her husband start off again. She returned with him to Chicago to-night. Probably they will go on to Cleveland, where an aviation meet is being held, although, as Ely cannot get his machine there in time he cannot fly. Mrs. Ely was as disappointed as her husband at his enforced failure, but she was just as certain as he that sooner or later he would fly to New York.

"And it won't be many months, either," declared Ely. "Just wait and see."

RYAN PRIZE CONDITIONS.

Rules Adopted for Flight from Belmont Park to Statue of Liberty.

The offer of Thomas F. Ryan of a $10,000 prize for the fastest flight from Belmont Park around the Statue of Liberty and return during the international aviation tournament at Belmont Park, Oct. 22 to 30, was discussed with much interest by aviators yesterday. The Aviation Committee has decided to have the contest on a certain day, but to leave it optional with each aviator as to what course he should follow in getting to the Statue of Liberty and back again.

A direct flight of this sort would take him over the populous sections of South Brooklyn, but as the total distance in that course is only thirty-three miles, as against sixty-five miles should he fly to the sea and up the harbor, it is altogether probable that all the contestants will take that route.

It was suggested yesterday by one who has seen much flying abroad that the drivers of the French monoplanes would probably make the flight at a great altitude, rising so high above the city that in the event of the motor stopping the machine would glide down to some open space where a landing could be made without serious danger to the machine or to those on the ground.

So great has become the demand for tickets for the international tournament that two extra rooms were yesterday opened at the tournament headquarters in the Fifth Avenue Building, and a force of men put at work there in reserving space and disposing of the tickets. Allan A. Ryan said last night that he expected every inch of vailable space in the grand stand and in the automobile parking sections would be disposed of before the gates are opened at Belmont Park on Oct. 22. Work on the aviation field is being pushed night and day, and very little now remains to be done except completing the hangars.

AERONAUTS HERE FOR MEET.

Four Germans and One Frenchman Arrive for International Event.

Four German aeronauts arrived here yesterday on board the North German Lloyd steamship Kronprinzessin Cecilie. They will represent Germany in the international balloon championship race at St. Louis Oct. 17. The visiting aeronauts are Capt. Hugo von Abercron of Cologne, who was her three years ago, and who was assistant at Oscar Erbsloeh of Germany; August Blanckertz of Düsseldorf, who will be Capt. Abercron's aid; Lieut. Hans Gericke of Berlin, and Lieut. Leopold Vogt of Saarsburg.

WELLMAN PLANS TO START TO-DAY

to-night were for all hands to report for duty at 4 o'clock to-morrow morning. The life guards and High School boys who are to assist in leading the America out of her shed agreed to be on hand at that hour, and a number of motor boat Captains agreed to stand by off the inlet wharves to assist in getting the equilibrator, which weighs a ton and a quarter and is 300 feet long, into the sea and attached to the America.

The work of launching, it is estimated here, will require at least two hours, and it is in this part of the cruise that Mr. Vaniman expects the greatest problems to occur. The great ship, larger in circumference than the Zeppelin models by fifteen feet, and 228 feet in length, will have to be swung to every point of the compass while a compass adjuster regulates the instruments which she is to carry. Men will hold her down while this work is being done, and in a wind the task, as Mr. Vaniman expresses it, will be harder than holding "ten thousand mad monkeys." The attaching of the equilibrator will compel another wait at the shore line in which muscle of men will be matched against the power of the wind in a fifteen-minute contest.

Airship's Crew Confident.

If both matters are successfully attended to the America's crew express little concern over what may happen afterward. Mr. Simon constantly refers to the America as a liner, and he is the most practical seaman in the crew and the most optimistic member about the chances for success.

Here is the text of Weather Director Moore's bulletin:

> Ideal day for a start. Moderate west winds along Jersey coast northward to New York. Will gradually shift to southwest winds, increase to brisk off the New England coast and onward to the grand banks. Clear weather assured but you must expect increasing winds farther north. You could count on three days westerly winds if you get away to-day and they will swing you along over the steamer routes. MOORE, 10:04 A. M.

Among several hundred automobilists who flocked to the America's hangar this afternoon were the officers and directors of the local company which built the America's hangar at a cost of $12,000 and expected a dozen trial flights to precede the final departure for Europe.

Owing to many reports that the company and Mr. Wellman were at odds its President, J. W. Salus, gave out this statement:

"We want it distinctly understood that we have now and have always had complete faith in the sincerity of Mr. Wellman and Mr. Vaniman, and the seriousness of the preparations, and want to do everything we possibly can to assist them in their gigantic undertaking.

"We consider that the honor of having this cruise start from Atlantic City will be worth a great deal more than any other consideration. We have a contract calling for trial flights, by the interest in which we hoped to recover the cost of erecting the hangar, but we cheerfully abrogate that clause since we feel that returning to the hangar with the America's equipment would be an added hazard, working against the success of the transatlantic effort.

"Rumors that our bills have not been paid have been industriously circulated. These are wholly untrue. We do not owe a cent and have money in our treasury. We feel honored in sharing with Wellman the sneers of doubting Thomases who have been as plentiful during the period of preparation for this experiment as for any other great achievement in the period of its untried hopes. We have seen the men daily through their long work and we know that if honest efforts give any fighting chance for success they are entitled to it."

J. Irwin, the Marconi wireless operator, left the hospital to-day on learning that Weather Director Moore had advised an early departure. He rejoined the crew, but was still limping from the sulphuric acid burn on his right foot which incapacitated him a week ago.

HER RAM WAS A BUTTER.

Farm Hands Therefore Gave Mrs. Albers's Pet Something Hard to Hit.

Mrs. Herman Albers manages a forty-acre farm in the flatlands along King's Highway, Flatbush, but Christopher, a large black ram, pastured there for several years, runs it. That is to say, Christopher did.

But—and Christopher could do that, witness some twenty bruised farmhands, who had ventured too near his Ramship's bailiwick—but Christopher did not run the farm yesterday morning. When Mrs. Albers—who alone stood on pacific terms with Christopher because she brings him meal each morning—whistled to him yesterday morning he did not come for breakfast. Christopher was gone.

Several of the older farmhands had decided the night before to give Christopher all the butting his ram's heart and ram's head could desire. They strung a three-foot log a foot thick on a tree in Christopher's butting quarters and then, standing outside the fence, began bobbing the log up and down. Christopher stalked down to a few yards of the dancing log, looked at it, and decided to give the strange and insolent bobber all the bobbing it wanted.

For six hours, as the moon waxed pale, the assembled farmhands held a jubilee outside the fence of the pasture around a genial and oft-filled can, watching the taming of Christopher. The log remained a log until morning.

It is not known whether Christopher's head was aching or his heart broken when he finally turned tail to the log and twisted out through an opening in the fence of his pasture. Mrs. Albers last night asked the police of the Snyder Avenue Station to help her find her ram, and a general alarm was sent out for it.

TIE UP NECKWEAR TRADE.

More Than 20,000 Strike for Better Pay and Working Conditions.

Eighty per cent. of the neckwear trade in this country is now tied up by the strike of 20,000 neckwear workers and cutters, it was admitted yesterday by the manufacturers. Members of the Custom Tailors' Union also went on strike, and will submit demands in a day or so. Jacob Shankman, organizer of the Custom Tailors' Union, said 20,000 went out. The strike fever, he said, also has seized the Trousers Makers' and Overcoat Makers' Unions, 4,000 of the former and 5,000 of the latter being on the verge of walking out.

WHOLE STATE WANTS TO HEAR ROOSEVELT

Demands for the Colonel's Campaign Speeches Come from Far and Wide.

GOOD NEWS FOR PRENTICE

Stimson's Speaking Campaign to Begin To-day When He Will Address Columbia Students.

As the Republican campaign continues it is becoming increasingly evident that it is Roosevelt's campaign, and that the Republican campaign managers intend to so make it. Another batch of County Chairmen came to Republican State headquarters yesterday to confer with State Chairman Prentice and Henry L. Stimson, the Republican nominee for Governor. They sent up a united cry for campaign speeches by the truculent Colonel in their respective bailiwicks.

"I have heard it from a dozen men, if I have heard it from one," said Chairman Prentice of the Republican State Committee after his busy day of conferring with up-State leaders, "that the voters up State are anxious to hear the Colonel speak. We will try to arrange a speaking schedule for him as big as he will stand for. The County Chairmen tell me that Col Roosevelt is exceedingly popular up State, and that as a result of his appearance in the campaign there is a movement among the young men to support the candidacy of Mr. Stimson."

The County Chairmen who called on State Chairman Prentice and Mr. Stimson were Arthur A. Blauvelt of Cayuga, Seymour Lowman of Chemung, James P. Hill of Chenango, Frank S. Sidway of Erie, Charles E. Nichols of Greene, Horace W. Fitch of Ontario, George F. Gregg of Orange, Harvey J. Donaldson of Saratoga, Luther C. Warner of Albany, and Charles A. Wieting of Schoharie.

"In many of the counties," said Mr. Prentice, after talking to his visitors, "they report prospective majorities much larger than those cast for Hughes two years ago. That is true, for instance, in Saratoga and in Albany County. Mr. Stimson was invited to address the Unconditional Republican Club of Albany (Mr. Barnes's organization) on Oct. 21, but I don't believe we will be able to arrange his speaking schedule so that he can be at Albany that night."

Mr. Prentice announced last night that United States Senator Elihu Root had called and discussed the campaign plans briefly with him. There is a possibility that Senator Root will make some speeches during the last week of the campaign.

State Superintendent of Insurance William H. Hotchkiss called at the Republican State Headquarters last night and volunteered his services as a speaker. He will make his first speech at the Brooklyn Academy of Music on Friday night. The Republican campaign managers were pleased to accept his offer for the reason that they believe he will be in position to make a strong appeal to the Hughes independent voters. Controller Clark Williams has also offered his services to Mr. Stimson. He called on the Gubernatorial nominee yesterday and had a conference with him.

It was announced yesterday that Mr. Stimson had added to his speaking engagements of this week. His first appearance will be at Earl Hall, Columbia University, this afternoon. To-morrow he will have a conference with the Republican district leaders in Brooklyn, and will also address the Young Republican Club, which is made up largely of anti-Woodruff independents. He will speak at the West Side Republican Club, the leading Republican organization on the upper west side, to-morrow evening. On Friday he will speak at Carnegie Hall, under the auspices of the Republican Club, and at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. These will be the first big meetings of the campaign.

George C. Carter, ex-Governor of Hawaii, has practically taken charge of the work at the Stimson headquarters, in the Hotel Manhattan. He was engaged in a trip around the world with his wife and had just reached this city at the time of the Saratoga Convention. When he heard that his friend Mr. Stimson, who was in his clas sat Andover and Yale, was being talked of for the Gubernatorial nomination he said:

"If he is nominated, I will stay here and pitch into the fight for the pure joy of it."

The news of the nomination came, and as a result the tour of Mr. and Mrs. Carter was temporarily interrupted, and is not to be resumed until after the ballots have been counted.

PARKER HITS AT ROOSEVELT.

Says He Is Misleading the Public and Plotting for Presidency in 1912.

Ex-Judge Alton B. Parker, who it is understood will be the heavyweight campaigner on the Democratic side in this campaign, called reporters to his apartment in the Hotel Essex, Madison Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, last night and gave out a formal interview. In the interview he attacked Col. Roosevelt as one who would seek for the purpose of winning control of New York State to deceive the public as to his Presidential ambitions for 1912.

Col. Roosevelt, he said, would issue a statement that he was not a candidate within a few days, but would not consider himself bound by it after the coming election, should the Republican ticket be elected.

Mr. Parker's prepared interview follows:

"Is it true that you are to take an active interest in this campaign?"

"Yes, it is true. I shall be in Indiana the last of the week, and am sorry that I cannot give all the time requested of me in that State. But I am obliged to return early next week to begin the platform work in this State, which the committee has assigned me.

"I am informed that Mr. Roosevelt has been advised by his friends that in this State the tide has set in so strongly against his New Nationalism, with himself as the steward of the public welfare in 1912, and thence on for the balance of his life, that he can only hope to save the situation for himself and his ticket by announcing that he will not be a candidate in 1912, and, further, that he has agreed to make such a statement within the next two or three days.

"There can be no doubt of the fact of his candidacy in the mind of any man who has watched his course; carefully read his speeches and note his almost brutal treatment of President Taft. From my knowledge of and experience with him I have no hesitation in saying that while the assurance will be given by him that he will not be a candidate in 1912, the purpose is to deceive the people of this State in the hope that they will elect his ticket.

"That done, he will accept the result as a command by the people of this State that he be their candidate. Then with the political machine under his control, nothing can prevent him from securing the delegates from this State. There is one sure way, and ony one, to avoid Mexicanizing this country, and that is to defeat his ticket now."

Mr. Parker is to take the stump against Col. Roosevelt and follow in his trail all over the State, leaving the other orators to follow Henry L. Stimson, the Republican nominee, and other Republican spellbinders. United States Senator Gore of Oklahoma wired his acceptance yesterday of the invitation to speak during the campaign in New York State, and it is possible that he will have the chance also of getting after Col. Roosevelt.

Among the other speakers who promised to be ready when called upon were ex-Judge D Cady Herrick and Martin W. Littleton, who is running for Congress in Col. Roosevelt's own district. During the afternoon Chairman Huppuch met about thirty up-State county Chairmen at the Hoffman House and went over with them the situation in their various districts. The State Chairman told his callers that he wanted an aggressive campaign conducted in every county in the State. They were told that more of the sinews of war was in sight this year than for many years and that there was every reason why a big Democratic vote should be polled.

The Executive Committee of the Democratic League held a meeting at its headquarters in the Fifth Avenue Building yesterday and arranged to participate in the campaign by appointing a campaign committee of fifty members, with Capt. John F. Ryan Chairman. Some of the men on this committee are William Temple Emmet, Stratford S. Corbett, John E. Cowan, Henry De Forest Baldwin, Montgomery Hare, Frank L. Polk, and Edward J. McGuire. The league is making arrangements to hold a mass meeting at Carnegie Hall on the evening of Oct. 25.

GOOD WORDS FOR STIMSON.

Many Congratulatory Messages from Men of Prominence.

Henry L. Stimson, the Republican nominee for Governor, has received hundreds of letters from prominent men assuring him of their support. These extracts from such letters were given out at Republican State headquarters last night:

JOHN HENRY HAMMOND, 40 Wall Street—Please accept my heartiest congratulations upon your nomination at Saratoga, and my best wishes for your success. I have been feeling quite pessimistic over the situation in New York State, but in view of your nomination it seems to me that the prospects are good, and I know of no one who would be a better standard bearer for the party than yourself.

GROSVENOR ATTERBURY, 7 West Forty-third Street—My congratulations—and one vote! The latter, I am frank to say, might have gone to a good Democratic candidate if they hadn't smashed the machine and picked you.

CLARK WILLIAMS, Controller, Albany—Allow me heartily to congratulate you upon your nomination for Governor of the State of New York.

Because of my deep interest for the past three years in matters connected with the administration of the State Government, I rejoice that so worthy a successor to Gov. Hughes has been chosen for this high office.

What knowledge and experience I have acquired in the public service are at your disposal, and I trust you will feel free to call upon me at any time if I may be of the least assistance. I feel confident of your success in November

HERBERT A. SHERMAN, 9 Pine Street—I want to congratulate you on your nomination for Governor. You are the only man that the Republican Party could possibly elect this Fall.

WILSON TOO BUSY TO DEBATE

But Suggests That He and Record Exchange Views by Mail.

Dr. Woodrow Wilson has set at rest all the gossip about his joint debate with George L. Record, a leader of the progressives and a candidate for Congress in Hudson County, in a letter received yesterday by Mr. Record, in which he explains why he cannot meet Mr. Record on the platform. But he suggests a literary duel that if it comes off will be widely watched in this part of the country. Dr. Wilson's letter to Mr. Record follows:

Princeton University, President's Room, Oct. 11, 1910.

My Dear Mr. Record: Senator Briggs's reply to my letter, the object of which I explained to you yesterday, is so evasive and inconclusive that it confirms me in the impression that we shall have to deal with one another as individuals and not as representatives of any organization of any kind.

I think I am right in assuming that if we were to engage in public debate the subject of the debate would really be our own individual views and convictions and not the announced programme of either party. Having authorized the Democratic State Committee to fill every date that is available for public use, so far as I am concerned, it seems impossible to give myself the pleasure of such a personal interchange of views in public

I am very anxious, however, to meet you with absolute candor upon the matters regarding which you are in doubt as to my position. I would esteem it a favor, therefore, if you would be kind enough to state the matters about which you wish to learn my opinion in a letter, to which I would take pleausre in replying in a letter which you would be at full liberty to publish.

From what I know of your views upon public questions, I think it very likely that we are essentially at one in regard to the substance of our views, and probably differ only in practical detail. Debate therefore would seem to be less suitable than a frank interchange of views in a form that can be very simply handled. Very sincerely yours,

WOODROW WILSON,

To the Hon. George L. Record.

BROKER AGAINST ROOSEVELT.

E. E. Clark Writes That He Hopes the Whole Ticket Will Be Defeated.

Edward E. Clark, a William Street broker, sent to the newspapers last night copies of a letter he had written to Congressman William S. Bennet in response to one from the latter asking Mr. Clark's support for his candidacy. Here is the letter:

Oct. 10, 1910.

The Hon. William S. Bennet, 2,005 Amsterdam Av., city.

Dear Sir: I believe I voice the sentiment of a large number of voters who have never before cast a vote for any but Republican candidates when I say that I hope the whole Republican ticket, from Stimson to Higgins, will be defeated as a rebuke to Rooseveltism and an expression of the dissatisfaction with Republican rule, from which the whole country has suffered for the last four years. Very respectfully,

EDWARD E. CLARK.

Daily Ledger Quits After Two Weeks.

The Ledger, which was to be a daily newspaper devoted to the interests of Tammany Hall and Democracy, according to its announcement a fortnight ago, when it began publication, has suspended. Thomas C. Quinn, the editor of the late Daily News, was the publisher and editor of The Ledger, which had an office at 88 Centre Street. Lack of financial backing caused the discontinuance, and the law forbade it getting patronage in the shape of city printing.

Stimson to Speak at Columbia.

On the same platform in Earl Hall, Columbia University, from which ex-Gov. Charles E. Hughes, Otto Bannard, and other public men have opened their political campaigns, Henry L. Stimson, Republican candidate for Governor, will speak this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Others who will address the meeting, held under the auspices of the Republican Club of Columbia University, are Job Hedges, Senator Brough, and Representative William S. Bennet.

"Tim" Sullivan Renominated Again.

Senator Timothy D. Sullivan was renominated at the adjourned convention of the Twelfth Senate District, held last night in the Sullivan Clubhouse, at 207 Bowery. In a talk to his constituents the Senator announced that he was in favor of obliging the suffragists and submitting the question of woman suffrage to a referendum. He also said that he at first was uncertain about accepting a renomination, but his friends had prevailed upon him to accept another term.

REGISTRATION FALLS EVEN BELOW MONDAY

EVERY BOROUGH SHOWS IT

Totals 75,612 Yesterday and 320,270 for the Two Days—Democrats See Republican Defeat in Lethargy.

The second day's registration figures will be a greater puzzle and surprise to politicians than were Monday's. In every district in Manhattan and in all but three or four in Kings County yesterday's figures fell far below Monday's.

In the five boroughs the figures were 35,000 less than on the preceding day. In Manhattan there was a falling off from the first day of more than 20,000, in Brooklyn of about 1,300, in Queens of more than 1,000, and even in Richmond of more than 500. The total registration in all the boroughs yesterday was 75,612, compared with 95,805 on Monday. In Manhattan the figures fell from 65,851 on Monday to 52,866 yesterday.

In every district in every borough, also, the day's registration was far below the second day of 1908, as was also the two days' registration. Democratic leaders yesterday saw in Monday's falling off indications of Democratic victory, on the theory that the party in power is always the loser in light registration. Republicans, on the other hand, pointed to the fact that the falling off was just as pronounced in the Democratic districts as in the Republican. Yesterday's figures are exactly along the same lines.

Every district, Democratic and Replican alike, felt the slump. The uptown Republican strongholds suffered just as much as the downtown Tammany strongholds, and the same was true in regard to all the boroughs. If anything, the Republican districts show a greater falling off from Monday's figures than the Democratic.

For instance, in one or two Republican districts the figures are more than 1,000 below the first day's, while in the Tammany districts the worst slump does not show more than 600 or 800 loss in a single district. The Democrats were sure that this was an indication that Republicans would remain away from the polls.

These figures show the registration of yesterday, and the totals for the first two days as compared with last year and the year before:

WOULD RE-CALL CONVENTION.

Foss Urges Massachusetts Democrats to Choose a Candidate for Governor.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—A reconvening of the Democratic State Convention not later than Saturday next for the purpose of naming a candidate for Governor who shall be finally accepted by the Committee of Four as the choice of the Democrats of Massachusetts to head the ticket was the suggestion made to-night in a communication to Chairman Frederick J. MacLeod of the Democratic State Committee by Congressman Eugene N. Foss of Boston.

Mr. Foss led on both ballots for Governor in the State Coonvention held last Thursday, and the Committee of Four, which was empowered by the convention to name a candidate for Governor, has been for several days in a deadlock for choice between Mr. Foss and Charles S. Hamlin, another candidate before the convention.

A call for a special meeting of the Democratic State Committee to consider "matters of grave importance" was issued to-night by Chairman Frederick J. McLeod. It is understood that the meetin gwill consider the proposal of Congressman Foss for another State Convention. The committee is summoned to meet at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon in this city.

The Committee of Four was in session only twenty minutes to-night, during which time it took the ballot for nominee for Governor, the deadlock remaining. Foss received two votes and Hamlin two.

TAFT OUSTED CHIEF ASSAYER.

Torrey Not Amenable to Discipline, Says the Mint Director.

Herbert G. Torrey, for thirty-seven years Chief Assayer at the United States Assay Office in this city, has resigned his post, to take effect Nov. 1. He attributes his resignation, which was requested by the President, to complaints lodged against him by a disaffected employe in his department of the Assay Office.

Torrey was said to be doing private work along with his Assay Office work. This, he said yesterday, was true, but he had done it under the specific permission of former Directors of the Mint. It was a privilege which had been enjoyed by his father, Prof. John Torrey of Columbia, whom Herbert G. Torrey succeeded as Chief United States Assayer here.

Mr. Torrey requested from the President an explanation of the request for his resignation, but was informed through the President's Secretary merely that the staff of the Assay Office here was to be reorganized.

The man whom Mr. Torrey says has worked against him is one for whom he obtained a place in the Assay Office thirty years ago, and for whom he obtained gradual promotion, with increases in pay from $2 a day to $6 a day

Regarding the private work which Mr. Torrey has done, he explained yesterday that part of it was done at outside offices in which he had an interest, and to a small extent at the Assay Office itself. When he got permission to do this private work, as his father had before him, he was told to use in this work his own materials, and he had done so, he said.

Torrey is the second official of the Assay Office of long service to resign his post in the last three years. Andrew Mason resigned as Superintendent three years ago, after fifty years of service, and was succeeded by Kingsbury Foster, who has since been succeeded in the post of Superintendent by D. P. Kingsford.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—"That's all nonsense," asserted Director of the Mint George E. Roberts to-day when shown an interview with Herbert G. Torrey, Chief Assayer of the New York office, in which the latter said that he had been given permission to do outside work.

"We found that Dr. Torrey was not very amenable to discipline," added Director Roberts, "and as we wished to reorganize the office his resignation was requested. Dr. Torrey's statement that his resignation was brought about through the backbiting of a subordinate is also an error."

SNUBBED CHILD RUNS AWAY.

Punished by Home Silence, Bertha Stock Takes Clothes and Disappears.

Because she had deceived her mother, thirteen-year-old Bertha Stock of 1,157 Jackson Avenue was given the "silence" treatment at her home all day Saturday and Sunday. On Friday she was to have gone to a new music teacher, but she was so attached to the old one she only pretended to go. To punish her, her mother and two sisters decided to snub her for a day or two.

On Sunday Bertha asked her mother to go to church with her as usual.

"I will go, but not with you," said Mrs. Stock, looking at a far corner of the room.

On Monday, when she started to go to Public School 2, 169th Street and Third Avenue, her mother failed to kiss her good-by as usual.

An hour later, while the mother and other sisters were away, neighbors saw the little girl return home. A few minutes later she departed again, this time with a little bundle of clothes under her arm. That was the last seen of her in the neighborhood.

When the mother and sisters returned they found one of Bertha's dresses, one of her elder sister's, and $3.10 were missing. The neighbors told of the child going away, but a search of the homes of all her relatives and friends failed to reveal a trace of her.

Mrs. Stock went to the Tremont Police Station last night to ask the police to help find the child. The girl is described as 4 feet 10 inches in height, weighing 85 pounds, with dark complexion, brown hair, and blue eyes, and wearing a pink dress, black stockings, and gun metal pumps. If she returns she will find everything except silence.

J. B. Greenhut, President of the Siegel Cooper Company, has been appointed by Gov. Deneen of Illinois a delegate to represent the State on the National Commission arranged for the semi-centennal anniversay of the battle of Gettysburg, which will take place in 1912. Mr. Greenhut enlisted on President Lincoln's first call for volunteers and fought in the battle of Gettysburg, where he was wounded in the right shoulder. He has a home in Peoria, thus maintaing his relations with the State of Illinois, although his business interests are identified with New York.

Dr. Irvine to Speak at Socialist Rally.

The Rev. Alexander Irvine, formerly associate pastor of the Church of the Ascension, will be one of the speakers at a meeting under the auspices of the Socialist Party, to be held next Saturday evening at Carnegie Hall. It will be Dr. Irvine's first appearance in public since he left the church, many members of which, it is expected, will attend. Charles Edward Russell, Socialist candidate for Governor, also will speak, and an organ recital will be given by Dr. Henry Dix Warren.

MRS. ALEXANDRE SUES.

Referee to Take Evidence in Secret in Divorce Case.

With the full consent of both parties Supreme Court Justice Guy appointed Stephen Callaghan, a lawyer, yesterday to take the testimony in secret of a divorce suit brought by Mrs. Sedonya Russell Alexandre against her husband, Francis V. Alexandre of 718 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Alexandre is a member of the New York Yacht, New York Athletic, Turf and Field, Larchmont Yacht, and Catholic Clubs. He is a graduate of Harvard University.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexandre were married fifteen years ago in Baltimore. For the last two years they have been living apart. They have no children. Mrs. Alexandre, it was said yesterday, has sufficient means to support herself and will not ask for a large amount of alimony. She has been living in Baltimore.

The name of the co-respondent in the case is not divulged, and she is said to be mentioned in Mrs. Alexandre's complaint as Jane Doe.

FRENCH RAILWAYS TIED UP BY STRIKE

Government Calls to the Colors 30,000 of the Strikers—Serious Results Feared.

MEN VOTED NOT TO OBEY

Navy Engineers Running Trains, but Their Number Is Indequate—Food Scarcity Threatens Paris.

PARIS, Wednesday, Oct. 12.—The French Government is again facing a serious strike situation.

The employes of the Northern Railroad went on strike early yesterday, and last night the strike spread to the Western Railroad, which is owned by the State. The indications are that to-day will see a complete tie-up in Northern and Western France.

The Government last night decided upon an important step in an attempt to break the strike. The official journal published a decree calling to the colors about 30,000 employes of the Northern Road. This immediately subjects the men to military discipline.

It is feared that the result of this action, which is regarded as an extreme measure, may be serious, as the strikers have voted not to respond to the order. They will base their refusal on the ground that the law provides for the mobilization of technical employés of the railroads only for the transportation of troops and materials of war. The law provides that reservists may be mustered for twenty days' service.

The strikes at the present time involve about 80,000 men. The strike on the Western road was voted last evening by 8,000 men employed in Paris and its suburbs. They count upon the national unions to tie up the provinces.

It is reported that the movement will possibly extend to the Eastern and to the Paris, Lyons, and Mediterranean lines.

As is usual in such circumstances, Paris is threatened with a scarcity of food supplies.

Freight, mail, and passenger transportation is partially paralyzed and a vast army of workmen in the Northwest are unable to reach their places of business. Many persons yesterday walked in to Paris from distant suburbs.

Naval engineers are taking the places of the strikers, but this number is inadequate. Troops are guarding various stations and important sections of the roads. Large military forces were hastily distributed on the first evidence that a strike had been declared, and additional troops were ordered out last night. The Ministry has placed the railroads on a military basis.

The strikers have voted to continue the strike until their demands are met, but they have requested a conference with the railroad officials.

The more conservative newspapers condemn the strike as indicating that the revolutionary General Federation of Labor is trying to absorb the railroad unions, but the Socialist press hails it as a commendable battle to obtain needed reforms.

There has been ill-feeling on the part of the employes for some time, owing to the refusal of the Northern Railroad to increase the wages of the men to a minimum of $1 a day and to grant other concessions. The demands of the employes are as follows:

First—A general increase in wages to meet the higher cost of living.

Second—A retroactive application of the employes' pension law.

Third—a more equitable division of work.

Fourth—The granting of one day off in seven for all employes.

Fifth—Employment by the month instead of by the day.

The demands originated with the under trainmen, the luggage handlers, and the ticket takers, but they were supported by the rest of the employes, as every branch of the service has some grievance.

When the strike began the Post Office Department hurriedly prepared an automobile service to carry the mails in the north. Several mail trains for Germany were unable to run yesterday.

The officials of the Northern road here ceased to issue tickets yesterday morning, as the managers feared that the few trains which left the terminus would be stopped and abandoned when the engineers reached their home stations. Most of the men who continued working yesterday morning hail from the provinces and simply took the opportunity to return home on their trains before joining the strike.

The strike took Paris by surprise. For a year or more the "Cheminots"—a fanciful epithet applied to all railway employes—have been demanding a minimum wage of a dollar a day, but although there has been continued agitation among the Northern road's employes and there have been frequent local strikes, the company and the public were not prepared for a widespread movement.

The local Northern terminus presented a remarkable scene yesterday. All the entrances and exits were occupied by soldiers armed with rifles and Municipal Guards and police with revolvers. The bridges over the tracks were strongly patrolled, as protection against possible attacks on the few departing and arriving trains. Military engineers paced up and down the railway lines.

The Cabinet assembled in special session yesterday and voted to place the Northern Railroad on a military basis and to utilize the engineers and firemen of the navy to insure service on the lines tied up by the strikers. Premier Briand, discussing the situation, declared that the strike was not of a political or revolutionary character, but, rather, was professional. He added that a majority of the employes were hostile to the movement and had been dragged into it by the strike leaders, who had determined to resort to intimidation anf violence.

The effect of the strike was immediately apparent yesterday on the Bourse, where railway stocks declined at the opening, and on the Bourse de Commerce, where sugar jumped 1f. and flour 50c.

Few acts of violence have so far been reported, but before daybreak yesterday the tracks at St. Quentin were torn up.

CRIPPEN VICTIM BURIED.

Murder Trial Next Week—Eminent Barristers Engaged.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The body unearthed in the cellar of the Hilldrop Crescent home of Dr. Hawley H. Crippen and declared by a Coroner's jury to be that of the doctor's wife, Belle Elmore, was buried to-day at Finchley by the Music Hall Ladies' Guild. On the lid of the coffin a plate bore the inscription, "Cora Crippen, died 1910, aged 34 years."

Despite the care taken to keep secret the day set for the burial, news of the ceremony leaked out and a curious crowd gathered. Street venders followed the cortège, offering for sale memorial cards bearing the name of Cora Crippen.

It is probable that the trial of Dr. Crippen and Ethel Leneve will be begun next Monday. The case was presented to the Grand Jury to-day by the Recorder, who reviewed at length the evidence presented at the preliminary proceedings.

The Recorder said he considered it doubtful whether Miss Leneve knew at the time that a murder had been committed, but he recommended that a true bill charging her with being an accessory after the fact be brought against her, as he was confident that every consideration would be shown to the young woman.

A bill in keeping with this recommendation and one charging Crippen as the principal will undoubtedly be returned.

Crippen will be represented at his trial by three barristers, the best known of whom are Alfred Aspinall Tobin, K. C., Unionist member of Parliament for Preston, and Huntley Eugene Jenkins. Two barristers will look after the interests of Miss Leneve. One of them is Frederick Edwin Smith, K. C., the well-known Conservative member of Parliament for the Walton Division of Liverpool.

RHENISH MINERS' RIOT.

Police at Remscheid Attacked with Stones and Reply with Bullets.

REMSCHEID, Rhenish Prussia, Oct. 11—Miners who made a demonstration to-day against the new black list issued by the employment agencies attacked the police with stones when the officers attempted to disperse them.

The police charged the crowd repeatedly, using their sabres freely. Volleys of stones from the windows of houses fell upon the officers, who fired into the windows.

A number of persons were wounded. Later, order was restored, and no further trouble is anticipated.

CHOLERA IN LONDON.

Inmate of One of the Rowton Houses Dies from the Disease.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—The first case of Asiatic cholera has appeared in England.

A man who lived in one of the Rowton houses (a series of "poor men's hotels") died in a public hospital last Friday.

The Directors of the hospital ascertained that it was a virulent case of cholera and are taking all possible measures to discover the cause and to prevent the spread of the disease.

Italian Cholera Statement.

ROME, Oct. 11.—In the past twenty-four hours twenty-two new cases of cholera have been officially reported. Two of these were in the Province of Bari, two in the Province of Campobasso, four in Caserta, five in Salerno, and nine in the Province of Naples. In the same period there were nine deaths from the disease.

SOUTHERN EARNINGS BETTER

Despite Wage Increase the Balance of Income Increased Materially.

The Southern Railway in its annual report, issued yesterday, shows gross operating revenues of $57,294,508, an increase of $5,106,401, and net operating revenue of $18,658,762, an increase of $2,039,686. The balance of income after the payment of charges was $5,757,018, an increase of $2,167,633, and there was deducted for additions and betterments $52,372, leaving $5,704,645 to be carried to the credit of profit and loss. The latter account was charged with $2,831,459 for discount on securities, with $404,648 for Tennessee Central Railroad accounts written off, and with $744,584 for miscellaneous net debits. The balance to the credit of the profit and loss account on June 30, the close of the fiscal year, was $8,685,959.

There remained uncovered at the close of the year $4,853,144 for discount on securities resulting principally from the large sales of development and general mortgage bonds during the year ended June 30, 1909. In addition to the discount charged against profit and loss $266,806 was charged directly against the income of the year. The charge against profit and loss for discount on securities this year, the report says, will materially reduce the amount to be charged from year to year against the current income of the road.

Increases in wages allowed by the Southern Railway to its employes increased its payrolls, the report says, by about $2,000,000 a year. No new construction work was undertaken by the company, but the work in progress was continued. Since June 30, 1909, to the date of the report, 355 new industrial plants were completed and 72 were in course of construction.

In his statement to the stockholders President W. W. Finley says:

"The success of the company under existing economic conditions depends largely upon its relations with the public, who are its customers, and these relations depend largely upon two things which the officers and employes can and will and do give for the company in ever increasing degree. These two things are solicitation and service."

At the annual meeting of the stockholders the retiring Directors were re-elected.

KAISER COLLECTS A $2,500,000 FUND

Announces He Has Obtained Subscriptions from Rich Germans for Berlin University.

FOR SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

Emperor Asked His Wealthy Subjects to Follow Americans' Example—University Centenary Celebration.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—Gifts from various persons, totaling $2,500,000, for the establishment of an institute for scientific research in connection with the University of Berlin, announced by Emperor William in his speech at the centenary celebration meeting to-day, are a direct result of his Majesty's appeal to wealthy Germans not any longer to lag behind Americans in educational philanthropy. The Emperor had for long regarded with envy the benefactions of Messrs. Rockefeller, Carnegie, and others in the United States, and never concealed his regret that rich Germans did not follow their example.

About a year ago his Majesty decided to do a little missionary work among his plutocratic subjects. He told them that the centenary of the University of Berlin would be an ideal occasion for the inauguration of an era of generous giving for educational purposes on American lines. Afterward he personally "buttonholed" a number of rich Germans whenever a favorable opportunity arose.

Herr Koppel, the millionaire manufacturer, was the first to take the imperial hint, and subscribed $175,000. Others followed with donations ranging from $25,000 to $125,000, until the aggregate reached the sum the Emperor was able to announce to-day.

The Berliner Tageblatt expresses the hope that the millionaires who now abound in Germany will no longer be content with the ignoble position they have occupied compared with Americans of the same class.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—The celebration of the 100th anniversary of the University of Berlin began to-day with a notable gathering in the commodious Aula. Royalty, representatives of the official life of Germany, diplomats, and scholars from most of the civilized countries participated.

To-day's principal feature was an address by Emperor William, whose particular contribution to the historic occasion was the announcement that the work of the university would be broadened by a foundation for scientific research. For this purpose, his Majesty said, he had collected from private individuals nearly $2,500,000. Natural science investigation, he said, had not kept pace with the literary and other scholarly developments at the university, and it was essential to create institutions where specialized scientific investigators could work free from the burden of teaching. The Emperor read his address from a manuscript handed to him by Prince Rupprecht of Bavaria.

The arrival of the Emperor, Empress Auguste Victoria, Prince Eitel Frederick, and Princess Victoria was announced by a fanfare and cheers and the beating of swords by the student body. Deputations of students from other German universities, all in uniform, were grouped about the platform. The Diplomatic Corps and the notables of the empire occupied seats in the centre of the hall.

Preceding the Emperor's address, the representatives of foreign universities spoke in turn, congratulating the university authorities on the long period of usefulness which the institution has enjoyed. President Hadley of Yale spoke for the American delegation, all of whom wore black gowns and mortarboards. President Hadley dwelt upon the debt which the United States owes to German scholarship.

Lord Strathcona, representing McGill University, Montreal, extended the felicitations of Great Britain and the colonies. Then followed the representatives of Austria, the Latin countries, Holland, Scandinavia, the Slav nations, Greece, and Japan.

At the conclusion of the Emperor's address the programme was closed with the singing of a Latin hymn by choirs stationed at the four corners of the Aula.

Many gifts to the university were announced to-day. These included $50,000 from the City of Berlin, $37,500 from Hans Meyer, the explorer, and from the widow of Ernst von Wildenbruch the rights to the publication of his works, valued at $25,000.

Emperor William bestowed titles upon many of the university body.

GUARDING KING MANUEL.

A Portuguese Arrested—British Royal Yacht for Deposed Ruler.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—A dispatch from Gibraltar states that a suspicious appearing Portuguese who arrived direct from Lisbon has been arrested.

Since the arrest special precautions have been taken to guard King Manuel.

GIBRALTAR, Oct. 11.—It is announced that King George has ordered the British royal yacht Victoria and Albert to proceed to Gibraltar to embark King Manuel and the Queen Mother Amélie.

LISBON, Oct. 11.—The Minister of the Interior, Antonio Almeida, questioned to-day regarding the disposal of the King's property, said that nothing had yet been decided upon officially. All the palaces had been closed and carefully guarded. They would probably be converted into museums or schools or used for other public purposes.

He believed that any property or palaces belonging to the King personally would be kept for him, but it was to be remembered that if the King left debts owing to the nation those debts must be satisfied.

SETTLING DOWN IN LISBON.

A Minor Crisis in the Cabinet Has Been Overcome.

LISBON, Oct. 11.—Although the city remains under martial law pending the reorganization of the administration, the soldiers have been gradually withdrawn from the streets. Hardly any were to be seen to-day. The people have resumed their business occupations, and tranquillity prevails. Several churches were reopened this morning.

A detachment of soldiers making the rounds at the Campolide Jesuit College this morning was fired upon. One of the men was killed and another was seriously wounded. The incident caused excitement, the people believing that the attack had been made by concealed Jesuits, but inquiry showed that it was due to a sentinel's mistake.

Guards have been supplied to those establishments of the religious orders which are still occupied and are flying foreign flags, in order to prevent possible attacks. The Papal Nuncio, Mgr. Tonti, has hoisted the Austrian flag over his residence at Cintra, but there was no sign to-day of hostile demonstrations.

The Government has announced that the Irish Dominican fathers and nuns, who have conducted a school here for many years, will be exempted from the order of expulsion. This step is doubtless due to the desire of the Republicans to keep on good terms with Great Britain.

It is said that Foreign Minister Machado has requested Great Britain to grant immediate recognition to the new régime, ostensibly so that the Government may be in a position to communicate its full programme to the British Government.

The casualty list of the recent fighting falls below the most moderate of previous estimates. The official statement gives the number killed as between 100 and 150. Unofficial estimates make the number still lower.

One of the plans attributed to the organizers of the revolution was to bring off the coup d'état on Oct. 5, when King Manuel was visiting the Premier in the northernmost province of the Kingdom. It was arranged that the train bearing the King should continue through to the frontier, and the soldiers there were to prevent the King from re-entering Portugal. In the meantime the Ministers, who would have assembled in a body at the station in Lisbon to see the King off, were to be surrounded and arrested after the departure of the train. The republic was then to be proclaimed.

The Provisional Government has taken possession of the houses of several religious bodies. There was no opposition. The contents were inventoried and the houses were sealed.

It has been decided to issue a decree ordering compulsory military service.

LONDON, Wednesday, Oct. 12.—The special correspondent of The Daily Chronicle at Lisbon sends the following:

"The republic is gaining in favor with the people, and the Provisional Government is doing its best to redeem the pledges the Republican Party made to the people in the days when the republic was only a dream.

"The Council of Ministers has carefully considered the whole situation, and as a result a minor crisis has already been overcome. Telles, who was credited with being a disturbing element in the Ministry, has relinquished the portfolio of Finance, and José Relvas, who is credited with being an able diplomatist with an intimate knowledge of foreign affairs, is likely to replace Machado as Foreign Minister. Machado was anxious to remain in the Foreign Office, but has bowed gracefully to the exigencies of party politics. It is now hoped that the ship of State will experience fairer weather and that internal discord will disappear. The outlook may be regarded as eminently hopeful."

NO REFUGE IN ITALY.

Monks and Nuns from Portugal Not to be Allowed to Settle There.

ROME, Oct. 11.—Advices mailed from Lisbon to Spain, and thence telegraphed to Cardinal Merry del Val, were received at the Vatican to-day, and confirmed the press dispatches that had told of the expulsion of the Jesuit and other religious orders from the Portuguese capital.

Up to this time the Holy See had entertained the hope that these reports were exaggerated. Nothing direct from Mgr. Tonti, the Papal Nuncio at Lisbon, had been received, owing to the prohibition placed upon cipher messages by the Provisional Government. The belief had been entertained at the Vatican that the new Government of Portugal would be considerate of the religious orders in view of the patriotic work which they had accomplished in Portugal and its colonies.

Father Francis Xavier Wernz, General of the Society of Jesus, conferred for a long time to-day with the Pope and Cardinal Merry del Val over the reports of the situation in Portugal. It was decided to use all possible means at least to save the property of the Jesuits and other orders.

The report that many religionists expelled from Portugal intend to find refuge in Italy has called forth a protest from the Liberal press, which maintains that this country is already overcrowded with orders, Rome having three times as many religious houses now as it had before the fall of the Papal temporal power.

A semi-official communication states that the Italian Government has adopted measures to prevent the religious orders which have been expelled from Portugal from settling in Italy.

RIOT IN VALENCIA.

Many Hurt in a Fight Between Clericals and Republicans.

VALENCIA, Oct. 11.—A violent collision occurred in the streets here to-day between Republicans and members of the Catholic Club.

Many persons were injured, and the police had to separate the combatants.

MADRID, Oct. 11.—The Republican and Socialist members of Parliament are arranging for a big meeting, to be held probably on Oct. 16, to celebrate "the triumph of the Republic of Portugal."

INSURANCE CONCERN'S METHODS QUESTIONED

State Department Doubts Some of the Statements of the Protective Holding Company.

NORMAN E. MACK IN IT

National Democratic Committeeman One of the Directors—Promoters to be More Careful.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The Protective Holding Company, which was organized last year with the ambition to dominate several large fire insurance companies, combine them and write "everything in insurance," has been receiving the attention of the State Insurance Department of late. In an official statement issued by the department today some methods of the concern are criticised and the public is warned against relying too implicitly on statements contained in one of the company's prospectuses.

The promotion methods of the Protective Holding Company have been frowned upon by the Insurance Department, and because of criticism by examiners the method of selling stock by personal interviews has been abandoned and the company is at present doing a mail order business through the firm of Wightman & Dudley of 439 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Although no reference is made to the fact in the department's statement, Norman E. Mack, Chairman of the National Democratic Committee, is a Director of the Protective Holding Company and others on the Directorate are up-State men, with the exception of Frederick S. Dudley of Wightman & Dudley, who is Vice President of the corporation.

The investigation of the holding company included an examination of the Protective Fire Insurance Company, recently incorporated, for the prospectuses of the holding company state that the money derived from the sale of holding company stock is to be used in financing the Protective Fire Insurance Company. The latter, says the Insurance Department, is as yet only a name, the funds with which it is to be supplied through the promotion of the holding company not yet being sufficient to complete the organization of the operating company.

At first the holding company's stock was placed through stock salesmen, under the general direction of Ira A. Manning, who is referred to as "an insurance promoter of experience." But recently Mr. Manning severed his connection with the Protective Holding Company, and, according to the report, is now contemplating the promotion of a fire insurance concern in New Jersey.

One of the early prospectuses of the holding company, so says the report, announced that one of the Directors was formerly Deputy Superintendent of Insurance in New York State, while the fact was that the Director in question held for a short time a minor place in the department.

The Protective Holding Company's methods, says the report, do not differ greatly from those of other companies recently investigated. The financial exhibit of the company shows that it has already disposed of 10,175 shares of stock at a total subscription price of $213,500. In cash for the sale of this stock the company has received $66,504, and the balance is secured by promises to pay.

The department states that the company's officials have arranged to carry on the promotion on a more economical basis, which the promoters hope will reduce the expenses of organization to an average of 15 per cent. But even on this basis, says the report, if the $400,000 company becomes, as the promoters hope, a $5,000,000 concern in the future, it will have to be promoted at an expenditure to its subscribers of between $600,000 and $750,000.

Mortimer L. Schiff Elected in Place of P. A. Valentine, Resigned.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 11.—Mortimer L. Schiff of New York was elected a Director of the Union Pacific Railroad Company to-day in place of P. A. Valentine of Chicago and New York, resigned. Other members of the board were re-elected.

The Union Pacific Land Company, a subsidiary of the Union Pacific Railroad, elected these Directors: W. H. Bancroft, R. S. Lovett, Maxwell Everets, William Mahl, Alexander Millar, and W. V. S. Thorne.

At the annual meeting of the Oregon Short Line to-morrow a plan will be submitted for increasing the capital from $24,460,100 to $100,000,000 in order to complete improvements and replacements and to extend branch lines.

WIFE OBJECTS TO LUXURY.

Clings to Tenement Life and Asks Freedom from Rich Husband.

Bernard Bernardini, a wealthy banker, was ordered yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Bijur to pay $400 a month alimony to his wife, Mary, pending the trial of her suit for separation.

The Bernardinis were married in 1886, when he was poor. As he made money his wife clung to her old style of life, and this led to disagreements, for Bernardini had social ambitions. Mrs. Bernardini left their luxurious home after many quarrels and went to live in lower east side tenement. Justice Bijur said:

"I am unfavorably impressed with the unfortunate detail, as well as the general tone of the affidavit of the defendant, who would make it appear that he had never done anything wrong, and that all the fault lies with the wife. There runs through the papers a sufficient indication that, apart from other considerations, the plaintiff has clung stolidly to the simplicity of their early life, when they were struggling against poverty, whereas the defendant has broadened in his views and aims concomitantly with the growth of his wealth and the importance of his business.

"While this may account for much of the disagreement between the parties, it does not detract from the wife's rights to be supported in accordance with the means, and to live at peace in their common home, and if, as appears to be the case here, she is unjustly compelled to live elsewhere, she is entitled to adequate maintenance pending the trial of her suit for seperation.

"Mrs. Bernardini's allegations are supported in large part by the affidavits of four of the children, and even with full allowance for the sympathy or prejudice which may have actuated them in view of the fact that they seem to have been continuously involved in the disagreements between their parents, I cannot refuse some weight to the confirmation lent by the affidavits of these four children or omit from consideration that only one, a boy of 13, sides with the father."

AGREEING ON COTTON BILLS.

Satisfactory Conferences with Representative of Foreign Bankers.

The sub-committee on bills of lading of the American Bankers' Association, following an informal meeting with Sir E. H. Holden on Monday evening, held a conference with the London banker at the Corn Exchange Bank yesterday afternoon to reach a definite understanding regarding cotton bills of lading. No agreement was reached, but the disposition on both sides was conciliatory, and an adjustment of differences, is was said, was proceeding most satisfactorily.

It is expected in banking circles that a modified form of guarantee on the part of the American interests concerned will be given and that the European bankers will recede sufficiently from the stand which they have taken to permit of a compromise. Assurances were given that the utmost good will is prevailing in the conference with Sir E. H. Holden, who is Managing Director of the London City and Midland Bank and Chairman of the London Conference Committee on bills of lading.

No meeting will be held to-day, but a further conference is to be held to-morrow. Within a few days it is hoped a definite solution of the important questions involved will be reached.

PHARMACISTS PROTEST.

Want Ban Taken from the Sale of Simple Medicines Without a Prescription.

The Board of Health was told yesterday by representatives of druggists and druggists' associations that the mothers in New York would not stand for governmental dictation as to whether they should give their infants paregoric, soothing syrup, or other "household" remedies.

About thirty of the leading retail and wholesale druggists appeared before the board, before which also appeared representatives of more than 1,000 retail dealers, and the officers of almost every pharmaceutical association in every borough of the city, to protest against the new amendment to the sanitary code known as Section 182. It reads:

> No cocaine or salt of cocaine and no morphine or salt of morphine, either alone or in combination with other substances, shall be sold at retail by any person in the City of New York except upon the prescription of a physician.

Dr. William Muir of 265 Nostrand Avenue, a Trustee of the Brooklyn College of Pharmacy, said that all pharmacists in the city felt that the new section of the code was too drastic and far-reaching, interfering seriously with the rights of

The petition states that the liabilities of the bankrupt are unknown and that there are no assets.

NO GROUND TO SUSTAIN IT

Reasoning for Classification Too Speculative to Meet the Constitutional Test.

Supreme Court Justice Bijur handed down a decision yesterday, pronouncing the new Private Banking act unconstitutional, and will sign an order within the next few days, restraining the State and county authorities from enforcing it. The law provided that small bankers who did not file a $100,000 bond in New York and Buffalo and a $50,000 bond in other communities would have to apply to the State Controller for a license, which he might withhold at his discretion. The successful attack on the law was made by James Lee, a curb broker. In his decision Justice Bijur observed:

"In the first place, it is to be noted that the statute distinguishes between persons of different degrees of wealth in that the conduct of this business is restricted substantially to persons who have a minimum of $20,000, rather than to persons of approved probity or sound judgment; and that a person who can procure a bond of $100,000 may remove himself entirely from the restraints of the act. This is a novel standard in our legislation.

"A classification in order to be relieved from the reach of the equality clause of the Fourteenth Amendment must be upon some reasonable ground—some difference which bears a just and proper relation to the attempted classification, and is not a mere arbitrary selection. I have not referred to any case in which a classification based solely upon degrees of wealth has been valid, but I can see that from certain points of view in the banking business, for example, in considering ability to issue credits, the possession of wealth may be regarded as some guarantee of responsibility and stability. Still, in the last analysis, it is the integrity and sound business judgment of the banker which affords to a mere depositor the assurance of the safety of his funds.

"But I find far greater difficulty in reconciling with the test established by the Federal Supreme Court, that provision of the present statute which limits its application to those bankers whose clients' deposits are of an annual average of less than $500. There is nothing to which my attention has been called in the report of the Immigration Commission (which inspired this legislation) which directly warrants this distinction. It is sought to be justified by the learned counsel for the defendants on the theory that the persons found to have been subject to the abuse aimed at by the statute are largely recently arrived immigrants, persons of modest means, i. e., with general deposits averaging less than $500 annually, who are less likely to be able adequately to protect their own interests than would be persons who make or have larger deposits.

"This argument, however, strikes me as one not based on any substantial distinction, sound or unsound. Merely because the commission has found that a number of small bankers have absconded with the funds intrusted to them by modest depositors it does not follow that bankers may be lawfully classified under a State statute according to the annual average of individual deposits, and those enjoying large deposits be relieved from making public the details of their business and from the other presumably wisely imposed burdens of the act. Moreover, though this may be of minor importance, it is quite evident that a person may have a small deposit with a number of bankers. Finally, I neither find in the report of the commission nor in my own experience evidence that depositors of small sums are less intelligent, able, or zealous in protecting their interests than are other depositors. My impressions are rather to the contrary.

"I have the highest appreciation for the good intentions and beneficient motives of the promoters and framers of this legislation; but in respect of the particular provision now under discussion, I believe that the reasoning advanced for the classification is too speculative and the classification itself too adventitious to meet the test of constitutionality hereinabove set forth."

Justice Bijur also upholds the objection that the statute is unconstitutional because it vests the Controller with arbitrary power to say who shall or shall not be allowed to become a private banker.

BAN ON OIL DRIPPING AUTOS.

Commissioner Edwards and Hotel Men Promise to Try to Stop It.

In response to letters sent out by the National Highways Protective Society to garage and hotel proprietors and others to prevent the dripping of oil and gasoline from autos, particularly in front of garages and at taxicab stands, Street Cleaning Commissioner Edwards, wrote yesterday to Col. E. S. Cornell, Secretary of the society, that he himself is anxious to co-operate in the work it has begun. He says:

> We ought to compel motor-driven vehicles to be provided with drip-pans. I shall be glad to co-operate in any way to abate the nuisance. You can appreciate that it enters greatly into the question of street cleaning, and without the use of water it is almost impossible to clean the oil off. Besides, it is, I understand, very injurious to the pavements.

W. C. Muschenheim of the Hotel Astor, George W. Sweeney of the Victoria, the proprietor of the Breslin and George C. Boldt, of the Waldorf-Astoria wrote expressing sympathy with the movement and promising to give the matter careful attention.

Temple Beth-El to Run Omnibuses.

The Congregation Temple Beth-El, at Fifth Avenue and Seventy-sixth Street, is to run omnibuses for the benefit of children living on the west side who, the congregation feels, would attend the religious school of the church more regularly on Sundays if they had a more convenient way of getting there than is now offered by the street cars. The stages will call for the children, transfer them to the church, and take them back home.

DRUMMOND GRILLED AT BUDGET HEARING

Mayor Remains Silent While His Friend Is Sharply Questioned About Charities Department.

TAMMANY'S STRONGHOLD

Commissioner Admits There Is Much Waste in the Department, but Blames Inefficient Employes for It.

At the hearing held by the Special Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate in Borough President McAneny's office at City Hall yesterday on the requests of the Charities Department for next year, the management of the department was severely criticised. Commissioner Drummond, who is an old friend of Mayor Gaynor, was repeatedly baited by Controller Prendergast, President Mitchel of the Board of Aldermen, and the Borough President. The Mayor was present at some of the hearing, but took little part in the proceedings.

A good deal of significance was attached to the hearing by the people about City Hall from the fact that it is generally understood that Tammany has a closer hold on the Charities Department than on any other branch of the city government. Commissioner Drummond is a thorough organization man, and his Deputy, Frank J. Goodwin, is the Tammany leader of the Seventh Assembly District.

Commissioner Drummond submitted his budget estimate some time ago, but under the resolution adopted by the Board of Estimate calling for the keeping of next year's budget within that of this year it was sent back to him with instructions to cut it 10 per cent. The hearing yesterday was on the revised estimate.

The Commissioner explained that he had left his salaries and wages schedules intact, and had made the necessary cut in his estimates for repairs and supplies. He explained that if further reductions were made it would be impossible to build nine new buildings which are badly needed for the work of the department.

"Is it not true that there are two employes in the department for ever nine patients and inmates in its institutions?" asked Chief Statistician Hervey of the Department of Finance.

"It may be. I do not know," replied the Commissioner.

Dr. John F. Fitzgerald, the manager of the Charities Department institutions in Brooklyn, was then questioned. He declared that a great deal of the fault that is found with the department can be explained by the low grade of the majority of the employes. "Many of them get no more than $20 a month," said he, "and there are a great many who receive no salary at all, simply working for their board and 'keep.' I wish we could have fewer men and give them more."

"Have you made any cuts in your payroll?" asked President McAneny of the Commissioner, who was again examined.

"I have not," he replied. "I have simply been trying to increase the efficiency of the working force. I have not tried to save money so far and have made no real money saving."

"Why not? It has been done in other departments," persisted President Mitchel.

"If I should tell of some of the things I have been up against, you would be ashamed of yourself, Mr. Mitchel," replied Mr. Drummond hotly.

"Why would Mr. Mitchel be ashamed of himself?" asked the Controller.

"We all would be," replied the Commissioner, banging his fist on the table. "I don't care two cents for this job, but I intend to be humane as long as I am in it."

John Hammond, the engineer of the department in charge of repairs, was then asked how he arrived at an item of $25,000 for the repair of a roof.

"Why, that is my estimate," replied the engineer.

"How many square feet of roofing will it take?" asked the Mayor.

"I didn't measure it."

"Tell these gentlemen how you arrived at that estimate," thundered the Commissioner across the table.

"Why, I thought $25,000 would be about right," blurted out the frightened man.

Homer Folks, Secretary of the State Charities Aid Association, made a plea that no reductions in the budget of the department should be made which would hamper its work. The Controller assured him that this would not be done.

Mr. Drummond was instructed to prepare new schedules on his estimates for the committee and a plan of reorganization, and the hearing adjourned.

Farmers' Loan Extending Abroad.

A special meeting of the shareholders of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company will be held on Oct. 26 to approve the extension of the company's charter rights to operate branch offices in London, Paris, Berlin, and Rome, it having recently been ruled by the State Attorney General that specific authorization to conduct branch offices abroad should be included in the charter of New York State trust companies which establish such offices.

INDIANS CAN'T GET LANDS.

Court Rules They Cannot Reoccupy Acreage at Montauk Point.

The war between the Montauk Indians and the Narragansetts in 1660 figured in a decision handed down yesterday by Justice Blackmar in the Supreme Court of Suffolk County, confirming the purchase of Indian Field, at Montauk Point, by Arthur W. Benson from the Indians in 1879 and settling a dispute between the Indians or their descendants and Mr. Benson and his heirs and executors which had lasted nearly twenty years.

The suit was brought by this new chief, Wyandank Pharaoh, as head of the Montauks, against Jane Ann Benson and Mary Benson, as exutrices of the will of Arthur W. Benson; John J. Pierrepont and Henry R. Hoyt, as executors and trustees under the will of Frank Sherman Benson; Mary Benson, the Montauk Company, the Montauk Dock and Improvement Company, Alfred W. Hoyt, the Montauk Extension Railroad Company, and the Long Island Railroad Company.

A valuable tract of 1,200 acres contiguous to the Long Island Railroad was in question, and both "King" Pharaoh and the Benson estate were represented by batteries of lawyers. Charles O. Maas was attorney for the Montauks, assisted by Lawrence W. Trowbridge, while the various defendants were represented by Daly, Hoyt & Mason, Austin & McLanahan, A. T. Mason, P. Tecumseh Sherman, and Joseph Keany.

In his opinion filed yesterday, Justice Backmar recites that the Montauks and their descendants had lived at Indian Field for nearly 250 years. The inhabitants of East Hampton, the owners of the fee of the land subject to the Indians' rights, never disputed these rights, but, by a long course of dealing, recognized them.

Between 1885 and 1894 the Indians individually conveyed to Mr. Benson all their title and claim to any rights on the land for themselves and their heirs forever. They also agreed, the defendants' counsel asserted in court, not to set foot on Indian Field again as long as they lived. For all this Mr. Benson was to give them from $100 to $250 each for his rights of occupation at Indian Field, the only exception being the present Chief Pharaoh, who, being an infant, got only $10 as his share.

Mr. Benson also agreed to give them from five to forty-five acres of land each at Freetown and East Hampton, to move them and their shacks from Indian Field to their new hunting grounds, and to settle upon them an annuity of $240 in perpetuity, this sum to be divided per capita among the members of the tribe.

The Indians still own and are now occupying the land and houses at East Hampton, and are still receiving the $240 a year set apart from Mr. Benson's estate. But about 1895 the Indians began to wake up to the conviction that they were carrying the heavy end of the bargain with Mr. Benson.

In their suit the Indians went so far as to allege criminal fraud in the manner in which they were induced to part with their lands. They asserted that their right to Indian Field was a tribal one, carved out of the original Indian title; that they were under a disability to part with their rights, and that up to the time their rights were purchased by Mr. Benson they preserved a tribal organization.

Fourteen Montauks appeared at the hearing as witnesses. These, they admitted, were the only Montauk men living except two.

Justice Blackmar based his decision that Mr. Benson's purchase was valid, and that the title to the land was legally passed to him, on the continuance in force of the famous patent granted in December, 1686, to the Freeholders of East Hampton by Gov. Thomas Dongan, giving to the inhabitants of East Hampton the exclusive privilege to purchase the occupation rights of the Indians in Indian Field and other Montauk tribal lands. Mr. Benson, the court says, had bought the fee of the land from the East Hampton inhabitants and the rights from the Indians themselves.

TIMES SQUARE MUSIC HALL.

Plans Filed for the Follies Bergeres in Forty-sixth Street.

The new music hall to be erected on the South side of Forty-sixth Street, in the Times Square theatrical section, is to be known as the Follies Bergeres. It is being erected for Henry B. Harris and Jesse Lasky, and will be immediately in the rear of the Gaiety Theatre, having a frontage of 85.8 feet on Forty-sixth Street.

Herts & Tallant, the architects of the new theatre, filed their plans yesterday with the Building Department. The cost will be $120,000. The building will be four stories high and will have a façade of terra cotta entirely devoid of windows, ornamented at the top with a massive panel of pressed cement extending across the entire front and which will be decorated with allegorical figures representing comedy, drama, tragedy and music. The orchestra and balconies will have a seating capacity of 672 and the interior will be attractively decorated.

ART MUSEUM NOW SHOWS ANTIQUITIES

Cesnola Collection of Cypriote Works Classified by Prof. J. L. Myres of Oxford.

Collection Comprehensively Arranged by Noted Archaeologist—The Metropolitan's Most Important Work.

The important Fall announcement of the Metropolitan Art Museum is that the Cesnola collection of Cypriote antiquities has been carefully examined by an expert archaeologist, Prof. John L. Myres of Oxford, England, labeled and classified its authenticity verified, and is now thrown open to the public, comprehensively arranged, so that it can be seen to best advantage and comprehensively studied. In giving out this announcement yesterday Acting Director Edward Robinson made a few remarks regarding the collection and the work done on it the last year, which he said was the most important from an educational point of view that the museum has ever done. In his remarks he mentioned the reflections once made upon the Cesnola antiquities.

There was a rumor which became public some years ago, that the Cesnola collection did not contain genuine antiquities, and through this rumor, which many people credited, Mr. Robinson explained yesterday, the subject of archaeology became so unpleasant that it was difficult to find any one willing to give money or influence for museum work on that line, and the feeling was never entirely lost. This being so, the Museum felt the importance of having the collection put in the hands of an expert for examination to verify its authenticity for the benefit of the public, and to obtain more exact data concerning it. Prof. Myres is the greatest authority on the art and civilization of Cypress, and since last Spring he has been at work on the collection, which he pronounces the largest of its kind, and in most departments the most varied, in the world, a type series of the principal forms of pottery, sculpture, and works of Cypriote art and industry.

The rearranged collection is to be found in Rooms 41 and 42 on the south side of the museum building, the room known as the Cesnola Room, where the collection has previously been exhibited. Only the best and most typical examples are now to be found in the room, and in another room below it, which will be known as the students' room, people further interested will find other examples with which to carry on their researches.

"Gen. Cesnola," said Mr. Robinson yesterday, "was the United States Consul to Cypress. He was not a trained archaeologist, but he was an Italian with a wide interest in the subject, and during ten years in excavations that were made, things that were brought him by the peasants and obtained in other ways he amassed a large collection. A part of it went to the museum in Berlin, part to the British Museum, but most of it came to the Metropolitan Art Museum.

"Gen. Cesnola had enemies who attempted to belittle the collection. There was nothing established, but the name archaeology became popular in New York. There was no proof of faking or unauthenticity, but the collection rested under a cloud, it was badly marked, and this was the state of affairs when the present Directorship took charge of the Museum. It was felt that the suspicion was entirely unjustified and that a high authority should be called in to prove it absolutely, as well as to supply the necessary data to give the collection its proper value."

This is the enormous task upon which Prof. Myres has been engaged, and in the near future a complete guide to the collection upon which he has been at work, and which has outgrown its original conception, will be completed. It will be a popular guide and handbook for students of Cypriote art. The Cesnola room is now arranged with the pottery on one side and the sculpture on another, among these the famous priest with the dove, with the finer show pieces in the floor cases near the divisions to which they belong. They are all classified in divisions and periods. In the annex to the room are the two sculptured sacophagi. The work of restoration which was originally badly done has itself been restored, and hidden beauties in the collection have been revealed.

The jewelry of the Cesnola collection is still exhibited in the gold room of the museum, the bronzes and terra cottas in the general collections, and the inscriptions are in the corridor north of the library.

An interesting exhibit which will open at the Museum Nov. 1 will be one of rugs to increase the public appreciation of those of the best periods of rug making, the fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth centuries. Some of later and better-known periods will be shown. There will be Turkish rugs from Central Asia Minor and Armenia, from Western Asia Minor, and from Syria. There will be an important group of Indian rugs of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries only recently differentiated from the Persian weaves by which they were influenced. The Kaiser Friedrich Museum of Berlin will lend a small but important rug from Asia Minor known in the literature of rugs as the oldest in history. This will be a loan collection, and among the names so far given of owners of rugs who are contributing are Benjamin Altman, Senator William A. Clark, Theodore M. Davis, Newport; John B. McIlhenny, Philadelphia; Dr. Denman W. Ross, Cambridge, Mass.; P. M. Sharples, West Chester, Penn., and C. F. Williams, Norristown, Penn.

NIGHT REALTY SALE SUCCESS

Good Prices Obtained for Hunt's Point Lots at Terrace Garden.

More than 1,000 persons crowded into the large hall at Terrace Garden, Fifty-eighth Street, near Third Avenue, last night at an auction sale of 297 lots in the Hunt's Point section of the Bronx by Joseph P. Day. It was the first time in New York realty transactions that a large plot of city property has been auctioned at night. All the big Bronx and many Manhattan operators were present, but the women were there in large numbers and were active in bidding up choice parcels.

Both in attendance and prices paid the sale was a success, and it was after midnight before the last lot was sold. The bidding began before 7 o'clock, and by 10 o'clock 136 lots had been sold for a total of $265,575, an average of about $1,946. In many cases the prices were better than had been expected.

Brian G. Hughes obtained the cheapest lot of the evening for $875. He signed the purchase slip "Brian G. Hughes of America." It was an irregular shaped plot 25 feet front on Randall Avenue, between Hunt's Point and Bryant Avenues. The highest price for a single lot was $4,600, paid by Philip A. McQuade, for the southeast corner of Hunt's Point and Spofford Avenues, 55 feet on the former and 78 feet on the latter. James F. Meehan, who was one of the larger buyers, bought two adjoining lots on Hunt's Point Avenue for $5,200, and Alfred Jaretzki for five in the same row paid $13,125. Jaretzki also paid $4,050 for a large irregular shaped lot, 19 feet on Hunt's Point Avenue, 78 feet deep, running through to Coster Street, having a frontage there of 59 feet.

William Lowe bought five lots on Coster Street, a total frontage of 208 feet, for $4,625. He alsa paid $2,800 for a lot 25 by 100 on the northwest corner of Coster Street and Spofford Avenue. The southwest corner was bought by Joseph Levine for $2,450. Thomas Floyd-Jones got a large lot near Randall Avenue and Coster Street for $3,050.

Other buyers were Samuel Harris, Helen Strauss, Theodore K. Wilmerding, Morris Lazar, J. F. Kean, Edward H. Kellogg, Max Holtz, William Beck, Henry T. Schirmer, Robert Stevenson, and Alexander Smith. Fully half of the buyers paid the full amount of their purchases at once.

The property was a portion of the Morgenthau tract, a part of which was sold two years ago. A new factory of the American Banknote Company is nearing completion near the property.

Receivers for the Chicago & Southern.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Joseph E. Otis and Matthew Slush to-day were appointed receivers for the Chicago & Southern Traction Company, which operates an electric road between Chicago and Kankakee, Ill. The receivership was ordered on application of bondholders. The road is said to have defaulted on the interest of $2,500,000 bonds.

PAID $11,000 IN DUTY.

Amount Assessed on Goods Brought In by Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt and her daughters, the Misses Margaret and Barbara Cairncross Rutherfurd, returned to New York yesterday on the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinzessin Cecilie. They spent the Summer in Europe.

Mrs. Vanderbilt had no trouble with the customs officials, though it took nearly five hours for an appraiser and an inspector to examine the forty-five trunks brought in. Mrs. Vanderbilt declared $17,980 in foreign purchases, mostly gowns and hats. Upon them she paid some $11,000 duty. She had with her jewels to the amount of about $200,000, but on them she paid no duty, as all the articles were of American purchase or had been abroad at some different time.

Yesterday the product of any one of a dozen good clothing houses was good enough for the average New Yorker, like the Old World used to be for those who lived in it centuries ago. To-day Brill Clothes, because of the values that are in them, loom big above all other clothes, as the New World looms over the Old.

HARVARD ELEVENS IN HARD SCRIMMAGE

Coaches Put 'Varsity Football Men Through Stiffest Practice of the Season.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 11.—The Harvard football programme this afternoon embraced the stiffest scrimmage drive the candidates have been called on to do this season. Coaches and players went at a hard pace. There really were two scrimmages. Team A was in one of twenty minutes against the second team, and then the second team did ten minutes of scrapping against the team B, the A and B teams comprising the 'Varsity squad.

It was straight football almost entirely, but of the most vigorous kind. Team A made three touchdowns against the second eleven, while the only achievement of the latter was to gain one first down. Wendell and Graustein made touchdowns by rushing, and P. Smith made one by intercepting a forward pass on the ten-yard line.

There also was a scrimmage in which there was nothing but kicking between the A and B divisions. Felton and Ted Frothingham were the kickers. Felton booted the ball well. Ted Frothingham's knee is improving rapidly. He and Long, Bush, and Johnson, recent members of the injured list, were all in uniform, going through signals. Wigglesworth did not enter the scrimmage, nor did Perkins, the centre. Corbett was out in uniform, too. His latest visitation of boils did not keep him out of the signal work, nor out of an interesting preliminary stunt, in which the dummy was used to get practice in diving into interference and getting them out of the way. All hands were put through this drill.

President Lowell having declared a holiday for to-morrow, Columbus Day, lectures and recitations will be suspended, but not football. The second team is to play Andover College here and the freshmen visit St. Mark's school for a game. The freshmen look like a lively lot, and the result of their first game is awaited with much interest.

500 Students See Tigers at Work.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 11.—Five hundred students witnessed the practice of the Princeton football squad this afternoon at University Field. The 'Varsity lined up against the scrubs and had no trouble scoring three touchdowns. Goals were not attempted. Capt. Hart scored one of the touchdowns on a buck through centre, and Bluthenthal, 'Varsity centre, scored the other after recovering a fumble and running ten yards. The 'Varsity could do little gaining on their right side of the line, because of the defensive work of Riggs, "Doc" Hughes, and "Goldy" Wight of the scrubs. During the afternoon some individual tackling was tried, but several 'Varsity players were not sure of their tackles and the runners occasionally eluded them

Shifts in Annapolis Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Oct. 11.—Several shifts were made in the line-up of the Naval Academy team this afternoon, the coaches being dissatisfied with the work of some of the regulars in Saturday's game against Rutgers. The draw against Rutgers was very unsatisfactory and efforts will be made to develop a much stronger offense by Saturday, when the strong Washington and Jefferson team will be played. Dalton, left half back, and Erwin, quarter back, whose work Saturday was rather erratic, were transferred to the second team to-day and their places were taken by two four-class men. Nichols played at half back and McReavey at quarter back, and both did well. Dalton probably will regain his place, while there is more chance that McReavey will be able to oust Erwin, as he has shown marked ability since joining the squad. Variations of the forward pass plays were practiced assiduously to-day in an effort to increase the number of ground gaining plays, this being a marked weakness Saturday.

YALE'S RUSHLINE WEAK.

Coach Foster Sanford Takes Hold of Men to Brace Them Up.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 11.—Defensive work was drilled vigorously into the Yale 'Varsity team to-day. The weakness of the rushline has been a glaring defect in the games which have been played, and Coach Foster Sanford has spent two days trying to wipe out the fault. All the work was secret to-day. The scrubs scored twice, which is also the number of times the 'Varsity got over the lines. Greely was the scoring star for the second team and Philbin for the regulars. Several changes were ordered, which will be tried out in the game to-morrow against the freshmen.

The freshmen are the most powerful class team Yale has had in years and are regarded nearly the equal of the 'Varsity eleven. To-day Fuller was moved from guard to tackle and Young and Greenough, who weigh 235 pounds each, got the guard places. Kilpatrick and Francis were laid off in reserve for the game to-morrow.

The feature of the coaching was the presence of Foster Sanford in uniform. He played through a few scrimmages to illustrate his points. Jack Owsley and Dr. Fred Murphy, '97, were also here. Because of the heat, Head Coach Coy ordered the scrimmaging stopped after twenty minutes.

It was learned to-night that Yale and Harvard have come to an agreement about officials for their annual game. This year they agreed for the first time to act in conference with the Central Board of officials and the list has been referred to that body for announcement as amicably agreed upon. It is possible that the list for the Yale-Princeton game will also be chosen by the two universities acting in conjunction with the Central Board. Till this year, Yale has never asked the assistance of the board in the selection of officials for the important games.

Big Crowd for Yale-West Point Game.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 11.—The Army team's work to-day in preparation for the Yale game on Saturday was not of a very heavy order, and only a short scrimmage was held. The first team, however, showed an attack that crumbled the scrubs and scored a touchdown. Arnold's work at centre showed up prominently again to-day in breaking through and getting down under punts. Once he recovered a fumbled punt before the ends could reach it. Much of the practice consisted of practing field goals, and Dean booted over some clean goals from the thirty-yard line. The tickets for the Yale game will be issued to-morrow, and, judging from the applications for seats, a large crowd will attend. Two thousand six hundred tickets went to Yale and the Yale rooters will be located on the east stand directly opposite the cadets on the west side. The seating arrangements of the field have been changed so that the grand stand seats now run entirely to the ground, and this will eliminate the rows of benches that heretofore encircled the field in front of the grand-stand seats. The standing room tickets which have been so freely handed out each year to the throngs of less fortunate ones will this year be done away with, and no one allowed to stand in front of the stands

Cornell Practices on Alumni Field.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 11.—In the second scrimmage of this week the Cornell 'Varsity scored three touchdowns on the scrubs, getting all of the scores by the use of new football. The practice was the first ever held by a 'Varsity football squad on Alumni Field, and was attended by hundreds of undergraduates. The coaches were much pleased by the change from Percy Field, declaring that the team would work at least half an hour longer because of better light, and that the air was of better quality than down the hill. O'Connor played left half back in the absence of Robb, who is still laid up. He scored two touchdowns for the 'Varsity on a forward pass from the 20-yard line. Nichols made a 20-yard run from a forward pass, and Bates carried another one across. The 'Varsity played a hard game and the backfield line-up in old-style formation afforded a better interference for the runner than before. A change in the line-up which cause comment was the placing of Nichols at right end. He showed up strong on the defense, breaking up quite a few end formations. He also carried the ball well in forward pass plays. Blackwell and Zeller were tried at left tackle. Butler played for five minutes, but Smith ran the team most of the time. Capt. Simson and Bates were back in the line-up. A feature of the preliminary practice was the coaching of the 'Varsity men in blocking kicks.

Indians Defeat Gettysburg.

CARLISLE, Penn., Oct. 11.—The Carlisle Indians to-day defeated the Gettysburg College football team by the score of 29 to 6.

Attell and Kilbane Matched.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 11.—Abe Attell, champion featherweight, and Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, Ohio, were matched last night to box ten rounds in this city on Oct. 24. They will weigh in at 122 pounds.

ATHLETES OFF FOR SOUTH.

N. Y. A. C. Team and Others Leave for Championships at New Orleans.

Ten competing athletes representing the New York Athletic Club started yesterday afternoon for New Orleans to take part in the championship track and field meet of the Amateur Athletic Union. The men went via the Pennsylvania and Southern Railways, and are scheduled to arrive at the scene of the games early to-morrow.

Matt Halpin and Paul Pilgrim, assisted by Bernie Wefers, the trainer, were in charge of the Mercury Foot forces, and each had great confidence in the ultimate individual and team success of the men.

The men who made the journey, including those carded to go to-day, were Harry Gissing, 440 yards and 880 yards; W. Thomassen and H. J. Grumpelt, high jump; R. T. Edwards, 220 yards and 440 yards; Gordon B. Dukes, pole vault; Platt Adams, discus, running broad jump, and javelin; Fred Bellars and Eddie Fitzgerald, five miles; Con Walsh, hammer and "56"; J. F. Hartranft, 120 yards and 220 yards, hurdle.

Wilton C. Paull, the one-mile record holder was picked up at Philadelphia, where he is a student at the University of Pennsylvania. Harry Babcock, pole vaulter, who could not get away from scholastic duties at Columbia until this afternoon, starts then, as does R. Edgren, who is entered in the discus.

Others to make the trip with the New York A. C. boys were "Bob" Kammerer and Arthur McAleenan of the Winged Foot Club, "Jim" Duncan, Mohawk Athletic Club, discus; R. J. Egan, Irish American Athletic Club, half mile; J. J. Archer, Irish American Athletic Club, 100 yards and 220 yards, and T. Ryan, Irish American Athletic Club, who will start in the weights.

N. Y. U. Practices with Clinton Boys.

New York University lined up against De Witt Clinton's football men on Ohio Field yesterday afternoon for a practice game, and tried some of their trick plays on the High School boys. The teams were unevenly matched, the N. Y. U. men weighing considerably more than their opponents. The Clintonians had little opportunity, therefore, to do effective work, and were often thrown back for a loss when trying to advance the ball. Murphy, at half back, displayed remarkable speed in end runs, and showed himself to be a very clever man with the forward pass. The criss-cross pass never failed to work when Crawford and Wheeler were the receivers. Booth, who played end for a time, also took in the flying pigskin very neatly. New York has a rotary play through tackle which worked to perfection in yesterday's practice. It is more than likely that it will be used Saturday to considerable advantage. Hanneberger made another fine showing at guard, getting through the opposing line and often nailing his man for a loss. In Hanneberger Coach Olcott has developed a guard of exceptional worth. Last Saturday, in the game with Princeton, he considerably outclassed McCormick. He is in excellent condition, and will no doubt make another fine showing next Saturday. Yale's onside kick was a ground gainer yesterday, but his end run netted no little territory.

MR. DIX'S PERSONALITY.

Mr. JOHN A. DIX seems to be a man of just the sort now needed at the head of the affairs of the State. We think, with all respect for that gentleman, that he is likely to be a more efficient and useful Executive than Mr. STIMSON. In reputation for personal probity each stands high, and it is fortunate for the State that there is no marked choice on this score. But there is a choice, and one that well may be carefully considered, between the two types, that of the unusually successful and honorable business man and that of the lawyer who has honorably won similar success in his profession. For the duties, responsibilities, difficulties, and opportunities of the Governor's office the former type offers the greater security.

It is the business of this great Commonwealth that has gone wrong. There is no serious issue of State policy before the people this year. The cleaning out of corruption, the stopping of waste, the organization of the State administration in an efficient, intelligent, practical manner so that the interests of the people, their institutions and extensive public works shall be cared for faithfully and well—these are the object the people regard so far as the State is concerned. They are asking themselves which of the two candidates is the more likely to promote these objects, and we think they are reaching the conclusion that Mr. DIX is to be preferred. It is true, of course, that there are National questions of grave importance directly or indirectly involved in the election, but as to these the preference for Mr. DIX is clearly confirmed. Sensible and sober men, who see in him the safer and more capable administrator, will vote for him with all the more satisfaction because he is not the candidate of or personally or politically entangled with Mr. ROOSEVELT, or with the wild and shifting notions that that unstable politician chooses, at different times, to exploit.

The essential factor in Mr. DIX's modest, yet highly creditable, career is that his work has been both constructive and carried on with conscientious fidelity to unusually high and humane principles, applied quietly, with no blare of self-praise, but with consistent, persistent, and skillful care. This is shown in many ways. Two are especially noteworthy. One is his dealings with those in his employ. The basis of these is justice and common sense. He has steadily recognized the rights of the unions and the limitations of those rights. He has not found it needful to fight against or for them. From a business point of view he has looked upon the respect and confidence of willing and capable workmen for a fair employer, as a most valuable, available, and lasting asset, and he has attained and kept it. As a right-minded man, a Vestryman of his church, pledged to its ideals, he has made of this business policy a concrete expression of the Golden Rule. The remarkable success that he has had in this direction shows an aptitude for "the square deal," of which he has never boasted, but of which his fellow-citizens, in the present juncture, may well take note.

Another way in which Mr. DIX shows his constructive ability as well as his fidelity to a high standard in the conduct of his business is in his thorough and effective application of the radical principle of conservation to the large tracts of timber land which he controls. He so treats these tracts that they are continuously renewed and never wasted. Here also his shrewd business sense is reinforced by consideration for the public welfare. To the benefits of forestry conservation for which others clamor for legislation and political direction he has for years voluntarily contributed by his management of his own property. He has supported the political movement for conservation, of course, and heartily, but what he has done of his own motion, for his own permanent interest, is of great value.

It is this practical intelligence combined with sound moral purpose that the State needs. It needs that its business be put in order by some one whose standard is right, and who has the energy, experience, knowledge of men, and executive ability to make the standard work. It does not specially need a learned lawyer; legal advice can be secured. It does not need a reformer so zealous as to be narrowminded and lopsided. It does, we think, need very much the kind of man that Mr. DIX is, and, unless all signs fail, it stands a very good chance to get him.

WHAT SOME SHIPPERS THINK.

Not all the shippers are represented by the lawyers who are opposing the application of the railways for the Inter-State Commerce Commission's approval of the proposed advance in rates. There is, too, much dissatisfaction with the manner in which the case against the advance is being presented. The shippers' counsel are not so much presenting the case of the shippers as advocating the application to the railways of principles of business which the shippers would never consent to have applied to themselves. No shipper who would not consent to the limitation of his own profits to those proposed for the railways is honest in such an argument. No shipper who does not proportion his prices to his capital instead of to his costs can fairly contend that the railways should do anything so absurd. No shipper whatever would accept an attitude toward the wage question such as that which is being urged as a duty for the railways. In short, whatever the merits or demerits of the railways' case, the case for the shippers is bad for reasons of lack of candor and public spirit. No such case would be presented except for the idea that it is popular to nag the railways, and that "easy money" can be made or saved by going with the temper of the moment.

We are moved to these remarks because of the receipt of the following letter:

> St. Louis, Oct. 6, 1910.
> I was much pleased to read in an expression of opinion from President SHEDD of MARSHALL FIELD & Co. that, in his belief, prosperity awaits reasonable rate concessions to carriers.
>
> This has always been my position, and I have so publicly stated in print a number of times. The Simmons Hardware Company, which I represent, is, I think, the largest purchaser of transportation of any standard mercantile house in the United States, and I do not hesitate to say for them that we favor a slight advance and a reasonable concession in rates made to the railroads by the Inter-State Commerce Commission—believing that in the greatly increased prosperity that will follow we will participate to an extent that will fully equalize the loss we sustain in paying these increased freight rates.
>
> I thoroughly believe that we can never be prosperous until the railroads are prosperous—that our prosperity came with the railroads, and when they ceased to be prosperous our prosperity left us, and until it returns we will not again be prosperous in full measure, pressed down and running over.
>
> E. C. SIMMONS.

It may be doubted that there can be any higher testimony regarding the existence of a sentiment among representative shippers different from any expressed before the Commission. It is to be regretted that the Commission has not shown any disposition to evoke any but one class of testimony and argument. Volunteers against the railways have been welcomed, but we are not aware that the Commission has secured or invited any disinterested and expert testimony. For this reason the expressions of two such houses as the above are significant of much.

CARUSO'S INJURY.

CARUSO has suffered bodily injury and a large part of the civilized world awaits eagerly fresh information regarding its extent, and his chances of speedy recovery. A great deal of money is invested, directly and indirectly, in CARUSO's voice. Accounts differ as to the exact cause of his latest mishap. Either he was accidentally stabbed with a stage sword, or slipped and fell, injuring his knee. CARUSO is a heavy man, and if he fell on one of his knees, symptoms of synovitis may ensue. Still, an injured knee is not likely to affect his voice.

There is no other living performer in opera or drama whose disabilities would affect so large a number of his fellow-beings. A great majority of the people who have so liberally subscribed for the seats at the Metropolitan Opera House this year count most on hearing CARUSO. Managers and agents alike look to their connection with him for comfortable profits. The biggest and most compelling tenor voice in the world is a huge asset for its possessor and many others.

We have strong hopes that Mr. CARUSO's bad knee will not trouble him long, that it will not stiffen and compel him to adopt a manner of walking that might spoil the pictorial effect of his portrayals of Rhadames, Don José, and Lionel. But CARUSO can sing "Celeste Aïda" and "M'Appari" from a wheeled chair if necessary and still move the whole world to rapturous applause.

GLORIOUS COLUMBUS DAY.

This is the day we celebrate, not only in New York, but in New Jersey, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Maryland, California, Colorado, Illinois, Michigan, Missouri, and Montana. The roll of States is lengthening.

Who among the politician bosses of hyphenated citizens, who in the ranks of labor, who among the masses that "celebrate" this holiday cares a whoop for COLUMBUS?

AMERICANS AT OXFORD.

It might have been expected that, sooner or later, some Oxford man or other observant Englishman would complain that the American Rhodes scholars at Oxford are not furthering the good understanding between Great Britain and America as the founder of the scholarships hoped. In the selection of these scholars the testamentary instructions of CECIL RHODES have been carried out, we believe, zealously. So far as possible, the committees in the various States have endeavored to have the choice fall on American young men in whom literary attainments are nicely balanced by a taste for outdoor sports, men equally of strong manly qualities and high moral character, and, confessedly, inspired by the ambition to serve and lead in large public affairs.

While the method of selection differs somewhat in the different States, the result has been about the same in all. There are 100 American Oxford Rhodes scholarships, and they are all filled by well-meaning young men, who are possessed of a thirst for knowledge and a firm conviction that worth makes the man. We have seen a tribute to one of these young men in the newspaper published weekly in the town of his birth. It praised him for wisdom, prudence, religious fervor, and, especially, for high moral character. It said of him that he had never tasted beer or whisky, never smoked or chewed tobacco, (the snuff habit was not mentioned,) and that he was particularly good to his mother. Probably in two or three years of routine at one of the most rural of our colleges he had acquired enough discretion to suppress this testimonial before it gained circulation in Oxford. Otherwise he would have begun his three years there handicapped by the reputation of a prig.

Oxford, however, is reputed by a large and growing number of Britons to produce a priggish type of its own. The greatest of the universities in age, in historical memories, in beautiful surroundings, in traditions of learning, does not stand quite where it did in contemporary British esteem. But Oxford is mellow and finished. Three years' residence there, with the privilege of all its educational facilities, must improve any young man capable of intellectual improvement. The sons of rich men, who have enjoyed early advantages of travel and general culture, do not become Rhodes scholars. Inevitably the American Rhodes scholar is somewhat provincial, unsophisticated and diffident. He is poor, and as he thirsts for learning, he is economical. The aloofness the Oxford man complains of in the letter to The Daily Mail quoted in the special cable dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday is due not to indifference but to diffidence. The habitual Oxford manner which the stranger encounters is not reassuring or encouraging. The five Germans who enjoy Rhodes scholarship privileges are sophisticated, and, moreover, allowances are made for them that are denied to the Americans. The colonials were born under the Union Jack and go to their own famous University with a feeling that its advantages are theirs by right of birth.

The Rhodes scholarships were not fairly in working order until five years ago. It is too early to say that they will not further the good understanding between England and America. More time is needed. Thus far, the minds of some American young men have been broadened, and their scholarship extended, by the advantages they have enjoyed under the will of CECIL RHODES. "Oxford Man," and others like him, must be patient. The charge that the American Rhodes students at Oxford, or some of them, save part of their small income, $1,500 yearly, for Continental travel in the recesses, has been made before. This seems to stir the wrath of their British critics more than anything else charged against them. It seems natural enough for a poor young man to try to make his money go as far as possible, but good taste and the wisdom born of experience would prompt the recipient of a favor not to strain it too far. We have hopes that the American Rhodes scholar of the future will learn much from the experience of his predecessors, and will go to Oxford better prepared to make the best use, under the exact terms of the bequest, of Oxford's advantages.

NEW NATIONALISTIC "GRAFT."

Ex-President ROOSEVELT and President TAFT are directly at issue on a vital principle of the "New Nationalism." Mr. ROOSEVELT substantially repeated Monday at Hot Springs, Ark., what he had said at St. Paul Sept. 6, concerning the duty of the Nation to reclaim the vast areas of swamp lands within State confines. Here are the opposing statements:

Mr. TAFT.	Mr. ROOSEVELT.
Suggestions have been made that the United States ought to aid in the drainage of swamp land belonging to the States or private owners. * * * I deprecate the agitation in favor of such legislation. It is inviting the General Government into contribution from its Treasury toward enterprises that should be conducted either by private capital or at the instance of the State. In these days there is a disposition to look too much to the Federal Government for everything.	The only wise course is to have the Federal Government act. The land should be deeded back to the Federal Government by the States, and then it should take whatever action is necessary. Much of this work should be done by the Federal Government, anyway.

In Arkansas are 9,230 square miles of swamp; in Missouri, 3,810 square miles; in Louisiana, 15,980 square miles; in Mississippi, 9,000 square miles; in Florida, 30,000 square miles, and in all the States the equivalent of the combined areas of Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio which Mr. ROOSEVELT would have deeded back to the Federal Government, at nobody knows what expense in condemnation proceedings, so that the Nation may be at the further expense of draining them.

"When drained," Mr. ROOSEVELT said at Hot Springs, "it is a block of the most fertile land in the entire Nation." Then it will pay its private owners to drain it.

The private owners of this land would like to have it reclaimed for them at Federal expense. They are shouters for the "New Nationalism." So are the favorers of the immense "piecemeal" appropriation of $41,000,000 for rivers and harbors, with a commitment of $10,000,000 more—the Congressional "pork barrel." So are the beneficiaries of the Garfield Socialistic reclamation projects in the Western States, who are spending the Federal moneys like water, who demanded and got from the last Congress a $20,000,000 bond issue.

It is a plan of Federal Socialism which Mr. ROOSEVELT is pushing. He would support it by taxes on the incomes and inheritances of "swollen fortunes." His plan of levying these taxes ignores the Constitutional provision that the people of the small States pay their share, man for man, with the people of the large States. It exposes the small States, as Congressman MCCALL has pointed out, to the temptation of combining and plundering the large States. It commits the Nation to a scheme of public ownership and operation for the benefit of a legislative syndicate at Washington. It robs all the States of their means of self-respect and self-support to aggrandize a big and distant, slow, cumbrous, and costly bureaucracy.

But the drainage of swamp lands in the South is an inter-State matter, Mr. ROOSEVELT says. Just so. The conservation of "strategic areas" of watershed forests in the White Mountains and in the Southern Appalachians is also an inter-State matter. Both these matters can be well and amply taken care of by the States immediately concerned, acting initially through the House of Governors. In his address to the Governors at Washington Mr. ROOSEVELT showed how these "strategic areas" could be guarded by the States through the simple exercise of their police powers, without the expense of condemnation and purchase, with all the advantages of development under private ownership. He quoted approvingly this ruling of the Federal Supreme Court:

> The State as quasi sovereign and representative of the interests of the public has a standing in court to protect the atmosphere, the water, and the forests within its territory, irrespective of the assent or dissent of the private owners of the land most immediately concerned.

But how far from this sound doctrine has the "New Nationalism" swept Mr. ROOSEVELT!

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Nuisance Not Hard to Remedy.

Nobody who notices—as almost everybody has been compelled to notice—the condition of the pavements in streets much used by automobiles or where they are accustomed to stand, can fail to approve of the demand made by the Highways Protective Association for the passage of a city ordinance directing that all these vehicles be equipped with drip pans to catch the oil which they now scatter in such lavish profusion.

This oil, though a benefit to suburban and country roads so far as it affects them at all, is a most obnoxious nuisance when it falls on surfaces that do not absorb it. Not only are they rendered dangerously slippery, but the oil, in combination with the other products of street traffic, makes a kind of filth that ruins everything it touches, and, tracked as it is over the sidewalks and into shops and houses, its diffusion is extremely wide. Grievous tales are told of the gowns it has spoiled, and though it does do a little something in the way of laying dust, this advantage is obtained at a price altogether too high.

The evil is one easily preventable at little expense to automobile owners. Indeed most motor cars, when new, have one or another more or less effective device for catching the small amount of oil that necessarily drips from well-managed machinery, but careless chauffeurs allow the receptacles to overflow or to get out of order, and thus permit another count to be added to the popular indictment of a vehicle which, if properly handled, would be in all ways an improvement on any that preceded it or have survived its coming into general use.

Commissioner EDWARDS, alert to any suggestion for lightening his colossal task of cleaning the streets and keeping them clean, has highly commended that of penalizing the automobiles that drip oil, and he is a strong advocate of the proposed ordinance. With his aid, and with the other influence which the Highways Protective Association can bring to bear through every citizen with any civic pride and an appreciation of municipal cleanliness, there should be no difficulty in securing its passage. Then will come the question of enforcement, and an optimist can hope even for that—if he tries hard enough.

Education Spread Too Thin.

While defending, before the Board of Estimate, the employment of special teachers to give instruction in matters only recently included among the essentials of a common school education, Supt. MAXWELL made several statements which will—well, to put it mildly, which will not be universally accepted as conclusive, even when coming with his high authority. He said, for instance, that physical training was more important for the children than mathematics.

That is true in a way, of course, but it ignores the rather important fact that while the average child—to avoid the use of that absurd expression seems to be impossible—cannot learn mathematics conveniently anywhere else than in school, play, for children who have anything like half a chance to indulge in it, gives a large, and usually an adequate, amount of physical training of a sort incomparably better than the best to be obtained in a school gymnasium. The idea that, because a thing is good, therefore it should be taught in school, is not a sound one, though it seems to be held by many educators besides Dr. MAXWELL.

And again, when it was suggested to the Superintendent that perhaps all the foreign languages could be dropped from the curriculum of the public schools to the advantage of the children as well as of the taxpayers, he made the irrelevant objection that a good many of the parents would object. They would, no doubt, just as a good many of them have been misguided enough vehemently to demand that this or that foreign tongue—always the one they spoke in "the old country"—should be added to the already far too long list of studies. Not one of these demands, for German, Italian, French, or what not, should ever have been granted. To know any or all of these languages in addition to English is, of course, an accomplishment both pleasant and valuable, but the citizen of foreign birth or origin has at home almost infinitely better facilities for teaching them to his children than the public schools can possibly provide, and even if those schools could do as well, it would be at the cost of excluding or cutting down studies of vastly greater general utility.

The "three R's" are too much neglected, and until children are taught to read intelligently, to spell correctly, to write legibly, and to understand the fundamental operations of arithmetic, the teaching of foreign languages ought not even to be considered.

A Misuse of the Streets.

Among the other indications of an approaching election is the appearance here and there all over the city of little gangs of men utilizing official permission to dig holes in the pavements and erect therein tall poles from which to suspend "banners" vaunting the merits of parties and candidates. This is an ancient practice, and its age, so far as we can see, is the only and inadequate excuse for its survival.

As appeals to the intelligence these signs are of course absurd, and by no possibility can all of them put together ever have made or changed a single vote. As reminders that election is at hand they are superfluous; as art, so far as they run to portraiture, they are in the vast majority of cases demoralizing, degrading, libelous, and otherwise abominable. They are efficient only as another excuse for the collecting and distributing of campaign funds, while they obstruct traffic and add to its dangers, and they lead to a further tearing up of pavements that without them are disturbed with much more than sufficient frequency.

Among an illiterate people the election banners might be pardonable, but now and here they have no reason to be, and the first municipal administration that has the courage to forbid their elevation on and across public property will hear a loud and angry howl, indeed, from all the small politicians and some big ones, but it will get a permanent and commendatory line in local history as the bold destroyer of a long-standing evil.

Once stopped, the thing would never start again, and so would another step toward sense and civilization have been taken.

THE ORDERS IN PORTUGAL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The wholesale expulsion of the monks and nuns from Portugal, apart from its religious aspect, is surely an outrage upon the rest of the world. If the monasteries and convents are an eyesore to the new Government, it has a perfect right, as controlling the destinies of Portugal, to tear them down. If the Government wants to use the buildings, why not simply drive out the religious orders and occupy the structures? If, then, it cannot tolerate the nuns and monks, the Government should either imprison them or, cheaper still, execute them in batches as a popular amusement or a stern duty, as the case may be.

All these extreme measures are within the rights of the State, and no power outside can meddle with it. But when it comes to unloading on the rest of the world the 20,000 unfortunates against whom it has issued its ukase, it is guilty of an international crime for which it should be called on to answer. The thieves and murderers whom the revolution has suddenly brought to the front are certainly no worse than the Government they are troubling by the crudity of their mutilations of the clergy and the monks and nuns.

Let the facts be known and the issues frankly met. To the mind of a great many the new Government stands condemned for its atrocity, even as it comes into existence, and such Governments cannot stand with their mingling of idealism with robbery, but the question for us is, Shall Mr. Braga and his copartners be allowed to dump 20,000 Portuguese paupers on the world and not have to pay for it—somehow?

The Prophet of Evil.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I notice a letter in your to-day's issue signed "Ultimate Burns," wherein the writer laments the fact "that within ten years there won't be a blade of grass or a green leaf within twenty miles of Manhattan." "Punishment is coming!"

What's the matter with your correspondent? Has he got 'em again? Why, man alive, doesn't he know that if such a condition were really to exist we would be able to cope with it? Wouldn't we pull down Madison Square Garden and the Flatiron Building and use all the squares to plant grass in? Besides, can New York be ever destitute of "green" so long as the Irish are with us? (God bless 'em.)

Wake up, Mr. Burns, and think of the lines of your immortal namesake:

Oh, wad some power the giftie gie us

HARRY E. LOYD.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We learn from "Ultimate Burns" that mechanically produced electrical energy is "withdrawn" from the atmosphere; electricity causes the atmosphere to "attract" vapor; clouds can be "dried up"; the commercial production of electricity is a menace to the community, and in Manhattan will be the means of eventually destroying vegetation with a radius of twenty miles.

If the learned Mr. Ultimate Burns will write a thesis on the subjects of atmospheric phenomena and kinetic energy it will make interesting reading—for lunatics. C. P. FREY.

The President in Politics.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why will President Taft persist in embarrassing his friends by insisting on mingling in party politics? Why will he not remember he is President of the United States, not solely of the Republican party?

The daily dispatch from the "summer capital" says: "The President to-day renewed his assurances to send some of the Administration's best speakers into Ohio in the present campaign."

The President of the United States managing, as this quotation shows, a party campaign is a humiliating, if not a demoralizing, sight. Why will not the President maintain the dignity and reserve belonging to his position, and place himself in strong contrast with those whose feelings of propriety are a disgrace to the Nation? E. T. Kearny Township.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Begging Mr. Daniel Van Winkle's pardon, the township of "Kearney" (sic) was not added to Hudson County in 1840 or at any other time. The name of the added township is Kearny, so named in honor of Gen. "Phil" Kearny, U. S. A., a statue of whom stands in Military Park, Newark.

CHARGE RAILWAY CONSPIRACY

Grain Shippers Say Eastern Lines Seek to Bar Them from Water Routes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—A conspiracy on the part of railroads to deprive Western grain shippers of the advantages of cheap water transportation and to drive the grain transportation business from the great lakes is charged in a petition filed to-day with the Inter-State Commerce Commission by the Chicago Board of Trade.

The complaint is directed against the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, the New York Central, and seventy-four other railroads operating east of Chicago and to other Lake Michigan and Lake Superior points.

It is represented that "by reason of a conspiracy on the part of the defendant carriers, substantially all means of all-rail through transportation from Chicago to New York and other Atlantic seaboard points, and also all parallel and competing through lines of transportation via the great lakes from Chicago and other lake points to Buffalo and from Buffalo to New York and other Atlantic seaboard points, are owned and controlled by the defendant carriers."

Recently the freight charges on grain received at Buffalo from the lakes—called ex-lake—which had been in force for many years, were increased from Buffalo to Atlantic seaboard points. It is alleged in the petition that these rates are unjust and discriminatory, because they are much higher than the all-rail proportion from Buffalo to Eastern destinations, and that they deprive the grain shippers on Lake Michigan and Lake Superior of the benefits of cheap water transportation to Eastern points.

The commission is urged to protect the lake traffic in grain by restoring the lower ex-lake grain rates from Buffalo to Eastern points.

EVIDENCE OF LUMBER TRUST.

Federal Agents Find That Price Fixing and Blacklisting Prevail.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—To determine if there is any foundation for numerous complaints received at the Department of Justice, alleging the existence of a Lumber Trust, special agents of the department are investigating the operations of a large number of trade associations and other organizations in all parts of the country connected with the manufacturing and marketing of lumber.

Agents in Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, and some smaller interior cities in the East have turned in their reports. Complaints have been reaching the department from dealers and builders as well as individual consumers alleging that the price of dressed lumber is fixed by agreement and unduly raised by "powerful interests which control the lumber industry."

In some of the reports received it is represented that price fixing is not the most serious practice charged to some of the organizations. Charges of blacklisting, elimination of competition, and divisions of territory are made.

PEARY TO BE CAPTAIN.

Pending Retirement of Capt. White Will Raise Rank in Engineer Corps.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Commander Robert E. Peary, the arctic explorer, will be promoted to the rank of Captain in the Corps of Naval Civil Engineers on Oct. 20 as the result of the retirement of Capt. U. S. G. White on account of age. Naval orders to this effect were issued at the Navy Department to-day.

Rear Admiral John B. Milton, commandant of the naval training station at San Francisco, also will be placed on the retired list on Oct. 20.

THE NEWS FROM BRAZIL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read in yesterday's edition of a New York paper some references to Brazil that are far from true. The population of the City of Manaos, capital of the State of Amazonas, is not 5,000 inhabitants, but is about 40,000. The City of Manaos is situated on slightly undulating ground on the left bank of the Rio Negro, about five miles from the Amazon, where the river bank is higher and less swampy than in most places. It is lighted by electricity, paved with granite blocks, and has an electric railway and telephone service. Two iron bridges connect it with the suburbs, and the water supply from a forest stream is pumped into a reservoir and thence distributed to the town.

The same newspaper told us that the Brazilian Navy consists of six battleships, five protected cruisers, five torpedo boats, ten destroyers, and a score of smaller vessels. This is not true. The Brazilian Navy consists of four Dreadnoughts, the most powerful battleships in the world; three scouts, six protected cruisers, three schoolships, two submarines ordered, two battleships for coast defense, four monitors, twenty gunboats for the rivers Garona and Amazonas, and a score of old-style ships.

Our constitutional system is almost the same as that of the United States of America, but we have not what has been called "removal of the Governor by the President." The Governor of each State is elected by its people, and the President of the republic cannot act in such a way as to affect the sovereign rights of the State.

Neither is it true that some months ago the inhabitants revolted and seceded from Brazil. None of the States of Brazil has ever thought of separation from the Federal Union. Our democratic régime constitutes a strong and compact commonwealth, and Brazilian people are sufficiently well trained to know what is the rank and greatness of their fatherland among the civilized countries of the world.

The Pound Loaf.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is not many years since that the average weight of the five-cent loaf of bread throughout the city was a pound. The change to the present weight of the loaf, ten ounces, twelve ounces and fourteen ounces came in this way:

There was a large advance in the price of flour; the custom of the five-cent price for a loaf was well established; hence, to make a profit, the loaf was reduced to the weights as stated. But afterward when flour went down to the old price, and at times even lower, the weight of the loaf was not increased.

The recent move of the authorities for the correction of such abuses should be pushed to a successful conclusion. The people have for a long time been looking for the coming of the official with the pound weight and foot rule. When to the present high cost of living is added short weight and short measure the wrong done becomes a crime; and its first practical correction is the vigilant use of the standard scale for weighing articles for food of all kinds. REAL GOBLINS.

Once there was a little girl
Who tried to smuggle things,
And when the dock inspectors came
She up and hid her rings;
And when they asked her what she had
She just said, "Nuthin', Sir!"
Although she knew it wasn't true—
She had 'em all on her.
And when they had her searched, Oh, my!
They found 'em in her hair!—
And the Customs Men'll get you
Ef you don't de-clare.

Then there was a little boy
Who bought a lot of clothes,
And handkerchiefs and shirts and things,
And underwear and hose;
And as he landed on the dock
He looked just like a saint.
When asked if he'd bought things abroad
He said, "No, Sir, I 'aint!"
But when they opened up his trunks
The things they found in there!—
And the Customs Men'll get you

NOTHING TO JUSTIFY THEM

All for Benefit of a Few Manufacturers, Importers Say, and Has Nothing to Do with Producing Cost.

Paper importers in this city and throughout the country are roundly protesting to the Tariff Board, now sitting in Washington, against the high duties on paper of various low grades under the Payne-Aldrich act.

The importers assert that the act of 1909 increases the tariff on specified grades of paper from 100 to nearly 200 per cent., all for the benefit of a few mills in this country, whose owners appear to have great influence. One mill owner, who is said to have a monopoly of a certain kind of paper, is reported as boasting how he completely "froze out" his European competitors.

One of the protesting importers of this city is the Germania Importing Company, 41 Union Square. President Staber of this company sent a letter yesterday to the Tariff Board, coupling with his protest a comparison between the duty on various kinds of paper under the laws of 1897 and 1909.

This is the letter:

> Gentlemen: As the newspapers report that you are at present engaged in investigating Schedule M, pulp, paper, and books, I beg to call your attention to the following:
>
> In Schedule M of the tariff act of 1909 there is only one reduction of duty to be found, namely, on printing paper valued at less than 4 cents per pound. In discussions of Schedule M, printing paper rates only are generally referred to, while duties on the many other kinds of paper are not touched upon.
>
> Schedule M does not contain a single reduction of rates of duty on any of these other papers, but very large advances on many kinds. Such advances in most instances are concealed through changes of classifications, especially of such papers which formed the largest part of the importations under the act of 1897.
>
> To illustrate this I beg to enclose samples of
> A—Surface-coated Paper—Duty, act of 1897, 2½ cents per pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem, equal to 65 per cent. ad valorem.
> Duty, act of 1909, 5 cents per pound, equal to 100 per cent. ad valorem.
> B—Wrapping Papers—Duty, act of 1897, n. s. p. f., 25 per cent. ad valorem.
>
> Duty, act of 1909, 35 per cent. ad valorem.
> C—Wrapping Paper, showing so-called felt marks—Duty, act of 1897, n. s. p. f., 25 per cent. ad valorem.
>
> Duty, act of 1909, on "wrapping paper, decorated," 4¼ cents per pound, equal to 155 per cent. on the cost of this paper in Sweden, which is 2.90 cents per pound.
> D—Imitation Parchment Paper—Duty, act of 1897, n. s. p. f., 25 per cent. ad valorem. Duty, act of 1909, 2 cents per pound and 10 per cent. ad valorem, equal to 71¼ per cent. ad valorem.
> E—Transparent Greaseproof—Duty, act of 1897, n. s. p. f., 25 per cent. ad valorem. Duty, act of 1909, 2 cents per pound and 10 per cent. ad valorem, equal to 54¼ per cent. ad valorem.
> F—Imitation Onionskin—Duty, act of 1897, n. s. p. f., 25 per cent. ad valorem. Duty, act of 1909, 3 cents per pound and 15 per cent. ad valorem, equal to 69¼ per cent. ad valorem.
>
> G—Strawboard—Duty, act of 1897, n. s. p. f., 25 per cent. ad valorem. Duty, act of 1909, 35 per cent. ad valorem.
> I submit that these enormous advances in duties on these very ordinary and cheap grades of paper and strawboard, which are in daily use by all classes of consumers, are not justified by any differences in cost of production between Europe and here, plus a reasonable profit to the American manufacturers. Yours very respectfully,
>
> GEORGE STABER,
> President Germania Importing Co.
> New York, Oct. 11, 1910.

Importers say they appeared before the Ways and Means Committee of Congress when Schedule M was under consideration with strong argument for having the tariff remain as at present, but found their appeals falling on deaf ears. Mr. Staber's letter is a renewal of the fight before the Tariff Board.

TRUST CASES SET FOR JAN. 3.

Supreme Court to Have Full Bench for Oil and Tobacco Appeals.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Because of the failure to have a full bench in the Supreme Court of the United States a general readjustment of important cases, set last Spring for consideration this Autumn, was made to-day by the court. It was the first business day of the eight months' term.

The Standard Oil and the tobacco suits under the Sherman Anti-Trust law were postponed for rehearing from Nov. 14 to Jan. 3. The corporation tax cases, involving the constitutionality of the corporation tax provisions of the Payne-Aldrich Tariff law, which had been restored to the docket for rehearing before a full bench at an indefinite date, also was assigned for argument on Jan. 3. So were the cases involving the question of the correct penalty to be imposed on violators of the twenty-eight-hour law, regulating the shipment of livestock, and the interpretation of the national pure food and drug act.

The importance of the questions involved also led the court to postpone until January a number of cases set for argument to-day. The boycott and contempt appeals, arising out of the injunction proceedings in the District of Columbia, brought against the American Federation of Labor by the Bucks Stove and Range Company of St. Louis, Mo., were reassigned for Jan. 16.

The Justices were amused at an incident which occurred in the introduction of attorneys for admission to the bar. Lawyers from nearly half the States of the Union were presented to take the oath as counselors of the court. Instead of moving the "admission" of one of them a member of the bar, who evidently had come from a political convention in New York, said in his embarrassment:

"I move the nomination of Mr. ——."

The same mistake was made by the next attorney. It was more than the court could stand.

The smiles from the bench recalled the proper formula to the next attorney, and thereafter only "admissions" were asked.

Making Reduced Estimates $2,000,000 Below Appropriations for Present Year

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—If Secretary Ballinger's estimates of expenditures for the Interior Department hold good, the appropriations for the department during the next fiscal year, including pensions, will fall about $2,000,000 below the appropriation of $175,000,000 for the present year.

The estimates of the various bureaus of the department, aggregating $177,000,000, were submitted to the Secretary before he started West last week. In conference with various bureau chiefs the Secretary succeeded in reducing that amount to the extent of almost $4,000,000. Of this reduction about $2,000,000 will come out of the pension fund, because of the natural decrease of the pension rolls. The other reductions are distributed very generally throughout the department.

Food and Oil Exports Fall Off.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The exports of domestic breadstuffs, meat and dairy products, food animals, cotton, and mineral oils from the United States for the current year up to Oct. 1, according to the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor, amounted to $466,504,422. They were $512,578,173 for the corresponding nine months of last year.

'THE FAMILY' SLOWLY PROVES A PLATITUDE

HEAD OF HOUSE QUEER FISH

Sister Goes Wrong, Then Brother Takes a Job, Which Ought to Help Some.

THE FAMILY.—A play in three acts, by Robert H. Davis. Comedy Theatre.

John Sneed	Sam Edwards
David Sneed	John Westley
Ruth Sneed	Zyllah Inez Shannon
Paul Churchill	Thomas Meighan

The really immoral person in R. H. Davis's play "The Family" is the dunderhead of a father who stands up in the last act and impudently vows that he never will forgive his daughter who has sinned. Which leads one to wonder why Mr. Davis, in writing his apostrophe to the human bulwark, selected this particular kind of a family, and more especially this particular kind of parent. Conventional moralists will side with the father; people who think for themselves will probably feel like kicking him. But there he stands, dealing out righteous indignation, when any one with half an eye could see that with a different kind of parent the whole household might have told another story.

As it is, the ruin of the sister—who fell in love, not wisely, but too well, with a bearskin busby worn by the middle man of a minstrel troupe—had at least the saving grace of making brother settle down to work. And that, believe us, was worth while.

But in the meantime, however, mother's heart is broken, father's pride humbled, and brother's dope sheets put to better uses in the shape of paper dolls. The family has stood together, the minstrel man is dead, and there is a suitor somewhere in the offing.

Not the least peculiar phase of this play of Mr. Davis's is the scene in which mother tremulously inquires if father has told a belated suitor that daughter has been already married, and her satisfaction at knowing that the information has been withheld. For mother knew there was no wedding ring for her, yet mother still has hopes.

"The Family" is a curious blend of elemental things. It contains some amusing dialogue—though too much of it by far—some indications of shrewd observation touched with a sense of humor—and an occasional character, like that of the son, which, barring slight exaggerations, seems really modeled upon life.

What the play aims to do is to tell the story of a youthful village maiden lured by the glamour of the outside world, who falls a victim to a conscienceless adventurer, but who in the last resort finds a home in the heart of her family. "There is no bulwark like the family," says the dunderhead politician father, who divides his time between machine politics, the race track, and the pool table, and finds pleasure in seeing his growing son idle and wasting time in the same sort of profitable enterprises. And three acts, long drawn out, with occasional blind alleys of talk that lead nowhere, are used to prove the proposition.

This, as may be imagined, remains entirely obvious at the end as it has been in the beginning. Certainly no one is going to combat it. What one might reasonably ask is that Mr. Davis had selected a head to his family to command and justify respect, and that something more of skill in playcraft had been employed to develop the exposition of the platitude.

Of the cast employed, Mr. John Westley gives another of his well-studied and really graphic portrayals of the boy. This one—of the fresh village type, who speaks what is known as the "language of the live ones," dotes on bright socks and dollar ties, plasters his hair down, doesn't believe in "traveling a hundred miles and not staying overnight"—is a good type, and Mr. Westley plays him capitally and with much variety. Somehow the outburst at the discovery of his sister's betrayal had in it an emotional frenzy of a kind one would hardly associate with just that sort of boy, but of its kind it was amazingly well done and highly effective theatrically.

Miss Julie Herne played the unhappy girl, simply, wistfully, and tenderly; was in fact quite as natural as possible in a rôle of an exceedingly conventional kind. And Miss Mabel Bert made the sweetest and most womanly of mothers. But as the father Mr. Sam Edwards was unduly self-conscious and overacted most of the time. It is out of human possibility for any one to make this insufferable old person anything but a blot on the landscape, but he might have been less obtrusive. And that would have helped some.

BERNHARDT IN "MADAME X."

H. W. Savage Gives Actress Permission to Present Play in French Here.

With the consent of Henry W. Savage, Mme. Sarah Bernhardt will add "Madame X." to the list of plays she is to present during her forthcoming tour of the United States under the direction of Frank Connor. Mr. Savage controls the rights to the Bisson drama in this country, but as Mme. Bernhardt will present it in the original French, and also as a recognition of her position on the stage, he has readily granted permission for her to appear in the play here.

It was originally the intention of Mme. Bernhardt to produce the play in Paris when it was first written, but owing to other contracts she was unable to do so, and the opportunity came to Jane Hading. With the exception of "La Sorcesse," "Madame X." will be the only modern play in Mme. Bernhardt's repertoire in this country.

STRAUS RESOLUTION RENDS ALDERMEN

Sharpest Row in Years Precipitated by an Indorsement of Milk Depots.

TAMMANY TURNS ON BENT

Shouts Down Vice Chairman When He Attempts to Table the Resolution Introduced by Drescher.

The Aldermen passed a resolution yesterday requesting Nathan Straus to continue the operation of his milk depots after one of the sharpest wrangles the Board has ever seen. The unusual part of the trouble was that Vice Chairman Bent, who was presiding, began it and then found arrayed against him the Tammany leaders who were responsible for his election. The Fusion and Republican members took little part in the row and refrained from voting on the main points at issue. In fact so many of them left the Chamber, clearly not wishing to commit themselves, that immediately after the passage of the resolution, Alderman Dowling, the Tammany leader, made the point of no quorum and the Board abruptly adjourned after one of the shortest and stormiest sessions in its history.

Alderman Drescher of Brownsville introduced the resolution asking Mr. Straus to continue the depots. It read:

> Whereas, The Hon. Nathan Straus, exemplary citizen, philanthropist, and friend of the poor, who has for many years devoted much of his time and his means to the protection of the lives of the children of the indigent by furnishing a supply of pure milk at a cost within the means of the most needy, has, for reasons best known to himself, discontinued the work in which he was so long engaged, and
> Whereas, It is to be deprecated that a work, the result of which was so beneficial to a large part of the community, should be discontinued and for which the thanks of our people in general have gone out to the Hon. Nathan Straus; therefore,
>
> Resolved, That it be the sense of the Board of Aldermen of the City of New York that the Hon. Nathan Straus, if he can find it consistent to do so, continue his splendid efforts in behalf of the poor and needy in the supply of pure milk, or render such service as he alone is capable of in the formation of an organization for the continuation of the work so well begun and furthered through his efforts.
>
> Resolved, That the City Clerk be and he is hereby requested to forward an authenticated copy hereof to the Hon. Nathan Straus.

Alderman Marx of Harlem seconded the resolution when it was read by the clerk.

"Referred to the Committee on Public Health," ruled the Vice Chairman, banging his gavel.

A dozen Tammany Aldermen were on their feet at once.

"I move the adoption of the resolution," shouted Alderman Drescher. Seconding cries came from all over the chamber.

"There is a motion before the house to refer to the Committee on Public Health," replied Mr. Bent.

"Who made it?" shouted Alderman Kenneally. "You have no right to make a motion without stepping out of the chair."

By this time there were a dozen excited Aldermen crowded around the front of the dais.

"The Chair rules Alderman Drescher's motion out of order. There is a motion before the house," shouted Bent above the uproar.

"Then I move immediate consideration of the resolution," replied Alderman White, who succeeded "Little Tim" Sullivan. This also received a dozen seconds.

"There is a motion before the house," again ruled Bent.

"I move the previous question," cried Drescher.

"The clerk will call the roll," banged the Vice Chairman.

"Hold on! Hold on!" shouted the Aldermen. "What are we voting on?"

"I demand to be heard," cried White.

"Discussion is out of order," ruled Bent. "The previous question has been called on the motion to refer to committee."

"Oh! Oh! Oh!" shouted the excited Aldermen.

"I appeal from the decision of the Chair," cried Kenneally.

"I refuse to entertain the appeal," replied Bent. "The clerk will proceed." And the roll was called.

It resulted in a vote of 17 against reference to 10 for, the affirmative votes being cast by seven Republicans and three Democrats. The latter were the Vice Chairman, Aldermen Finnigan of Brooklyn, and Nugent of Manhattan. The seven Republicans were Aldermen Godwin, Hamilton, and Herbst of the Bronx, Schloss of Manhattan, Markert and Weston of Brooklyn, and Shipley of Queens.

Alderman White then moved that the resolution be considered by an yea and nay vote. Finnigan was the only man who voted against it.

The board then adjourned. Very little business was transacted before the row began. A petition from the Manhattan Borough Council, Spanish War Veterans, asking for an appropriation to pay for the reburial, in a place to be provided by the Veterans, of the unclaimed bodies now buried on Hart's Island, was referred to the Finance Committee.

The Vice Chairman tried again to get his ordinance providing for the requirement of a red light on all vehicles within the city limits after dark brought up, but Alderman Schloss objected, and it went over once more.

YOM KIPPUR BEGINS TO-NIGHT

Jewish Feast of the Atonement Will Be Widely Observed Here.

At sunset this evening the Jewish people throughout the world will begin the celebration of the fast of Yom Kippur, or the Day of Atonement, the most generally and strictly observed of all the holy days in the Jewish calendar. With its observance the penitential season which began with the New Year has its consummation and fulfillment, and the observing Jews look forward to the coming feast of Succoth, the feast of Tabernacles, the harvest festival of the ancient Hebrews.

The observance of Yom Kippur is ordained in the Bible and the ordinance on which the celebration is founded appears in Leviticus, Chapter 23, verse 26, as follows:

> And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying: "On the tenth day of this seventh month (Tishri) is the Day of Atonement. It shall be a holy convocation unto you, and ye shall afflict your souls, and ye shall do no manner of work on that day, for it is a day of atonement to make atonement for you before the Lord, your God. It shall be unto you a Sabbath of solemn rest, and ye shall afflict your souls; in the ninth day of the month at evening, from even unto even, shall ye keep your Sabbath."

Such of the Jews as observe the day in the old orthodox form make of it a complete fast for twenty-four hours, abstaining entirely from all food or drink in that time. From this strict fast only children of tender years and persons in bad health are exempt. The services in the synagogue begin at sunset, this evening, and continue all day to-morrow. The service this evening is known as "Kol Nidre" and is the most solemn and impressive service in the synagogue ritual. Among the ultra orthodox Jews the synagogue is kept open all night for prayer, and many stay there at their devotions throughout the whole night. The services to-morrow are continuous from early morning until sunset, when the Shofar is sounded and the worshippers hurry to their homes to break their fast.

Mrs. Ansbacher was Miss Frances Eger of Baltimore. They recently returned from a trip to Europe.

REV. D. S. MORRIS MARRIED.

Missionary Weds Miss Buell—Will Return to China with His Bride.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 11.—Miss Alice Ray Buell, daughter of Mrs. George Candee Buell of 9 Livingstone Park, was married to-night to the Rev. Dubois S. Morris, formerly of New York City, but now a missionary at Hwar-Yuen, China. The ceremony which was attended by a large number of invited guests, was performed by the Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle-Smith of New York in the First Presbyterian Church.

The bridegroom is well known in New York. He was at one time assistant to the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, and was later engaged in settlement work on the east side. Afterward he went to China as a representative of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions, and was engaged in missionary work in the interior of the empire during the Boxer uprising, at which time he was thought to have been a victim of the Chinese mobs.

Although he passed through a number of harrowing experiences in his work there, and was forced to flee with other missionaries, he stood bravely by his work and he now has the respect and admiration of the natives. He will take his bride back with him to Hwar-Yuen, there to resume his missionary duties.

While he was identified with Dr. Parkhurst's church in New York he pursued his missionary work on the east side, working with the Rev. John Hopkins Denison, who is now pastor of the Central Congregational Church in Boston. Mr. Denison was then pastor of the Church of the Sea and Land at Market and Henry Streets, and lived in the old tower of the church, which he had fitted up as a study and living quarters.

The settlement work of the Sea and Land Church had an almost unlimited field then, and Mr. Morris and Mr. Denison spent days visiting the sick in the tenements and preaching the Gospel in the open air. Mr. Morris frequently addressed crowds in Rutgers Square on Summer nights and stood by the men whom he had brought from the haunts of the Bowery into the church.

A number of New Yorkers were guests at the wedding. The bride, gowned in white satin trimmed with point lace, and wearing a lace veil, entered the church on the arm of her brother, Ely Buell, and was given away by her mother. The best man was McLane Morris of New York, a brother of the bridegroom.

The maid of honor was Miss Elizabeth Averill of this city. The bridesmaids were Miss Mary P. Allen, Miss Edith Hale, both of Rochester; Miss Elizabeth Barker of Salem, Mass., and Miss Alice Coffin of New York.

The following were the ushers: Dr. Harry B. Taylor of Norfolk, Va.; J. Edgar Morris, Theodore F. Savage, John E. Steen, and Dumont Clark of New York, and Alexander C. Proudfit of Princeton, N. J.

The guests from New York included Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Morris, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Morris, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mr. and Mrs. George Schanck, Mrs. Wilton Merle-Smith, and the Rev. H. Roswell Bates.

The parents of the bridegroom will give a reception for the young couple on Saturday, Oct. 22, at their home, 20 Fifth Avenue.

EUGENE WALTER'S DENIAL

Says There Is No Disagreement with Managers Over "Boots and Saddles."

A report that there had been serious disagreements between Eugene Walter, the playwright, and his fellow-managers over Mr. Walter's play, "Boots and Saddles," was denied by the author last night. Mr. Walter said that the Shuberts, who had held an interest in the piece up to a short time ago, had sold out to him on account of the large number of other productions they had to make, and that he and Felix Isman and Lew Fields were partners in the production.

At a rehearsal held Saturday, said Mr. Walter, Miss Conquest gave up the leading rôle, which she had been rehearsing, but that there was no unpleasantness about it. Lillian Albertson was asked to take the part, but as she retired from the stage at the time of her marriage, she declined. Charlotte Walker, who is Mrs. Walter, was then asked to assume the rôle and finally consented, as the first performance is scheduled for an early date. Mr. Walter said that no one had been ousted from the company.

PRESIDENT HERE AGAIN NEXT WEEK

Ostensibly for Pleasure, but the Political Situation Will Occupy Him, Too.

TAFT CAR INJURES A BOY

Mrs. Taft and Sisters in It—Child Not Much Hurt—No Action on Morse Out of Regular Course.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Oct. 11.—President Taft will spend the first part of next week in New York City. He will leave Beverly with Mrs. Taft early on Monday afternoon, proceeding from Boston by special car, and will reach New York that evening. They will tarry there, probably as guests of the President's brother Henry, for two or three days. They plan visits to the theatres and other social recreations before starting for Washington.

It is believed, however, that the President's visit to New York will also be partly taken up by the political situation there. He has already heard much from Otto T. Bannard and Senator Root, but he has no engagements requiring his presence in Washington till Oct. 20, and feels that he can well occupy the interim in seeing New York friends.

Representative William W. Cocks of the Long Island district in which Col. Roosevelt resides, had asked for an interview with the President to-day, but did not reach Beverly. He is a close friend of Col. Roosevelt, and made a visit to the Summer capital early in September.

It is stated at Beverly that Wilfred E. Crowell, the six-year-old lad who was injured in Salem by an automobile in which Mrs. Taft and two of her sisters were riding on Monday evening, has been discharged from the hospital. Mrs. Taft directed that every possible attention be given the boy and visited him at the hospital this morning. The Presidential automobile, in charge of Abel Long, a very careful chauffeur, was driving slowly at the time, but the boy jumped from behind another car so quickly that the collision could not be avoided.

The boy was only slightly injured. Only the quickest work on the part of Long saved his life. As the boy dashed across the street directly in front of the car, Long swung it sharply to the right and succeeded in so far diverting it that only a glancing blow was struck by one of the fenders. The car was slowly winding in and out of the traffic of Salem, with the two big search lights in front lighted. Long stopped his car and picked up the injured boy and a hurried trip was made to the Salem Hospital. Miss Herron, a sister of Mrs. Taft, held the injured child.

The President announced to-day that he would decline to take any action on recent applications for clemency in the case of Charles W. Morse, the convicted New York banker now serving a term in the Federal prison at Atlanta, until the papers in the case came before him through the regular channels, with a report from the Department of Justice.

Mr. Taft replied to this effect to the latest application on behalf of Morse made to-day by Gilbert A. A. Peavey, of Boston, whose daughter married a son of the former banker. While generally opposed to hearings on pardon cases, the President told Mr. Peavey he would give him a chance to be heard before he had finally disposed of the case. Mr. Peavey came to the President with a letter from Representative Samuel W. McCall.

Something of a rebellion is reported against the authority of Col. Cecil Lyon as leader of the Republican Party in Texas. Mr. H. F. McGregor, a native of New Hampshire, who now lives in the Lone Star State, called to voice his protest against Col. Lyon's domination and to ask for the recognition of a man who would build up the party in that State. The President is interested in any methods that will result in a more virile Republicanism in the South, but has to be shown first that any new movement is not chiefly for the purpose of coralling the Federal patronage. He is encouraging efforts for the upbuilding of the party in Tennessee and North Carolina and would gladly welcome similar steps in Texas.

An exchange of letters has recently taken place between the President and Mrs. Robert Evans, the owner of the cottage the President occupies, and it is explained that there is no unkindly feelings whatever because of the termination of the lease. Mrs. Evans has disclaimed that she is terminating the lease because of any annoyances from people who accompany the President. He expects to conclude a lease for another North Shore cottage for next Summer before the end of this week.

There was a long list of callers this afternoon, and they occupied the President till almost dusk, interfering with a house-hunting trip he had planned.

Col. Isaac Ullman paid a second visit to the Summer capital. He came with Charles M. Jarvis of New Britain, a Director of the National Manufacturers' Association, to invite the President to attend a dinner of manufacturers. Col. Ullman, who is a very active man in New Haven politics, said there was undoubtedly a close campaign in Connecticut for Governor, but he believed the Republicans would win.

The callers included Henry C. Ide of Vermont, now Minister to Spain. He and the President served together on the Philippine Commission, and Mr. Ide was for a time Governor General of the archipelago. They had a long talk, and Mr. Ide, who leaves late this month for Madrid, acquainted the President with conditions in Spain.

The President will leave Beverly at 10:30 to-morrow for Boston on the invitation of Gov. Draper and join him in the review of the parade of the Knights of Columbus. His sore foot is still slightly troubling him.

PAULINE CHASE ENTERTAINED.

Claude Grahame-White, English Aviator, Gives a Luncheon.

Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, gave an informal luncheon yesterday at Delmonico's. For a while there was some curiosity as to the identity of the guest of honor. At first she was thought to be Miss Eleanor Sears, the Boston society girl, who was a daily spectator of his flights in that city, and who rode with him several times in his aeroplane, but the young woman turned out to be Pauline Chase.

The luncheon was a very informal one. Mr. and Mrs. Allan A. Ryan were there also. Miss Chase, it was learned, is making preparations to be a spectator of the aviator's flights at the coming meet at Belmont Park on the days that will not conflict with her matinees.

Marriage and death notices intended for insertion in the New York Times may be telephoned to 1000 Bryant.

The National League season, which has been dying in agony for the past ten days, was mercifully put out of existence yesterday, in this city, at least, with a double-header between the Giants and the Phillies at the Polo Grounds. It looked on Monday as if the end would not be reached until to-day, but the decision of the managers to bunch two games yesterday hustled things along a bit, for which many thanks are due. The teams managed to divide the twin bill, the Giants getting away with the first game, 12 to 7, and the Phillies taking the second game, 6 to 1. The feature of the afternoon was Umpire Johnstone's calling off the second section of the programme at the end of the eighth inning.

The baseball served up was of the usual October brand, when all interest in the race has been lost to both player and spectator, and no grouches yelled for that extra inning when the umpire delivered the message that sent them home. The weather was pleasanter for baseball than has been the case in the past two weeks, but this served neither to get the players interested nor to draw out the fans. Only 500 were in the stands when the programme opened, and not more than double that number saw the two games.

Rube Marquard did the honors for the Giants, and these honors consisted in taking a severe bombardment without receiving any relief. The Phillies began to straighten Rube's slants in the first inning, and there was no let-up. Fourteen Quaker wallops went for twenty-one cushions, and yet Rube pulled through a winner because the Giants were getting two more hits which totaled two more bases. Manager Dooin tried out three young pitchers, and two of them got as lively a reception as Rube did. The third recruit arrived in the eighth inning just about the time the slugfest ended.

Manager McGraw used his pony line-up against the Phillies, many of the regulars being allowed to rest up for the big series, which opens against the Yankees to-morrow. Becker, Fletcher, Gowdy, and Wilson were in the places of regulars in the curtain raiser, and Shafer joined the list in the nightcap number. Red Murray, who was excused in the first game, worked in the second, and Devlin and Devore, after working in the opener, retired to the clubhouse.

In the first game both teams hit the ball and ran the bases until they were fatigued. Neither team went through an inning without getting a runner on the paths, and usually two, three, or four hits were bunched. In the first five innings the Giants got eleven hits, to ten for the Phillies, and the sixth inning opened with the score 7 to 7. Three passes and an error were bunched with five New York hits in the next two innings, and gave the Giants five runs, a lead which the Phillies could not overcome.

The second game was a battle between recruits, with Hendricks on the Giants' firing line and Chalmers doing the honors for the Phillies. Dooin's tribe had on the same batting togs as in the opener, and clouted the big southpaw for ten hits, five of which were bunched in the fifth inning, when all six runs were scored. In the other seven sessions he worked like a champ. Chalmers, on the other hand, was a puzzle to the young Giants, and also to the old Giants. After passing the first two men who faced him he settled down and pitched shutout ball. He allowed only two hits during the eight innings, a drive over second base by Doyle in the second inning and a hit to left field by Snodgrass, which Walsh trapped, after two were out in the eighth inning. The one run scored off Chalmers came in the seventh inning, as a result of two errors by Walsh and Bransfield. Shafer got two bases on a drive which Walsh muffed. He advanced on Bransfield's error and counted on Wilson's sacrifice fly. Singles by Bransfield, Doolan, and Titus, a double by Bates, a triple by Walsh, a sacrifice hit, and an error by Fletcher gave the Phillies their six runs in the fifth inning.

Reds Down Cleveland Easily.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 11.—In a game featured by hard hitting, loose pitching, and poor fielding Cincinnati to-day won the first of the post-season games for the championship of Ohio from Cleveland 14 to 7. Cleveland used three pitchers in an effort to turn the tide of battle, but all fared about equally. Hoblitzell's triple, with the bases full in the third inning, and Paskert's home run, the result of Jackson losing the ball in the sun's rays, featured. McLean carried off the batting honors by making three singles and a double out of five times at bat. Score:

WHIRLWIND CROSS BEATS DORMAN

Leach and Jack Furnish Season's Star Bout at the Fairmont Athletic Club.

If any one of the 1,000 or more members of the Fairmont Athletic Club who attended the show at the clubhouse last night went away dissatisfied he is a mighty hard man to please.

If he didn't get his money's worth with the ten round-go between Leach Cross and Jack Dorman he never will. These two boys furnished about the most thrilling ten-round bout that has been seen around here for years, and while Leachie won with lots to spare Jack was by no means disgraced.

The Cross family has been going back somewhat in sporting circles lately, but Leach regained the lost prestige last night, and with it a host of new friends.

The bout wasn't the classiest thing in pugilism that has ever come down the pike, but for surprises and mental jolts and physical ones, too, for that matter, it had everything in this line that has come off in the near past beaten a wide margin.

While Dorman was whipped, and whipped good, his gameness and rallies, in which he did things to Cross, made the go one of those satisfying sort of things that make those with a leaning toward live sport feel a pitying regard for those sensitive souls who are continually crying, "Can the fighting game!"

When the boys arrived in the ring it was seen that Cross had a bit of advantage on the height issue, but there was practically no difference in their weights. Both weighed about 138 pounds.

Leach set the pace until Dorman caught him with a couple of lefts in the face. Cross, however, came back and waded into Jack, landing several fair lefts and rights. Dorman was somewhat puzzled and didn't do anything particularly noteworthy, but he held his own.

Leach started after Jack in the second round, though the latter backed only slowly and kept right on top of the dentist. He drew a lead from Cross and crossed him with a hard right, which shook Leach up. Hard infighting followed this, and Leach scored a couple. Dorman landed a beautiful left and followed with a right flush on the nose. Leach wasn't getting any the worse of it, but the crowd was with Dorman.

Leach went right into Jack at the bell tap for the third round and landed a pretty left straight on the chin. Dorman was wary and bided his time. He saw his chance, stepped in, and swung his left on Cross's chin. It landed in the right place all right, and Leach went down. He stayed down for nine seconds, then he arose and went into Dorman like a house on fire. He was very wild, but kept on trying. As he would come in Dorman generally countered on him.

At last Leach took a desperate chance and ran in with both arms working. His right caught Dorman on the chin and Jack went down. The wildest confusion followed and the crowd acted as though it was crazy. Cross kept after Dorman when he got to his feet and tired him with straight lefts in the face and hard rights on the ribs. It was Cross's round.

Both were inclined to be careful in the fourth, though the fighting was hard. Leach kept up his aggressive work, and Dorman was pretty much on the defensive. It was Cross's round.

Leach began hostilities in the fifth, and met Dorman as the latter came out of his corner. Dorman watched his opportunity and backed Leach into a corner. Quick as a flash his left went out and caught Leach squarely on the neck. Cross fought out of his tight place and rushed Dorman back, banging him as he went. Careful sparring followed this, and it was an even round.

Dorman started the crowd yelling again by landing a hard left on Cross's chin. Some stiff infighting followed, with both plugging away. This sort of thing weakened Dorman more than it did Cross, and as the latter stepped back he saw his chance. Like a whirlwind he went into Jack. Bang, biff, bang, punch, push, and everything in the fight game came Dorman's way. He staggered again and again under the rain of Cross's blows, and his gameness was admirable, but he couldn't overcome Leach's advantage. Jack was very tired as the round ended, but he was far back in second place.

Cross took careful aim as they came together for the seventh and showed by his manner that he was going to make every blow count. Dorman bravely tried to hold him off, and succeeded only in so far that he saved himself from going down. Cross pummeled him unmercifully. Dorman's ring generalship stood him in good stead, and while he was considerably marked up and bloody he was still there at the bell.

Dorman fought almost entirely on the defensive in the eighth and Cross couldn't seem to get the proper focus on his blows, as he circled around Dorman the latter invariably saw an opening and took advantage of it. Dorman wasn't losing any tricks by any means, and had all his faculties with him. He saw an excellent chance to counter a right and right merrily he did it. The blow caught Leach squarely on the point of the chin and down went Cross. He was up instantly, however, and closed in on Dorman, rushing him to the ropes as the round ended.

Dorman was much encouraged over his showing in the preceding round, and had a deal more confidence for the ninth. He kept closer to Leach, and while he got the worst of it, he made up some of his lost ground. Leach, however, held tenaciously on to his lead, and time and again set the crowd yelling as he piled into Jack. The crowd wasn't applauding Cross so much as it was trying to encourage Dorman to show another rally. He came back just before the bell rang and swung a hard right on Cross's body.

While Dorman was considerably beaten up, he gamely went through the tenth round, not as beaten men generally do—taking all and giving none—but fighting all the time. Cross's smashes in the face reached him and added to his misery, but he could see, and he calmly went about getting back in any way he knew. His following pleaded with him to try a high swing in the hope that it would catch Cross's rather limber jaw, and by his repeated successes in this line during the bout it looked possible, but Leach was there with the wallop, and that's the most there was to it. Cross had the punch and Dorman a good heart and some science.

Kid Hudson, a colored lad, took about all that Young Tack, a white boy, had in the way of swings and uppercuts for nearly the entire six rounds of their bout. Hudson clinched and danced around the ring a bit, keeping out of harm's way a lot, but at that he got a good drubbing. The referee, getting tired of Hudson's holding tactics, stopped the go in the middle of the sixth round.

Young Terry put it all over Joe Gordon in the six-round semi-final. The only reason the bout went the limit was because Gordon held on every time he got close enough to Terry to make an effectual grab.

POLICE ATHLETES WIN.

Leave of Absence Granted—Will Compete at New Orleans.

Pat Conway, President of the Irish-American Athletic Club, had a busy session last evening getting in touch with M. J. Sheridan, Pat McDonald, Jack Eller, and H. Maguire, a quartet of athletic policemen, for whom he had received a much-desired leave of absence so that they might represent the "Winged Fist" Club in the Amateur Athletic Union championships at New Orleans on Friday and Saturday next.

The Irish-American leader would not say what had caused the change of front at Police Headquarters, but intimated that the Mayor, despite his refusal on Monday to interfere with Commissioner Baker's plans, had, yesterday, after giving the matter further consideration, recommended to the police head the advisability of granting the leave, provided the men put in their applications in proper form, which had not been done up to the time of the Commissioner's refusal on Monday.

Conway then informed his men to get ready to take the 4:45 train over the Pennsylvania Railroad to-day. Word was also got to Matt McGrath and Simon Gillis, both of the New York Athletic Club, who are also carded to compete.

All Stars Beat Athletics.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—The series between the All-Stars, a picked team of American League players under the management of James McAleer of the Washington Club, and the Philadelphia American League team, the object being to keep Connie Mack's champions on edge, began to-day. The All-Stars won, 8 to 3. Bender, Plank, and Coombs each pitched three innings, and all were hit hard, while Johnson was very effective, and in the third inning struck out Hartsel, Oldring, and Collins. Cobb of Detroit failed to appear, his automobile having broken down at Kingston, N. Y. All of the games in the series will be played here except on Friday, when the teams will play at Washington. BARNEY OLDFIELD IS DISQUALIFIED

Contest Board of A. A. A. Takes Radical Action on Johnson-Oldfield Race.

The proposed automobile race between Barney Oldfield and Jack Johnson, the champion heavyweight prizefighter, which is scheduled to be held on Sheepshead Bay race track on Oct. 20, has caused a big stir in the American Automobile Association, and last night the Contest Board of that body met and disqualified Oldfield and his manager, W. H. Pickens, from competition in sanctioned automobile meets. The promoters of the race have not yet sought a sanction from the A. A. A., but it was announced beforehand that it would not be granted.

The Contest Board decided at its special meeting that Johnson is a leading light in prizefighting, a sport which is under the ban in most States in the Union, and that he is without experience as a racing driver. The board decided that his entrance into the sport would be detrimental to its best interests. The board also scores Pickens and Oldfield for the part they have already taken in the proposed competition. The statement of the Contest Board is as follows:

Whereas, Barney Oldfield, under the American Automobile Association rules, a recognized and registered automobile racing driver, has announced, or caused to be announced, in the public press and upon posters, his entry in a so-called track race with "Jack" Johnson, at the Sheepshead Bay track, (unlicensed for automobile contests,) to be held Oct. 20, 1910, official sanction for which contest has neither been applied for nor issued, which action is a direct violation of the provisions of Rule 58 of the 1910 Contest Rules of the American Automobile Association, viz.:

"An entry in any unsanctioned contest, or an authorized announcement in public print that an entry has been or will be made, shall be deemed sufficient cause for immediate disqualification by the Contest Board of the owner, entrant, driver, and car, or any or all of them," and

Whereas, The conduct of W. H. Pickens, now Mr. Oldfield's manager, and his statements in the public press in connection with the proposed unsanctioned contest are injurious to the welfare of the sport and industry and destructive of the confidence of the public in automobile contests, and

Whereas, The entrance into an organized and well-accredited sport of the leading exponent of an unorganized so-called sport, which is under the ban in most of the States of the Union, and who is, as we believe, without requisite experience in automobile track racing, and has yet to demonstrate his competency as a racing driver, would preclude the granting of official sanction for such so-called contest, as detrimental to the interests of regularly organized automobile competitions,

Therefore, Barney Oldfield is, under Rule 58, hereby suspended and disqualified until further notice from future competition or participation in sanctioned automobile contests.

And W. H. Pickens is hereby disqualified from participation in any sanctioned automobile contests, either as manager of an entrant, promoter, entrant, owner, driver, or in any other capacity, and they are each of them hereby directed to show cause why such disqualification should not be made permanent.

Jack Johnson was very indignant when he heard that his registration card as a licensed driver had been taken away. He says he will prosecute the American Automobile Association. His statement to the organization is as follows:

"I return herewith the $1 which you returned to me, same being in payment of license fee. I conformed to all conditions named on the application blank furnished me by your office, and will not accept cancellation of my license. You are in error when you state that I obtained the license by trickery or misrepresentation. You cannot blame me for your lack of office system. I will go to the courts if necessary to secure my rights and privileges."

In the meantime the promoters say that the race will be held in spite of the opposition of the American Automobile Association. Oldfield says he has sold his interests in the motion pictures of the coming race, and that if he backed out of the race now he would also lose his forfeit of $5,000. He is afraid the public would call him a "quitter."

WOMAN GOLF STAR BEATEN AT CHICAGO

Mrs. Harris Loses Match for National Championship on Homewood Links.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Eastern and Canadian golfers to-day retained their advantage in the first round of match play in the sixteenth annual women's championship tournament at the Homewood Country Club.

Six Eastern players, three of them Philadelphians, and three Canadians, will play in the second match round to-morrow, while only six representatives of the Western Golf Association survived. Mrs. G. M. Martin of Tavistock, Devonshire, England, was a winner in to-day's play.

The greatest surprise of the day was the defeat of Mrs. Thurston Harris, Western and Chicago champion, by Miss Myra Helmer of the Midlothian Club, Chicago, 3 up and 2 to play. The Midlothian player held the lead throughout the day, and was 2 up on the Western champion at the end of the first nine holes. Mrs. Harris was off her game with the wooden clubs, and was in the rough much of the time.

Miss Dorothy Campbell of Hamilton, Canada, holder of the National and the Canadian championships, defeated Mrs. A. E. Hedstrom of Buffalo 7 up and 5 to play. Miss Campbell was 5 up at the turn, and was never behind. She played a medal score of 91 for the course, which was excellent golf in the heavy wind.

Mrs. R. H. Barlow of Philadelphia defeated Miss Grace Semple of St. Louis in one of the most exciting finishes ever seen in a women's tournament.

Mrs. Barlow shot poorly on the outgoing round, taking a 52, and Miss Semple was 3 up at the turn. Mrs. Barlow improved on the incoming nine holes, and overcame her opponent's lead by winning the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth holes in succession. This made her dormie one. Miss Semple had a seven-foot putt to square the match on the last green, but missed.

Miss L. B. Elkins of Pittsburg defeated Mrs. Luther Kennett of Evanston in the hardest match of the day, winning 1 up in 19 holes. As an antithesis to this match Miss Lillian Hyde of New York overwhelmed Mrs. C. D. Barrows of Portland, Me., 10 up and 8 to play. The summary:

Miss Dorothy Campbell, Hamilton, Canada, defeated Mrs. A. E. Hedstrom, Buffalo, 7 up and 5; Miss Mary Fownes, Pittsburg, defeated Miss Margaret Knapp, Skokie, 4 up and 3; Mrs. R. H. Barlow, Philadelphia, defeated Miss Grace Semple, St. Louis, 1 up; Miss Myra Helmer, Midlothian, defeated Mrs. Thurston Harris, Onwentsia, 3 up and 2; Mrs. L. N. Brochon, La Grange, defeated Mrs. M. B. McIlvane, Onwentsia, 4 up and 2; Miss Ruth Lyman, Hinsdale, defeated Miss Caroline Painter, Midlothian, 3 up and 2; Miss Florence Harvey, Hamilton, Canada, defeated Mrs. H. Galt, Onwentsia, 3 up and 2; Mrs. Caleb Fox, Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. F. W. Winkler, Beverly, 8 up and 6; Miss Katherine Moulton, Minikhda, defeated Mrs. W. F. Anderson, Hinsdale, 3 up and 2; Miss Lillian Hyde, New York, defeated Mrs. C. D. Barrows, Portland, Me., 10 up and 8; Miss L. B. Elkins, Pittsburg, defeated Mrs. Luther Kennett, Evanston, 1 up in 19 holes; Miss Vida Llewellyn, La Grange, defeated Mrs. P. Manchester, Skokie, 4 up and 2; Miss E. C. Nesbitt, Woodstock, Canada, defeated Mrs. E. R. Williams, Lake Geneva, 6 up and 5; Mrs. William West, Philadelphia, defeated Miss Ethel Corbet, Homewood, 3 up and 1; Mrs. G. M. Martin, Tavistock, England, defeated Mrs. G. G. Carlyle, Exmoor, 4 up and 2; Miss W. Warren, Skokie, defeated Miss Eleanor Chandler, Philadelphia, 2 up and 1.

Pairings for To-morrow—Miss Campbell and Miss Fownes, Mrs. Barlow and Miss Helmer, Mrs. Brochon and Miss Lyman, Mrs. Fox and Miss Harvey, Miss Moulton and Miss Hyde, Miss Elkins and Miss Llewellyn, Miss Nesbit and Mrs. West, Mrs. Martin and Miss Warren.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Importers of German Paper Are Defeated in Claim for Lower Duty.

The Board of United States General Appraisers has disposed of a protest in the name of the Germania Importing Company regarding the classification of merchandise invoiced as "eins glatt packcellulose." The local Appraiser's description of the goods are embodied in a special report filed with the Board of General Appraisers in which he says the merchandise is glazed wrapping paper.

Duty was accordingly assessed on the merchandise at the rate of 25 per cent. under the provision in the tariff law for "paper not specially provided for." According to the importers, the paper is dutiable properly at the appropriate rate under the paragraph referring to "chemical wood pulp." According to the testimony of George Staber, President of the importing company, the article is used for wrapping merchandise.

It is shown that the article is wrapping paper, having been expressly made for that use, and that it is sold for wrapping purposes by the paper trade. It is urged that the article could be used for making paper, and though this claim is made, not a scintilla of evidence has been introduced to show that the merchandise has ever been sold or used to be further manipulated into a different kind or quality of paper. On the contrary, the evidence shows that it was sold only as wrapping paper, and never as pulp or stock for making paper.

In overruling the protest General Appraiser Fischer, who writes the protest, says in part:

"The sample is a paper, one side of which has been machine finished or calendered, exhibiting a smooth surface somewhat resembling a glaze. All paper is in a certain sense a manufacture of pulp or a product of pulp, and though wood pulp is imported in sheets it is brought in that way for convenience and after importation is again pulped. The contention of the importers that the article we have here before us could be converted into paper is not persuasive, for it is commonly known that old and refuse paper is collected for that purpose. The article known as wood pulp is the crude material utilized in making paper, and not the advanced article which has become in fact a paper. We find from the evidence and samples that the merchandise is wrapping paper, and properly dutiable as assessed. The protest is overruled and the decision of the Collector affirmed."

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

AT A SPECIAL TERM OF THE UNITED States District Court for the Southern District of New York, held at the Post Office Building in the Borough of Manhattan, in the State, City, and County of New York, on the 3d day of October, 1910. Present, Honorable George C. Holt, United States District Judge.—In the matter of the petition to have SPENCER LEASING COMPANY OF GREATER NEW YORK, a corporation, adjudged an involuntary bankrupt.

Whereas a petition was on the 7th day of September, 1910, filed herein for an adjudication of bankruptcy against Spencer Leasing Company of Greater New York, a corporation, and it appearing to my satisfaction by the affidavits of Edward A. Turner and Saul Abraham, and Daniel W. Blumenthal, verified the 29th day of September, 1910, that a subpoena directed to the alleged bankrupt herein was duly issued out of this court to the Marshal for the Southern District of New York, and that said Marshal has been unable to serve the same on the said corporation, or upon any of its officers; and it appearing that personal service cannot be made upon any officer of the said alleged bankrupt corporation, and that diligent efforts have been made to ascertain the whereabouts of the officers of the said corporation, and that there are no officers of the said corporation now within the jurisdiction of this court, or who are known to reside at this time within the Southern District of New York;

Now, on motion of Maurice B. and Daniel W. Blumenthal, attorneys for the petitioning creditors herein, it is Ordered that the Spencer Leasing Company of Greater New York, the alleged bankrupt herein, appear before the United States District Court for the Southern District of New York, at a stated term thereof to be held, in bankruptcy, in the Post Office Building, in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, on the 24th day of October, 1910, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard, to answer, demur, or otherwise plead to the petition in involuntary bankruptcy filed in the office of the Clerk of this court on the 7th day of September, 1910, against it, and in case of the failure to appear, answer, demur, or otherwise plead, adjudication shall be made according to the prayer of said petition; and it is further Ordered that a copy of this order be published in The New York Times, a daily newspaper published in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, in said Southern District, twice a week for two consecutive weeks, the last of said publication to be on the 12th day of October, 1910, and by mailing a copy of this order and the affidavits upon which it was granted, together with a copy of the petition for adjudication to the last known place of abode of Willis A. Lane, at 821 West 178th Street, New York City, and the last known place of abode of Edward W. Osann, at 78 Broad Street, New York City, in said district, on or before the day of the first publication.

"My Son Having Failed Completely in his preliminary examinations for college, entered your school and in one year he covered two regular school years of work as is done at most schools, and not only passed his examinations easily for college, but also with credit to himself and his school."

This extract of a letter from the mother of a recent student is one of a hundred or more, valued by Mr. Groff, showing the high grade of success he has had for thirteen years, following the idea that the individual, and not the class, is the unit.

Timid, nervous and backward boys are encouraged and taught how to study. Bright boys advanced rapidly and thoroughly. No cramming. Secret is to make an hour count for an hour under expert teachers and an up-to-date system. The definite policy is to gain the real interest of the boys in their work, thereby making petty restrictions unnecessary.

The Opinion of Experts

If you have money to invest, you should focus your attention upon the situation now existing in the bond market. Prices of high-grade bonds are lower than they have been for a long time, notwithstanding that the value and earning power of the properties securing the bonds were never greater than at present. If, as is predicted by experts, lower interest rates are to prevail once the crops are moved, high-grade bonds purchased now are certain to prove profitable investments.

If you are especially interested in Railroad Bonds, write for our Circular No. 821. If you prefer high-grade Corporation Bonds yielding about 5%, write for Circular No. 823.

TRADING IS PROFESSIONAL

Evidence Plentiful of Renewed Pool Operations—Progress Toward Settlement of Cotton Bill Controversy.

The rise in prices which followed the publication of the excellent Government crop report on Monday afternoon was resumed at the opening of business on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and in the forenoon session a point or so was added to the average price of the active railroad and industrial shares. Trading during this period was extremely active, running to more than 100,000 shares an hour, but by noon the movement seemed to have spent its force for the time being, and on diminished transactions prices were shaded by fractions. In the last hour another spurt of activity brought with it such cross-currents of buying and selling that save in the case of specialties the final result for the day was a range about that of the morning's high, which was, of course, substantially above the previous night's levels. Aside from the evidence of underlying strength supplied by the course of prices the most interesting feature of the day's business was the plain proof of the resumption of operations in a number of departments, by small and large pools. Their handiwork was evident in International Harvester, Virginia-Carolina Chemical, American Cotton Oil, Car & Foundry shares, Central Leather, and, in the railroad list, Colorado Southern. Apparently the pessimism which so long ruled the Stock Exchange is giving way to a tempered optimism which seeks only favorable developments, such as the crop report, to assert itself.

By far the most interesting piece of news of the day was the suggestion in private cables from London that the cotton bills of lading controversy was there looked upon as practically settled. The representatives of our own bankers who have had the matter in charge were in session during the day, but no announcement of the result of the meeting had been made public up to the close of business. One of the leading members of the committee of foreign bankers is now here for the purpose of a first-hand investigation of the contention of the American bankers that a guarantee by them of cotton bills is not feasible, and it is doubtless the satisfactory progress of conferences with this gentleman which has inspired London, at least, with the belief that the matter is well in the way of settlement. It would be difficult to appraise exactly the value of the termination of the controversy to our money markets. They might, of course, meet the added strain of financing the cotton movement without serious disturbance, but no one desired to put this to the proof.

Foreign exchange was exceptionally weak, demand sterling dropping 30 points in the course of the day, and the movement probably was not unconnected with the outlook for the breaking of the deadlock. Call money ran up to 3½ per cent., suggesting what the rate might be were excited speculation to break out on the Stock Exchange, and the banks reported another loss to the Sub-Treasury, bringing the total to above $3,000,000 since Friday last, as against a loss of less than $1,000,000 in all last week. Routine matters included the submission of a number of annual railroad reports, including the excellent documents of the Erie & Southern Railway, the Bureau of Statistics statement of domestic exports for September, which ran to a record volume for the month, well above the corresponding period of 1909, and a marking down of wheat and corn prices on the Produce Exchanges in response to the Government's crop showing. The cotton speculation was again active, with sharp price advances in all options.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Trading in the Curb Market Restricted by the Approaching Holiday.

COPPER ISSUES WERE FIRM

Most of the Day's Activity Concentrated in That Group and Fractional Gains Are Shown.

The outside security market was generally firm yesterday, although transactions were rather limited, the approaching holiday evidently proving a checking influence. Most issues were fractionally higher, particularly in the copper group, in which the trading was of larger proportions than elsewhere. Tuolumne Copper was notable for the largest gain, but Giroux and Greene-Cananea were also particularly firm. The bond market was neglected, except for some transactions in Western Pacific 5s at 96 and Des Moines and Fort Dodge second 5s at 88⅝.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

It was a strong market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange from start to finish. Signs of a broadening in public interest were again in evidence, with commission houses handling odd-lot orders in a wide variety of the specialties. The trading list for the day included 61 different stocks, with the transactions totaling 50,431 shares.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Reichsbank on Money Tension.

On the occasion of the advance in the Reichsbank's rate to 5 per cent. the President of the Imperial German institution spoke significantly of conditions in the German money market which are perforce to be reckoned with in other centres. He sees in the situation an expansion of credit for the checking of which he asks the co-operation of the whole banking community. His words are worth repeating: "The developments of money market conditions during the last week and month indicate that existing tension is not induced merely by the monthly settlement, but by a prolonged expansion of credit. Especially striking has been the pressure during the last few months at the head office of the Reichsbank at Berlin. This is proof that the resources of the bank are tied up for a protracted period, which cannot be viewed without uneasiness when remembering that the general trade demands are not abnormal, and that there is considerable foreign capital here. The reins must, therefore, be drawn more tightly to counteract the undue demand for credit. The Reichsbank cannot do this alone, and requests the help of the whole banking community."

Supreme Court Cases Wait.

Although the Street had generally given up hope after Justice Fuller's death that the all-important decisions of the Standard Oil and Tobacco cases would be handed down this Fall all doubt of the matter was removed yesterday by the Government's motion to reassign these two along with the employers' liability cases, suggesting Jan. 3 as the date for the hearing. This fixing of a date by the Attorney General is taken as an assurance that he has been advised that the two vacancies still existing on the Supreme Court bench will be filled by that time. The Missouri River rate case and the labor cases involving Samuel Gompers and his union associates, are also set over until January.

Growth of Mail Order Business.

That there has been nothing lacking in the buying power of the farmer even during the months when the crop outlook was in its most discouraging phase is indicated in the reports of earnings of Sears, Roebuck & Co., the Chicago mail order house, which, it is unofficially stated, showed a large gain in the first six months of 1910 over those of last year's and promises for the full year to show a gain of $8,000,000 over last year's gross earnings. It would be impossible to say how much the prosperity of this one concern is due to the increased spending power of small communities and how much to its individual enterprise, but the last crop returns with their prospects of bumper crops in corn and oats, as well as a yield of wheat, better than the crops of 1907 and 1908, do not leave much ground for the predictions of last Spring that the farmer would have to go through a chastening period of economy.

Lining Up for Rate Hearing.

President Brown of the New York Central and counsel have started for Washington for the continuance of the rate hearing before the Inter-State Commerce Commission on Wednesday. It is expected that Mr. Brown will follow President McCrea of the Pennsylvania on the stand. Meanwhile, the shippers who have been won over to the railroads' side have been busy. A statement has been prepared by a group of St. Louis and Wisconsin shippers for forwarding to the commission favoring a horizontal advance in freight rates of from 8 to 10 per cent., on the ground that "a fair advance could be well borne by the public at large."

According to advices from Chicago the effect of the checking of loans has sent up the price of some classes of farm mortgages to 6 and 7 per cent. A large buyer of some classes of farm mortgages is quoted as saying that although the agencies through which much of the farm mortgage business is placed say that they can borrow at 5 and 5½ per cent. they are sending him applications right along for 6 per cent. loans. He says that he has placed loans in the last few days in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, and Iowa at 6 per cent. and has had applications from North Dakota and Oklahoma for money at 7 per cent. These high rates are offered, he says, "on the best of farm risks."

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The local market was dull to-day, but the undertone was strong throughout, although a few issues were inclined to show some reaction. Lake Copper was sold rather heavily, losing about a point and a half. North Butte advanced to 31½, Hancock to 26½, and U. S. Oil was in demand at about 40. The general list closed strong and at about best prices of the day.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—Although quiet the local market was again decidedly firm to-day. The report that the United States Steel Corporation had placed a contract for $300,000 worth of storage batteries with the Electric Storage Battery Company was responsible for a further rise in that issue this morning, the quotation crossing 50 with ease, on comparatively small dealings. The Asphalt shares were less active than on Monday, but they remained fairly firm despite some profit taking. To be sure an odd lot of the common was offered down to 80, a loss of 1¼. But later it was again selling at 81.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, Oct. 11.—Money was quiet and discount rates were steady to-day.

The commencement of the settlement and easy Continental advices caused irregularity on the Stock Exchange. Rubber shares weakened on liquidation and the decline in raw rubber, and home rails were easy, while Kaffirs, foreign rails, and copper shares were steady.

American securities opened irregular, but fair buying during the first hour advanced the active issues. Later Wall Street accepted the London level and bought lightly, and the market closed steady.

Bar silver steady, 25 5-16d per ounce.

Money, 1½@2 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 3⅝ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for three months' bills is 3⅝ per cent.

Gold premiums at Madrid, 7; at Lisbon, 4.50.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—The railroad strike caused a weak opening on the Bourse to-day. French rentes and railroad stocks declined and the whole market was affected.

Prices improved near the close, except for French and Portuguese rentes.

Exchange on London, 25f. 28c. for checks.

BERLIN, Oct. 11.—Prices were weaker on the Boerse to-day.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 45½ pfennigs for checks.

COMMODITIES MARKET.

News was again of a very bearish character, which was reflected in the course of prices in the wheat market. The opening was at a decline of about ⅝c per bushel, but this loss was greatly increased as the day progressed, with the close near the bottom. Bears received encouragement from Liverpool advices, which were below expectations, and reflected favorable crop conditions abroad. A summary of developments during the past week on the foreign crops was bearish, and this together with the American Government report of Monday and reports of freer Argentine offerings had considerable effect. The best buying was from shorts and on the bulges commission houses were good sellers, reflecting the bearish sentiment prevailing. Bradstreet's report confirmed the accumulating stocks both at home and abroad, showing an increase for world's wheat this week of 13,173,000 bushels. This compares with an increase last week of 6,288,000 bushels and an increase over last year of 6,825,000 bushels. Receipts at the principal primary points in this country continue to decrease, but shipments are also smaller. Receipts to-day were 960,000 bushels against 1,135,000 bushels a week ago and 1,649,000 last year. Shipments were 325,000 bushels, against 572,000 bushels last week and 937,000 bushels a year ago. The export demand is at a minimum, while cash demand at the Northwest is only fair. This, however, was partly offset by reports of large flour sales there. Cash No. 2 red was quoted at $1.01, elevator, $1.00¼, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.20, and No. 1 Manitoba, $1.07½.

The corn market was subjected to further pressure during the day, influenced by the Government report and continued fine weather for the curing of the crop. Country offerings are expected to increase, as new corn begins to move and sentiment is against values owing to a belief of large reserves of old corn. Export demand is very quiet, with liberal Argentine shipments having some effect on the bids of foreigners. Bradstreet's for the week showed a decrease of 404,000 bushels, against an increase last year of 155,000 bushels. Receipts from the interior this week amount to 875,000 bushels, against 911,000 last year, with shipments 782,000 bushels, against 784,000 bushels last year. Quoted Western No. 2, 59½c to arrive, cash, insurance, and freight, elevator, domestic basis. Sales include: 16,000 bushels export No. 2 at 10c over Chicago, December, free on board, New York.

The oats market was inclined to sag during the day with other grain and influenced by the Government report. Country offerings were liberal, but the distributing demand is good, as indicated by Bradstreet's, which showed a decrease for the week of 312,000 bushels, against an increase last year of 667,000 bushels. Closing prices: Standards, 39c; No. 2 white, 39½c; No. 3, white, 38½c; No. 4, white, 37½c; natural white, 39@40c; white clipped, 39½@42.

The provision market was higher during the early day in sympathy with a better hog market. Later prices reacted on scattered liquidation, induced by the weak grain markets.

COTTONSEED OIL.

The market was quieter, but a better feeling was noticeable, with the range of prices slightly above the previous close. While some decline was scored at the outset on favorable cotton weather and absence of demand, prices rallied later, with offerings light, partly influenced by the strength in the cotton market. Prompt crude is being offered rather freely, owing to the premium, but Winter shipment is firm, as mills are not disposed to sell very far ahead, owing to the uncertainty of the seed situation. COTTON.

Trade was again in the aggregate of quite large proportions, and after some weakness during the morning the market advanced steadily to above the previous night's finals, with the undertone strong. The decline at the outset was a result of heavy liquidation, influenced by private advices of a cessation in the spot demand at some of the Southern points and generally favorable weather conditions in the belt. Southern bulls were inclined to take profits, but the demand was good, with spot interests large buyers. Traders who sold on expectations of a reaction were again disappointed, and were inclined to cover, owing to the persistency of the advance. Selling pressure seemed to exhaust itself around midday, at which levels there was active buying by brokers thought to represent old bull accounts. There were rumors from London to the effect that a settlement of the bill of lading controversy was at hand, and the reports claiming that English mills were doing a large and profitable export business to China and India had a good effect on sentiment. There is a growing disposition to raise crop estimates owing to the probability of a late frost, but the fact that spinners and trade interests continued good buyers offsets these claims. Late reports from the South in regard to spots were favorable, and there were further advices stating that a holding tendency was being indulged in by farmers. There was also some apprehension caused over the prospects of a wet spell, to be followed by a cold wave now forming in the Northwest. Cotton port receipts were approximately 92,000 bales, against [illegible] last week and 102,000 last year.

The export movement continues free, comparing very favorably with last year with the heavy exports reported recently, due to some extent to the anxiety to have cotton arrive abroad before Oct. 31, avoiding the complicated bill of lading situation. Southern spot markets were officially reported unchanged to ⅛c higher.

New York spot cotton quiet, 10 points advance; middling upland, 14.75c; middling Gulf, 15c.

COFFEE.

There was an easier tone in the local coffee market at the opening, and prices were 8@11 points lower, followed by a further decline of 2@6 points under selling for local and foreign account and influenced by weakness in the foreign markets. Early trading was quiet, however, and there appeared to be an absence of aggressiveness on either side. Around midday values rallied sharply and advanced rapidly, making gains of from 10 to 20 points from the early decline, and the close showed a net advance from 5 to 10 points, with sales of 38,250 bags. The market appeared about sold out at the early decline, and when buying orders appeared advanced with little opposition. The buying was by prominent local bulls as well as operators believed to represent Brazilian traders, and when the market advanced European shorts became nervous and were inclined to cover. The Havre market was 1¼ to 1¾ francs lower, but before the close regained ¼ and at the close 1@1½ franc net lower. Hamburgs declined ½ pfennig, and in Brazil, Rio and Santos were both weak, with Rio 75 reis lower and Santos at 50 reis decline. Receipts at Rio and Santos were 81,000 bags, compared with 149,000 last year, and stocks at these points amounted to 2,950,000 bags, against 3,087,000 last year. Warehouse deliveries of Brazilian coffee at United States ports were 21,601 bags, against 20,570 last week and 25,404 last year. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States is 2,896,776 bags, compared with 3,878,854 last year and 3,330,377 two years ago. Cost and freight offers from Brazil were firm although somewhat irregular. The fact that the local future market is the cheapest market for coffee, being much below a parity with the primary markets, has a tendency to discourage active operations on the short side, although some traders are less inclined to accept the minimum crop estimates, and reports that Brazilian houses have been heavy speculative buyers of spot coffee caused some uneasiness notwithstanding the fact that the lower rate of interest this year makes the carrying of coffee a less expensive operation than last year.

The spot market was unchanged at 10¾@11c for Rio No. 7.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Auction Market Proves the Feature of the Day's Transactions—Sale Near Times Square for Office Building—West End Avenue Sale—Activity in Suburban Property.

Comparatively few private sales were reported in the realty market yesterday, the chief interest being devoted in the auction sales which, notwithstanding the liberal offerings in the Vesey Street salesroom, concentrated later in the day at the night auction sale by Joseph P. Day of the Hunts Point property at Terrace Garden. This section of the Bronx has witnessed rapid development of a permanent character within the last few years, and the novelty of a night auction drew a large number of bidders attracted by the possibilities of securing favorable property for immediate improvement. Full particulars of the sale will be found in another column.

In the Vesey Street rooms Herbert A. Sherman sold several plots on Bailey Avenue in the Kingsbridge section. For a lot on Bailey Avenue, near Sedgwick Avenue, William H. Vought paid $1,550, and for the adjoining lot, with a frontage on Harlem River Terrace, the same buyer paid $1,500. The other parcels were struck down to the Kingsbridge Real Estate Company, which operates in that section. The corner of Bailey Avenue and 192d Street went to Richard M. Montgomery for $1,800, and two lots further up the street on Bailey Avenue, near Kingsbridge Road, went for $1,500 each. The sale was ordered by the Knickerbocker Trust Company in foreclosure proceedings.

Bryan L. Kennelly sold a three-story dwelling at 825 Riverside Drive, north of 158th Street, 20.10 by 84.9, to C. I. Abbott for $18,800. Most of the foreclosure sales were bought by the plaintiffs. The complete results of the Vesey Street sales will be found below:

45th Street Sale Near Times Square.

Most important of the private sales reported during the day and which reflects the growing commercial importance of the district between Times Square and Fifth Avenue, was the purchase by the Herald Square Holding Company (Arnstein, Levy and George Backer,) from John E. Olsen of the old dwelling at 62 and 64 West Forty-fifth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues. The plot, 40 by 100.5, will be immediately improved with a twelve-story office building. Frederick Fox & Co. were the brokers negotiating the deal.

Sale on West End Avenue.

Another sale in the West End Avenue district, where the demand for private houses has been unusually heavy during the past couple of weeks, was reported yesterday.

The property sold was the four-story American basement dwelling, 490 West End Avenue, on a lot 15.4 by 100, owned by Helen M. Warren and Mabel H. Smith.

The Herald Square Holding Company recently acquired a large plot on the southeast corner of West End Avenue and Eighty-fourth Street, which is separated by only one house from the parcel sold yesterday.

Second Avenue Purchase for Theatre Entrance.

George F. Johnson has added to his holdings in the vicinity of First Street and Extra Place by purchasing from Lowenfeld & Prager the five three-story buildings on the southwest corner of Second Avenue and Second Street. The property abuts on the Extra Place parcel owned by Mr. Johnson, and on which a theatre is to be erected which will be managed by David Kessler and Max R. Wilner. They have also leased this corner just acquired by Mr. Johnson, and it will be used to give an entrance to the new theatre from Second Avenue. The plot has a frontage of 50 feet on the avenue, 109 feet on Second Street, with a 20-foot extension running back 92 feet.

Church Sells Harlem House.

The old dwelling at 184 West 135th Street, on plot, 25 by 99.11, owned by the Baptist Church of the Redeemer, has been sold by J. B. Wood to a client for investment.

Bronx Purchase for Development.

A purchase of about fifty-six acres has just been made in the vicinity of the 222d Street Station of the New York, Westchester & Boston Railway, in the Bronx, by the East Chester Shore Front Realty Company. This is a new organization formed to develop the property in the near future, of which Henry Steers of the Steers contracting firm is President. The property has been acquired from several owners. It has a large frontage on the Hutchinson River and Black 222d Street Station of the New York, Dog Creek. The new station at 222d Street will, it is believed, make the section one of the important centres in this Bronx district south of Baychester Avenue.

Sold Three Times in Six Months.

The Sea Gate Casino, on Norton Point, Coney Island, was sold for a third time yesterday in the course of six months. The property, which consists of several buildings, has a frontage of 90 feet on Surf Avenue. The buyer, George Rosenheim, contemplates making many improvements on the property. In April last the property was sold by the Woodbury estate to John Opperman, who sold it to Gaetano Rascio. The latter sold to Mr. Rosenheim, each seller taking a handsome profit.

Brooklyn Sales.

The estate of George W. Patten has sold to Edward Reid 62 Claremont Avenue, a two-story frame dwelling.

J. M. Baecker has sold to G. A. Klemming 403 Quincy Street, a three-story frame dwelling. Louis Arnold negotiated the sale.

Good Demand for Suburban Realty.

The suburban market continues remarkably active, especially on Long Island and in New Jersey, despite the lateness of the season. This is accounted for in a great measure by the fine weather and the constantly growing demand for suburban homes.

Among the sales reported yesterday was that of a large plot on Read's Lane, Far Rockaway, L. I., which was sold by E. A. New to Paul Lehman. The buyer will improve the parcel. Herman Frankfort negotiated the sale.

Several sales at Brightwaters, the T. B. Ackerson & Co. development at Bayshore, L. I., were also reported, and included one of the newly completed bungalows on Baldwin Boulevard, occupying a plot 100 by 100, and a plot 75 by 135, on Lagoon Drive, overlooking the lake.

Henry Juehrs has purchased the corner of Thirteenth Street and Fourth Avenue, College Point, for $19,000. The property consists of two lots, two three-story houses, and one two-story store.

Charles Foeller has sold to Theodore and Emil Witzel a parcel of land having a frontage of 100 feet on the south side of First Avenue and 50 feet on the west side of Fifth Street, College Point, L. I.

The concrete dwelling, 24 Water Street, Mount Holly, N. J., on a plot 60 by 60, has been sold to the Armon Realty Company by E. Sharum. Sixteen lots in Setauket, L. I., were taken in part payment.

$48,900 for Yonkers Property.

For the Yonkers property comprising the Charles J. Henderson estate $48,900 was obtained yesterday at the auction sale of the property, held in front of the Yonkers Manor House by George W. Bard. The property included several parcels of improved and unimproved property located on Hawthorne Avenue, Downing Street, Terrace Place, and Nepperhan Avenue. The sale, which was held by order of Grace D. Valentine, executrix, attracted many bidders, and the total was regarded as highly satisfactory. Much of the property will probably be immediately improved.

AUCTION SALES.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT DEfault having been made in the payment of instalments of interest upon the First Mortgage Collateral Trust Five Per Cent. Thirty-Year Sinking Fund Gold Bonds of Southern Electric Securities Company, issued under its mortgage to the undersigned, as Trustee, dated May 23d, 1904, for more than three months after such instalments respectively became due, to wit, on October 1st, 1909, and on April 1st, 1910, the undersigned, as such Trustee, pursuant to the terms of said mortgage, will, by Adrian H. Muller & Son, Auctioneers, offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on the 19th day of October, 1910, at 12:30 P. M. on said day, or as soon thereafter as may be practicable, at the Exchange Salesroom, 14 and 16 Vesey Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, the following:

PARCEL I.

$100,000 First Mortgage Bonds of the Beaumont Traction Company, a Texas corporation, secured by mortgage to Missouri Trust Company of St. Louis, with the coupons of October 1, 1909, and all subsequent coupons attached.

6,000 shares of the capital stock of the said Beaumont Traction Company, of the par value of $100 each.

$266,000 First Mortgage Bonds of the Southern Light and Traction Company, a Louisiana corporation, secured by mortgage to the Interstate Trust & Banking Company of New Orleans, with the coupons of October 15, 1909, and all subsequent coupons attached.

$60,000 First Mortgage Bonds of the Jennings Electric Light & Power Company, Ltd., a Louisiana corporation, secured by mortgage to the Interstate Trust & Banking Company of New Orleans, with the coupons of January 1, 1910, and all subsequent coupons attached.

300 shares of the capital stock of said Jennings Electric Light & Power Company, Ltd., of the par value of $50 each.

$32,000 First Mortgage Bonds of the Vicksburg Railway and Light Company, a Mississippi corporation, secured by mortgage to Interstate Trust & Banking Company of New Orleans, with the coupons of January 1, 1910, and all subsequent coupons attached.

3,750 shares of the capital stock of said Vicksburg Railway and Light Company, of the par value of $100 each.

In case the purchase price of Parcel I shall be insufficient to pay the full amount of principal and accrued interest upon the bonds issued and outstanding under the aforesaid mortgage of the Southern Electric Securities Company, and all other sums due under said mortgage, then there shall also be so offered for sale the following:

PARCEL II.

340 shares of the capital stock of the Southern Railway and Light Company, a Louisiana corporation, of the par value of $100 each.

In case of the sale of each of said Parcels I and II:

(a) The bid of the highest bidder shall be accepted, but before the property is struck off such bidder will be required to pay on account of the purchase price twenty per cent. (20%) thereof in cash, or ten per cent. (10%) in cash and twenty-five per cent. (25%) in bonds of the Southern Electric Securities Company under its said mortgage, with the coupons of October 1st, 1909, and all subsequent coupons attached. In the event of the highest bidder failing to make such payment, the property will be again immediately offered for sale, and the bidder failing to make such payment will be held liable for any deficiency. The balance of the purchase price will be required to be paid and the property sold will be delivered to or upon the order of the purchaser at the office of the Knickerbocker Trust Company, No. 60 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, on the 26th day of October, 1910, at 12:30 o'clock in the afternoon of said day.

(b) In the event of the failure of the purchaser so to make payment of the balance of the purchase price, the amount paid on account thereof shall be forfeited and the purchaser will be held liable for any deficiency arising upon the re-sale and all the expenses thereof.

(c) Any purchaser or purchasers shall be entitled to turn in, use and apply, in making payment of the purchase money by or for him or them bidden upon such sale, any of the bonds or coupons of the Southern Electric Securities Company outstanding under its said mortgage, reckoning such bonds or coupons for such purpose at a sum not exceeding that which shall be payable out of the net proceeds of such sale to the holder or holders of such bonds or coupons for his or their just share in that character of such net proceeds of sale under due apportionment of and accounting concerning such net proceeds, after provision is made for the payment in cash of the expenses of such sale.

NEW JERSEY—Lakewood.

RIDING—DRIVING—MOTORING
LAKEWOOD, N. J.

THIS form of outdoor life is very popular in Lakewood. The magnificent, well-kept roads in and around the resort all lead through picturesque routes to interesting points. A trip to "Allaire," the deserted village, over winding roads, through pine and forest, is as entertaining as it is exhilarating. It seems almost impossible to become exhausted in this dry, balsam pine laden air. This is one of the many pastimes—Golf, Motoring, Boating, Tennis and all other popular seasonable sports, together with the most attractive social life, enable the visitor to enjoy every day a different pleasure

MASTER'S SALES.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA.—IN THE Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division. UNITED STATES MORTGAGE AND TRUST COMPANY, as Trustee, Complainant, vs. DETROIT, TOLEDO & IRONTON RAILWAY COMPANY; Benjamin S. Warren, George K. Lowell, and Thomas D. Rhodes, as receivers of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company; Knickerbocker Trust Company, William J. Courtney and Citizens' National Bank of Springfield, Ohio, Defendants.—In Equity No. 4013.

Notice is hereby given that in pursuance and by virtue of a decree in the above-entitled cause made by the Hon. Henry H. Swan, District Judge, sitting as Circuit Judge, in the said Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Michigan, Southern Division, on the 27th day of September, 1910, I, the undersigned, Special Master appointed by said decree for the purpose, will sell, at public auction, by Adrian H. Muller & Son, Auctioneers, to the highest qualified bidder or bidders, at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the twenty-fifth day of November, 1910, at twelve o'clock noon of that day, in the manner and upon the terms in said decree provided, the following described property, to wit:

$5,000,000, par value, of the Consolidated Mortgage Four and One-Half Cent. Gold Bonds of the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company, serially numbered from 3673 to 8674, inclusive, issued under and secured by the Consolidated Mortgage dated May 2, 1905, and the Supplemental Mortgage dated August 23, 1905, executed by Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railway Company to Knickerbocker Trust Company, as Trustee, with all unpaid coupons thereon;

As is more fully set forth in said decree, the Consolidated Mortgage bonds will be first offered in fifty separate parcels or lots, each containing 100 of said bonds, together with the unpaid coupons thereunto appertaining, and the undersigned will provisionally accept the bid of the highest qualified bidder for each such parcel so offered; thereafter the said $5,000,000, par value, of said bonds, together with the unpaid interest coupons appertaining thereto, will be offered as an entirety and in one block, and the undersigned will provisionally accept the bid of the highest qualified bidder for said bonds so sold as an entirety. The undersigned will in like manner offer for sale the 30,010 shares of the preferred stock of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company, divided into twenty-nine separate parcels or lots, each containing 1,000 shares, and one separate parcel or lot containing 1,010 shares of said preferred stock, and also the 21,900 shares of the common stock of said Ann Arbor Railroad Company, divided into twenty-one separate parcels or lots, each containing 1,000 shares, and one separate parcel or lot containing 900 shares of said common stock, and will provisionally accept the bid of the highest qualified bidder for each such parcel so offered; thereupon the undersigned will offer for sale the said 30,010 shares of the preferred and 21,900 shares of the common stock of the Ann Arbor Railroad Company as an entirety in one block or parcel, and will provisionally accept the bid of the highest qualified bidder for such preferred and common stock so sold as an entirety.

If, upon the report of the Court of all bids so provisionally accepted, the Court shall confirm the sales of said bonds or of said stock, or either of them, as an entirety to the highest qualified bidder or bidders for such entireties, the provisional acceptance by the undersigned of the highest bids made and provisionally accepted for the respective parcels, either of said bonds or of said stock, separately offered for sale, shall be null and void; but if the Court shall confirm the sale of the several parcels of either said bonds or of said stock separately offered for sale, or of such separate parcels of either said bonds or said stock as may be sufficient to provide an amount sufficient to discharge the sums by said decree found to be due to the complainant and the expenses of sale, as well as all other sums in said decree directed to be paid out of the proceeds of sale, to the highest bidders for such separate parcels, the provisional acceptance by the undersigned of the highest bid made for the said bonds or the said stock, or either of them, as an entirety, and the provisional acceptance by the undersigned of the highest bids for such separate parcels of said bonds or of said stock or either of them, as the Court may determine are not necessary to be sold to provide the amount sufficient to discharge the amount found due by said decree to complainant and expenses of sale, as well as the other amounts above referred to, shall be null and void.

No bids will be received from any bidder for any of the separate parcels of said bonds or said stock, or for the said bonds or the said stock or either of them as an entirety, who shall not first deposit with the undersigned the sums of money or the amounts of collateral trust notes provided by said decree and in the manner therein provided. The checks or certificates of deposit for such sums or the notes deposited by any bidder other than the one whose bid has been accepted, will be returned upon the completion of the sale to the bidder or bidders from whom they were received.

MAYOR REGRETS SCANDAL ON CITY

MR. GAYNOR'S ATTITUDE

Has Not Taken Up Police Matters Yet, but Hopes to Deal with Them Without Slandering City's Fair Name.

A letter addressed yesterday by Mayor Gaynor to Chief Magistrate McAdoo, in which he took occasion to speak of "the periodical attempt of some persons to scandalize the city and give it a vile repute by declaring its wickedness from the housetops, although it is the most decent and orderly of cities," was accepted about City Hall as showing his displeasure over the police agitation started during his absence by Acting Mayor Mitchel.

As a matter of fact, the Mayor has explained to friends that since resuming his duties he has not had the Police Department under consideration. The matter of making up the annual budget he regards as vastly more important than any derelictions that may exist in the Police Department. Later on he will probably take up the Police Department, and will be glad to confer with those who are interested in the improvement of police conditions.

The Mayor said to a friend only yesterday that the matter of unfortunate women and gamblers is not at present the uppermost thing in his mind. He added: "We always have them with us, and have to deal with them steadily and continually, and I hope that I shall deal with them in the future, as in the past, without scandalizing this city by making the outside world believe that it is the home and refuge of gamblers and prostitutes."

His letter yesterday was elicited by one from Chief Magistrate McAdoo reporting on the workings of the new summons system in the police courts. The Mayor's reply was the first letter he has written since he returned to City Hall that has been made public. Here it is:

> Office of the Mayor,
> Dear Judge McAdoo: I thank you very much for your favor of Oct. 8, giving me a full account of how the method of issuing summonses for petty offense works, as against the old barbarous method of grabbing everybody and locking them up in advance of a hearing. The effective way in which you have taken hold of the matter of unnecessary arrests and the extent to which you have already minimized such arrests is sufficient in itself to justify my choice of you for Chief Magistrate. How much better such systematic work is than the periodical attempt of some persons to scandalize the city and give it a vile repute by declaring its wickedness from the housetops, although it is the most decent and orderly of cities. I hope we can all work steadily and unostentatiously for minimizing vice and crime, and not seek notoriety out of it at the expense of the city's good name. Sincerely yours,
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
> The Hon. WILLIAM McADOO, Chief City Magistrate, 300 Mulberry Street, city.

When this was shown to Mr. Mitchel as he was leaving Borough President McAneny's office, where he had been sitting beside the Mayor at a budget hearing, the President of the Board of Aldermen showed evident anger. At first he shook his head and was determined to make no reply. Then he seemed to appreciate that he should reply in some way and in a tense voice he said:

"It cannot be possible that the Mayor's letter refers to me because I dealt, as Acting Mayor, with conditions which arose and which were proved to exist during Mayor Gaynor's administration."

This was all he would say for publication. The Mayor's letter was taken about City Hall as confirmation of the belief that he does not intend to disturb Commissioner Baker.

Chief Magistrate McAdoo's letter showed that the new summons system is working excellently. Under it each policeman is provided with a summons book with stub attached, much like a check book. This keeps a record of all summonses issued. Mr. McAdoo declares that the new system is causing a great reduction in the issuance of warrants, and that in Manhattan and the Bronx last month only 2,877 summonses were issued, while under the old system the average was 8,500 a month.

Alderman Folks, who introduced the resolution at the last meeting of that board calling for an investigation by the Aldermen of police conditions in the city, followed it up at yesterday's session by presenting another requesting the Rules Committee, to which the original resolution was referred, to report on it. The second resolution met the same fate as its predecessor. It is generally believed about the City Hall that both will be allowed to sleep peacefully in one of the committee's pigeon holes.

"Gambling, vice, and immorality have existed in the most flagrant manner in certain sections of the City of New York within the past few months, and to a degree which is most scandalous," declared the Alderman's resolution of yesterday. "The investigation of Acting Mayor Mitchel leaves no doubt that disreputable practices have existed in the most obnoxious way."

RATE FOR CARRYING MAILS.

Erie's President Thinks Inter-State Commission Should Fix It.

President F. D. Underwood of the Erie Railroad, in his statement to stockholders in the pamphlet report for the year ended June 30 last, advocates putting the rates paid by the Government for the transportation of mail under the control of the Inter-State Commerce Commission as other rates are now. "Inasmuch," he says, "as the statutes now place in the hands of the Inter-State Commerce Commission the regulation of rates for transportation of every other character, it is argued that rates for the transportation of mail should be made in the same manner, and it is hoped that the necessary legislation to accomplish this can be effected."

The Erie Railroad earned this last year in the transportation of United States mail $37,683, or 8.03 per cent. less than it earned from this source the previous year. In explanation it is said that the company is required to maintain expensive facilities for the transportation of mail, and the cost of the service is increasing from year to year in keeping with the general increase in the cost of all other transportation expenses, and the compensation has been decreased. Such decreases, the report says, are liable to be constant under the present method of fixing the compensation.

The gross operating revenue of the Erie Railroad was reported in the annual statement issued some weeks ago. The earnings were the largest in the history of the company.

HOUSEMAN MISSING; STEIN JEWELS GONE

$1,000 IN TRINKETS TAKEN

New Man Seemed So Intelligent He Was Hired at Once—He Has a German Accent and a Lisp.

Through the arrest of a suspect yesterday it became known that jewelry worth about $1,000 was stolen a week ago from the Fifth Avenue residence of Abraham Stein, a wholesale leather dealer at 7 Gold Street. At the time of the loss it was learned that a "second man" employed in the house five days had secretly gone without taking the trouble to resign.

Mr. Stein's house at 1,068 Fifth Avenue is next to the Henry Phipps house at the corner of Eighty-seventh Street, and only two blocks away from Andrew Carnegie's. Therefore when the address appeared in a newspaper advertisement for a second man it evidently looked promising in more ways than one to at least one applicant for the position. He was chosen from among several because of his pleasing appearance and intelligence.

He gave apparently good references from families in a fashionable Boston suburb. Mr. Stein now believes these names were fictitious. For the first few days he was closely watched, but the family soon decided he was honest and industrious, and the surveillance became less severe.

One morning he was put to work cleaning the hallway on the third floor. Mrs. Stein herself gave him directions. He went upstairs, ostensibly to begin work, and that was the last seen of him. Two hours later Mrs. Stein saw that the light in the hall was still lit, and as he should have finished by that time she went up to investigate. His ladder, brushes, and pail of water were found, but he was not there. Mrs. Stein called her butler, Antonio Ruiz, and the two went downstairs to look for him. No one had seen him go out and he certainly was not in the house.

Mrs. Stein hurried to her rooms and was relieved to find that none of her valuables had disappeared. Meanwhile Ruiz went to the room occupied by the missing servant and found that all his clothes had been packed and removed. Ruiz himself, although his quarters were on the fifth floor, had kept most of his clothes and effects in the same room. His trunk had been broken open and a gold watch and fob, $20 in money, four rings, a pair of jeweled cuff links, and two suits of clothes were missing.

On the third floor of the house are the rooms of Mr. Stein's nephew, Edward Newman. From there four jeweled stickpins, a watch, and a set of three diamond dress shirt studs had been taken. Mrs. Stein immediately informed the Detective Bureau of the loss. No trace has been found either of the missing property or the missing servant.

Railroad's Annual Report Goes Into the Readjustment Plan.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 11.—Shareholders met to-day in the first annual meeting of the reorganized Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton Railroad Company and scanned the report for the fiscal year ended on June 30.

The report displays the full plan of reorganization enacted about a year ago and also shows how millions of dollars of debts resulting from the "Great Central" fiasco were charged off to "profit and loss." One item thus charged reads:

> Difference between cost to C. H. & D. and the par value of 66,769 shares of C. H. & D. stock retired, $1,468,819.

The total of all items in this class is $12,372,463.

The operating revenues of the company for the fiscal year were $9,446,524, an increase of $1,549,476. There was an increase from freight traffic of $1,266,928. More than half of the increased tonnage came from bituminous coal.

The report shows a gain in passenger revenues of nearly $100,000. The deficit for the year, $720,263, was several hundred thousand dollars less than for the preceding year.

ASK OF MISS QUINN'S PAST.

She Fends Off Questions Suggesting That ex-Convict Rice Inspired Suit.

The name of George Graham Rice, alias Simon Jacob Herzig, the ex-convict, now out on bail on charges preferred by the postal authorities, was brought prominently into the examination of Esther Quinn yesterday. Miss Quinn, who is suing Harry Thurston Peck, till recently Professor of Latin at Columbia, for breach of promise, was employed by B. H. Scheftels & Co. in their Boston office. Rice was manager of the company, it is said, though he was absent from its New York office when the postal agents made their raid on the premises overlooking the Curb market.

From the number of questions about Rice put to Miss Quinn by Lawyer C. B. Francis it seemed as though the Peck defense was attempting to lay the ground for a contention that Rice in some way instigated or advised Miss Quinn to bring her breach of promise action against the professor. But the plump and positive stenographer repelled these questions in such a way as to make the effort a failure.

Miss Quinn said she had never discussed her suit with Rice or any member of the Scheftels firm. Then Mr. Francis attempted to delve into some of Miss Quinn's past.

"Do you recall a well-known man, a man past 50 years, at 60 Wall Street ten years ago?"

"I know the man you mean; he's a lawyer."

"Didn't you have a similar controversy with him?"

"What do you mean?"

"Didn't you ask him for money? Didn't you threaten to expose him for marrying some one else?" Daniel O'Reilly, counsel for Miss Quinn, did not permit her to answer.

Miss Quinn denied any improprieties in her past life.

O'Reilly continued his tactics of the first hearing by continually poking fun at Lawyer Francis. He took particular delight in twitting his opponent about Prof. Peck's private detectives. Miss Quinn professed ignorance as to who had assaulted one of Peck's detectives, who was shadowing her.
